CHICAGO, June 5.—(AP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend conferred with associates and refused any comment today after 12 major executives of his old age pension movement submitted their resignations.

The mass resignation of national officers was announced by J. W. Brinton, vice-president and general manager of the Townsend National Recovery Plan, Inc., and of the Townsend Weekly, after he and 11 other key executives had signed a formal statement criticizing the elderly California physician for carrying on "a fight against legislation proposed by the president which has no bearing on the Townsend plan."

RUMORS PERSIST DEATH OF MOLA, OTHERS CAUSED BY 'TIME BOMB'

Fighting At Side Door To Madrid Flares Into New Major Battle

GOVERNMENT'S MACHINE GUNS BEAT OFF ATTACK

French And British Diplomats Press Anew To Isolate Civil War

(By Associated Press)

Insurgent artillery pounded Bilbao's "El Gallo" line, the besieged Basque capital's last-ditch line of concrete trenches, today.

Sections of the insurgent generalissimo's line of 800 artillery pieces opened the bombardment while unconfirmed French border reports said a "time bomb" caused the plane crash Thursday that killed Insurgent General Emilio Mola and four of his officers.

The rumors, although without any substantiation, were persistent.

Fighting on a new front, at the side door to Madrid, flared into a major battle.

Government machine gun crews were said to have beaten back an insurgent counter-offensive of combined infantry, artillery and air forces at La Granja, about 53 miles northwest of the capital.

Insurgent warplanes, trying to hold General Jose Miaja's forces from Segovia, about six miles north in the Guadarrama sector above Madrid bombarded the government entrenchments as the insurgent foot troops went "over the top."

The government machine gun nests withheld their fire until the insurgent wave came close, then baited the wavering line with a spray of fire.

International tension relaxed after the Spanish government aerial bombardment of Germany's pocket battleship Deutschland and the reported retaliatory commando of Adolf Hitler's French and British diplomats pressed anew to isolate the civil war.

Their main purpose was to promote German and Italian interest in the recall of foreign troops from Spain. That would simplify the problem of the international non-intervention committee's naval patrol and eliminate one source of incidents.

To win Germany and Italy back to the "hands off Spain" committee with guarantees of safety for neutral warships, France urged:

1. That all 27 nations participate in the patrol instead of the four great power fleets France, Great Britain, Italy and Germany in the original plan.

2. That neutral observers be placed aboard each patrol ship to fix responsibility for the bombing of the Deutschland.

The Madrid Valencia government threatened to put "terror against terror" by launching air raids on insurgent air bases on the Balearic islands, held by Italian troops.

Jose Giral Pereira Valencia government foreign minister, declared the Spanish republic held the German and Italian governments responsible for the bombardment of Almeria.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—House chiefs looked over the legislative slate with President Roosevelt today and returned to the capitol with predictions that congress probably would be in session until late summer.

Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Rayburn described the president as anxious for congress to act before adjournment on:

Revamping the supreme court, reorganizing governmental agencies, setting wage and hour standards, planning conservation of water, soil and power resources, aiding farm tenants, building low cost dwellings, closing loopholes used by tax dodgers, and extending nuisance taxes.

Grady Riser Claims Lemon Hodnette Knifed Him Following Altercation

Grady Riser, 29-year-old Holly Ridge farmer, was brought to St. Francis sanitarium last night suffering from knife wounds which he claimed were inflicted by Lemon Hodnette, 20, farmer, in a fight which took place near Holly Ridge late Saturday evening.

Riser said that the trouble arose after he reported that Hodnette, who works on the same farm with him, had been riding a cultivator against the owner's orders. The men met in Rayville and Riser said that his assailant abused him and used an insulting epithet. Riser told Hodnette that he did not care to fight on the street because he "could not afford to pay a fine," and ofefred to fight him elsewhere.

The men left Rayville together and when nearing Holly Ridge stopped in a field and started to fight. Riser said he struck at Hodnette and the latter, who is alleged to have had a knife in his hand, wounded him in the arm. Riser said that he picked up a two by four and struck Hodnette, who ran away, but returned to the scene and used his knife again, slashing him in the chest and leg.

Electric power and light in a large area of the business district was interrupted for a period of 50 minutes Saturday night when fuses blew out in the North street substation. For the third time in its history, L. B. Faulk post No. 13 of the American Legion will act as host to the members of the Louisiana department, which convenes in Monroe July 10-13 for its 19th annual state convention.

While the two previous conventions held in this city were memorable ones, officials in charge of arrangements for the 1937 convention report that this year's activities will surpass all efforts of the two previous sessions and will go down in the history of the Louisiana department of the American Legion as a convention long to be remembered.

The task of arranging an adequate program for the thousands of visiting legionnaires who are expected to attend the convention here in July has been entrusted to the following committee chairmen, who are being assisted by willing co-workers:

North Louisiana Area In Midst Of Feverish Scramble For Oil

The roar of tension trucks, the [illegible]-like exhausts of heavy duty mudpumps and the clank of the drilling machinery throughout a six parish area today belied the calm of north central Louisiana into its greatest period of oil and gas development. After more than 20 years of explorative and preliminary work by wildcatters and major companies alike, during which time heavier and more efficient machinery has been developed, the area between the Ouachita river and the Red, known as the "east leg of the Sabine uplift," has come into its own in the oil and gas world.

Three proven fields have been developed in the area during the past 18 months, while on the east edge, where geologists are yet undecided upon the basic production, the Ouachita gas field has been extended into the Union and west Ouachita parish areas. With the exception of the lat-

For the third time in its history, L. B. Faulk post No. 13 of the American Legion will act as host to the members of the Louisiana department, which convenes in Monroe July 10-13 for its 19th annual state convention.

While the two previous conventions held in this city were memorable ones, officials in charge of arrangements for the 1937 convention report that this year's activities will surpass all efforts of the two previous sessions and will go down in the history of the Louisiana department of the American Legion as a convention long to be remembered.

Ever since Monroe was notified that it had been selected as the 1937 convention city for the Louisiana department, local legion officials have been busy with their plans, and Saturday announced that their program for the three-day session is almost completed.

The task of arranging an adequate program for the thousands of visiting legionnaires who are expected to attend the convention here in July has been entrusted to the following committee chairmen, who are being assisted by willing co-workers:

General chairman, Bill Perhamus; 40-8 activities, Sam Rubin; American Legion auxiliary, Mrs. Charles Mitchell; finance, Ivey A. Faulk; distinguished guests, C. E. McKenzie; housing and registration, Warren Taylor; program, Isadoe Liebreich; parades, Chief of Police Frank V. Reitzell; barbecue, Fred Pettit; decorations, Ted Madsen; badges, Charles Mitchell; transportation, Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez; Sons of the Legion, Walter Savage; enutertainment and dances, John Bailey; drum and bugle corps contest, Dr. S. A. Collins; meet-

North Louisiana Area In Midst Of Feverish Scramble For Oil

The roar of ten-ton trucks, the locomotive-like exhausts of heavy duty mud-pumps and the clank of drilling machinery throughout a six-parish area today herald the entry of north central Louisiana into its greatest period of oil and gas development. After more than 30 years of explorative and preliminary work by wildcatters and major companies alike, during which time heavier and more efficient machinery has been developed, the area between the Ouachita river and the Red, known as the "east leg of the Sabine uplift," has come into its own in the oil and gas world.

Three proven fields have been developed in the area during the past 18 months, while on the east edge, where geologists are yet undecided upon the basic production, the Ouachita gas field has been extended into the Union and west Ouachita parish areas. With the exception of the latter tests, all have been discovered in the "deep production zones," namely, the basal Trinity or Travis Peak structures.

Most important in the list of producing areas, of course, is the new Lisbon field, producing oil of approximately 36.5 gravity from a limestone formation in the Pettit zone. Discovered late in 1936 by E. T. "Rebel" Oaks and Harry D. Easton, there are now more than 25 producing wells in the field with approximately 25 others being completed or in the process of being drilled. The field has been extended so far approximately one mile northwest of the discovery well, Patton No. 1, in section 1-20-5, Claiborne parish, one mile west, one half mile southwest, two miles northeast, and a quarter mile southeast. Drilling at present are

LEGION SONS TO GO ON BOAT RIDE

Captain G. B. Cooley Offers Service Of Craft To John McClain Squadron

At the regular meeting on Wednesday night of the Sons of the American Legion it was announced that a boat ride would be given to all members of the squadron by Captain G. B. Cooley on Wednesday night, June 9. All members are requested to meet at Cooley's landing at 6 p. m. and be ready to leave not later than 6:30 p. m.

It was also announced that, through the efforts of Legionnaire Sam Rubin, the squadron colors had been donated to the John A. McClain squadron No. 13 by the following legionnaires: James A. Noe, C. E. McKenzie and William Rodriguez.

These colors have been ordered and are expected in Monroe within the next two weeks and will be ready for the squadron to be carried in the American Legion parade during the legion convention starting in Monroe on July 19. This gift is highly appreciated by the members of the local squadron.

The squadron now has a membership of 22 and is steadily growing both in membership and enthusiasm as was attested by this meeting when 22 members were present. The local squadron has high hopes in the very near future of adding a drum and bugle corps to this organization with the help of L. B. Faulk post No. 13 membership.

Past Squadron Captain Walter Savage, Jr., who is home on a visit from his duties at L. S. U., was a visitor and made a short talk.

Others present included Sam Rubin, Dr. C. L. Mengis, Ben Stern, Mrs. Ben Stern and Mrs. Sam Orchard as well as Chairman Sam Orchard.

BITTERWEED CONTROL DISCUSSED BY AGENT

Dairy farmers in Ouachita parish can successfully control the growth of bitterweed in their pastures by following a few simple rules, according to an announcement made by E. R. Strahan, parish agricultural agent, who stated that the spread of this weed causes heavy losses to dairy farmers every year.

"Bitterweed control in pastures requires carefully controlled grazing and mowing," Mr. Strahan declared. "The weeds should be mowed as each crop of flowers appears, and the cutter-bar of the mower should be raised at each mowing so that only the blooms are clipped off. If the weeds are cut too low at the first or second mowing, later mowings will not be possible as each new crop of blooms occur at the point where the main stem is cut off.

"Three mowings per season will usually be required," Mr. Strahan said. "This should eradicate the weeds in two years. Enriching the pasture with liberal applications of a complete fertilizer will also help in bitterweed control. This should be applied at the rate of 300 to 400 pounds to the acre, preferably in December or January. Where grasses and clovers grow vigorously bitterweeds are seldom found. Over-grazing the pasture will stimulate the amount of growth of bitterweed."

Mr. Strahan advised that cows should be moved from pastures while mowing is being carried out at least two hours before milking time.

Nearly 8,500,000 letters are being mailed every day in London.

Saturday, July 10, the first day of the 19th annual convention, will be Forty and Eight day and a big program has been arranged by Chairman Sam Rubin and the co-chairman, Senator James A. Noe, legionnaires who have taken leading roles in all Forty and Eight activities in the state. The visitors are promised a memorable day, including boat rides on the river, dancing, lots of fun and plenty of good eating. All members of the Forty and Eight look forward with keen anticipation to the first day of the convention.

Chairman Perhamus announced Saturday that Colonel Castro Carazo, band master of Louisiana State university, has accepted an invitation to come to Monroe to judge the band and the drum and bugle corps contests which are a feature of the convention entertainment program. Contestants from all posts in the state are expected to enter this tournament, which is also open to the public, Chairman Perhamus announced.

A charge of 50 cents will be made for all entries and the money will be used exclusively for purchasing valuable prizes to be awarded the winners. There will be a senior first prize and a junior first prize. There will be a first prize for the state legion drum and bugle corps and first and second prizes for the Sons of the Legion drum and bugle corps. The contests will be held Monday night at 8 p.m. at the Northeast Center stadium. The presence of Colonel Carazo as judge of the contests lends considerable significance to this part of the program. Dr. S. A. Collins will be in charge of the contests.

In addition to being director of the Louisiana State university band, Colonel Carazo is also general director of bands, Louisiana national guard, and an aide-de-camp on the staff of Governor Richard W. Leche. He is a member of Sigma Delta Pi, national Spanish fraternity, and was formerly director of the New Orleans symphony orchestra.

Louisiana's girls will have the opportunity of competing for the coveted title of "Sweetheart of the American Legion in Louisiana" and to win the $50 and $25 prizes offered the successful entrants in the beauty contest to be staged Sunday, July 11. This affair, it is felt, will attract considerable attention among visiting legionnaires, who will have the opportunity of judging the charms of the Louisiana beauties. Every post in the state is requested to have at least one entry in the beauty contest.

A cash prize will be given to the owner of the best decorated float entered in the parade to be held Monday, July 12, at 5 p.m. Local merchants are urged to prepare floats for the parade but are cautioned that these must be at least 75 per cent decorative and not more than 25 per cent advertising. The parade will form at the Ouachita Parish High school grounds on South Grand street. The route to be followed by the floats will be announced later. Chief of Police Frank V. Reitzell is chairman of the parade committee and announced that his committee reserves the right to reject any float which does not conform to the rules for decorations.

Chairman Perhamus announced Saturday that he was in receipt of a letter from Governor Leche, who wrote that he would endeavor to attend the convention in Monroe next July. He thanked Chairman Perhamus for the invitation and stated that he would make every effort to be in Monroe for the sessions.

The tentative program announced by Chairman Perhamus is as follows:

Saturday, July 10—Forty and Eight day.

Sunday, July 11—Opening meeting, 2 p.m., Legion auxiliary; Forty and Eight and Eight and Forty; dance at the country club from 12:01 a.m. 'till—

Monday, July 12—Open meeting 9:30 a.m.; barbecue, 1 p.m.; parade, drum and bugle corps contests at Northeast Center stadium; dances, 10 p.m., one at the Virginia hotel and one at the Frances hotel.

Tuesday, July 13—Open meeting at 9:30 a.m.

The above is a general outline of the convention activities, Chairman Perhamus explained. The full program will provide for interesting activities every minute of the three-day session, he said.

Every care has been taken to provide comfortable quarters for the visiting legionnaires and reservations are being taken by the leading hotels in the city.

Convention headquarters for the American Legion will be located at the Virginia hotel; headquarters for the American Legion auxiliary will be at the Frances hotel; the 40 and 8 will have its headquarters at the Alvis hotel; Sons of the Legion will have their headquarters at the Monroe hotel.

Mrs. Charles Mitchell, convention chairman of the American Legion auxiliary, announced Saturday that the convention program for the activities of the auxiliary is about ready and promises to be of the greatest interest from every standpoint. She stated that the complete program will be released within a few days and that all members of the local auxiliary are determined to make the 19th state convention one long to be remembered by the visitors.

Mrs. C. L. Mengis, wife of Commander C. L. Mengis of the local post, will act as convention hostess.

A feature of the convention activities will be participation of the Louisiana detachment of the Sons of the American Legion. Members of this organization from every post in the state are expected to arrive in Monroe with their dads and will have their own program.

Officers of the Louisiana detachment are as follows:

LeRoy Allain, New Orleans, detachment commander; Roland Cockreham, New Orleans, detachment adjutant; committee members, Sidney Marlbrough, Thibodaux; Sam Orchard, Monroe; Harry Cloud, Baton Rouge; Dr. A. J. Perrault, Opelousas; Burton Williams, Winnfield.

The Sons of the American Legion will participate in the first general meeting of the convention and will then carry out their own program.

The L. B. Faulk post detachment will act as host to the visiting Sons of the Americna Legion.

The officers of the local detachment are as follows:

Captain, Seymour Tuey; first lieutenant, Gilbert Gilliland; second lieutenant, John McClain; adjutant and finance officer, James Hayses; chaplain, Brooks Stein; sergeant-at-arms, Watson Dupont; color bearers, Richard Gilliland, Jimmie Martin; historian, Marion Dupont.

Legionnaires C. E. McKenzie, James A. Noe and W. D. H. Rodriguez last week donated the funds to purchase the colors for the L. B. Faulk detachment of the Sons of the American Legion, and the colors will be displayed during the forthcoming convention.

Chairman Perramus announced Saturday that an added entertainment feature will be the staging of the Louisiana legionnaire skeet championship shoot which will be held Sunday, July 11, under the supervision of the Monroe Skeet club. This will be a 50-bird event and trophies will be awarded for the champion; runner-up and long run. There will be no entrance fee but a charge of $2.50 will be made for targets and ammunition. All ties will be shot off in a 25-bird event.

Chairman McKenzie, of the distinguished guests committee, announced that his committee is working to secure the appearance at the convention of prominent national figures in American Legion activities and politics and is making every effort to arrange for National Commander Harry Colmery to attend the Monroe convention.

WOMACK TO HEAR ATTACK ON LAW

Constitutionality Of Civil Service Act Assailed In Suit

BATON ROUGE, La., June 5.—(AP)—The suit attacking constitutionality of the late Huey P. Long's civil service law was assigned today to Judge James D. Womack in district court here.

Eugene Stanley, former district attorney of Orleans parish, filed the petition for injunctive relief against the law yesterday in behalf of eight plaintiffs.

Plaintiffs claimed the law "created a state oligarchy for the purpose of dominating and controlling the employment of every person in the public service of the state, other than elective officials."

By empowering a state civil service commission to appoint employes of an officer, the suit complained, the commission "drove into the ranks of the state administration every elected official in the state of Louisiana because it took from him the control of his office, and placed it under the domination of the state administration."

Members of the commission, composed of the governor and other high state officials, and the state's financial officers were directed by the court yesterday to appear June 14 to show cause why a preliminary injunction against the law should not be granted. The commission also was ordered to submit its complete records for the scrutiny of the court.

The civil service law, act 22 of the second extraordinary session of 1934, was one of the many statutes Long had the legislature enact in building up his political "dictatorship" in Louisiana.

Stanley resigned as Orleans parish district attorney after his assistants had been replaced by the attorney general. Another of Long's laws made assistants of the Orleans parish district attorney appointive by the attorney general.

DEEP TEST DRILLED

SHREVEPORT, La., June 5.—(AP)—R. W. Norton's Payne No. 1, section 27-23-16, just south of Rodessa, is drilling below 10,143 feet, the deepest hole to be drilled in north Louisiana to date. It is reported that the well is to be deepened to 12,000 feet.

$2,274,511.64 SENT TO SCHOOL BOARDS

BATON ROUGE, La., June 5.—(AP)—State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell today distributed $2,274,511.64 to parish school boards as the final payment from the state school fund of the 1936-37 session.

Basis of distribution was at the rate of $3.17 for each educable child. For the entire session, $14.17 has been distributed for each educable child in comparison to $12 for each child for the 1935-36 school session.

Parishes of the state received nearly $2,000,000 more to run their schools during the 1936-37 session than the previous session. Figures compiled today by the state department of education revealed that $10,610,100.14 has been distributed to parish school boards during the 1936-37 session compared with $8,837,378.43 for the 1935-36 session.

Superintendent of Education T. H. Harris has ordered that parishes in the state use the extra money to pay teachers an extra month's salary—10 monthly salary payments instead of nine.

Some parishes, however, already were paying 10-month salaries.

In these parishes, Harris said today, "there is not only no objection to increasing the salaries of principals, supervisors, superintendents, janitors, transfer drivers, etc., but it is merited and desirable—provided the funds are available for that purpose."

The commissioner announced that new capacitators ordered March 1 last had been delivered Saturday, and installation would be started Monday. The capacitors will protect regulation of voltage and increase capacity of distribution about 10 per cent with the same generation as at present possible at the plant, the commissioner stated.

drangeas and the class members formed an attractive group. Young women in evening attire with gowns of varying colors, each carrying shower bouquets of sweet peas and the men in white suits contributed to the beauty of the scene.

Invocation was by Rev. B. F. Wallace, superintendent of the Louisiana Baptist Children's home, after which "Dayspring," a song, was rendered by the glee club, directed by Mrs. George Moffett.

The salutatory address, "The Little Thing," was given by Lucille Banks. She emphasized that it is "the little things of life that really count," and that one should endeavor to fill any humble place in life well. Happiness comes, she assured, from work well done. Not all can do great things, but all have a life work to do, big or small, and happiness will be found in doing well, she said.

She was followed by Charles Feazel, who delivered the valedictory address on "A Challenge to Youth."

He declared that bitter strife grips the world today. Ideals of the old world, rulers of the old world have failed, as has been shown in Germany, Italy and Russia, he pointed out. But the bulwark of the new world, he assured, is found in a democracy such as the United States has. The public school systems of this country, he said are a safeguard of American democratic principles. "Only as we live for others is life worth living. We accept the challenge of a warring world and go forth with a well defined purpose instilled in our hearts," he concluded.

Fred G. Thatcher, vice-president of the Ouachita parish school board, presiding officer of the evening, introduced Rev. Hicks.

The speaker said in part: "In spite of the challenge of the world today we can think courageously of the time in which we live. But we need morale. I would be untrue if I said the world is waiting with open arms to receive you graduates. This is not so, we all are aware.

"We live in a highly-specialized, perhaps too highly specialized age. Men are highly trained along special lines. They have one idea; they see only one thing in the world, their own particular line.

"We must dig in and fight hard. There are no short cuts to success and happiness. We must face the world with courage. And in facing the world successfully, certain essentials are required.

First, attitude toward service means much toward success. Four men were in a boat coming from South America to New York City. One said, 'I haven't had a good cocktail since I went to South America. The first thing I do in New York will be to get a good cocktail.' The second man declared 'I haven't seen a decent show for months. I'm going to see a good one when I arrive in New York.' The third man, an engineer, declared that he was going to utilize his knowledge of engineering to further his earning possibilities. The fourth man, a physician who had studied the control of tropical fevers declared, 'I am going to help humanity fight disease and help to rid the city of New York from such epidemics.' The four men represent four different types. The fourth man represented the one who sought to perform a real service for his fellow man.

"Second, be careful of comradeship. Some of life's best, most sacred experiences come from correct associations but companions must be chosen aright," he said.

The speaker then told of seeing a large framed picture of a dog showing unusual intelligence. It hung over a pastor's desk in his study, the gift of a friend who realized that the preacher had a great, inborn love of dogs. The owner of the picture explained that he had owned a valuable dog that one night went with a group of "sheep-killing" dogs and a farmer killed them all. This, the speaker explained, was an object lesson teaching that bad companions lead to ruin in human relationships as well as in this case in the animal world.

"Third, you graduates must realize that God is ever on your side. A great artist in Paris went out and painted a great picture. First he showed dives in that city, then homes of the wealthy, together with homes of those living in sheer poverty. All these he put on one canvas, leaving a place in the center for a large picture of Christ.

"There are millions who are jobless in this country but at the same time there is a crying need for men and women who will really do things worth while. As you go out into the world always remember that you alone are architects of your fate. We live in a world of social changes but after all we have to live in this world and it is up to us to adjust ourselves and our lives to this world and with God and right on our side, we will be able to overcome all handicaps and obstacles and come out victorious in the end."

Mrs. Charles Gossett presented the Spanish War medal to Octavie Willbanks for the best essay written by a member of the class on the causes and results of this war.

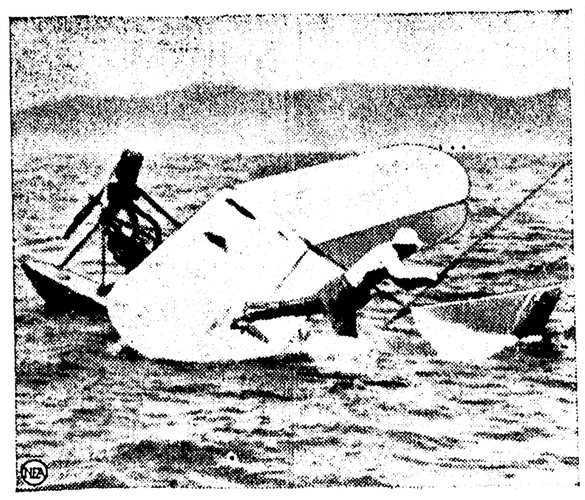

Mrs. Gordon Cummings presented the D. A. R. medal to Doris Adkins for the best work in American history. Her grade was announced as 97 4

Diplomas were presented by Mr. Thatcher to the members of the class.

GLIDER DIVES FISHING FOR THRILL

Angling for deep-sea fish in a glider is a thrilling sport, but it's apt to be disastrous for the glider and the pilot. Don Stevens, power-glider pilot found that out at Venice, Calif., when fishing for barracuda. Here he is battling a monster of the deep after having punctured a wing in the battle. Trips to the veteran's facility in Roanoke, and the government hospital in Washington in quest of his lost vision were to no avail. Then a few days ago, the "miracle" occurred.

About 4 a.m., Smith awoke and wanted some water. He turned on a light, a signal to others in the house that he was in need of attention. As he pulled the light cord he found to his utter amazement he could see everything in the room.

Smith blinked. "Is it real or am I dreaming?" he said.

It was not long before the stark reality dawned upon him.

"My God, my God, I can see again!" he shouted as relatives ran to his side.

Smith was gassed during the World war. He is about 40 years old. He has spent his bonus money for medicine and medical attention. He has no money, he said.

"But I'll get along somehow," he declared, "Now that I can see again, I can go back to work!"

Legend has it the ghosts of the six come back to haunt the castle, for the wife is supposed to have killed them, one after another, soon after marriage. Their bones are buried beneath the castle.

The duke presided in baronial style over the little community on the estate. His staff included two Scotland Yard detectives, his equerry, Austrian and English maids, the duke's Austrian chef and the other attendants who remained when the owner, the German Count Muenster, turned the chateau over to the couple.

Dudley Forwood, the equerry, took much of the routine of setting up housekeeping off the newlyweds' hands, leaving them free to enjoy the place.

The duke is living in a grander style than on his two previous stays in Austria, indicating, perhaps, that he has settled financial questions and is returning to the comforts to which he was accustomed as Prince of Wales and King of England.

LINDBERGH LAUDS ROCKET AVIATION

WORCESTER, Mass., June 5.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today saw in the rocket experiments of a publicity-shy university professor a possible answer to aviation's hope for a new high speed in transportation.

The aviator-scientist lauded the experimental work of Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clark university in a letter read at the Clark commencement exercises.

Colonel Lindbergh compared Goddard's research with the aeronautical pioneering of Langley and Wright 41 years ago.

"From the standpoint of commerce," Lindbergh wrote, "we must look to the rocket if we hope to attain speeds of transport above a few hundred miles an hour.

"As the airplane gave man freedom from the earth, the rocket offers him freedom from the air. * * * The rocket offers the only known possibility of sending instruments to altitudes above those reached by sounding balloons."

South Africa is threatened with a shortage of gold miners.

Applications not on file in the office by that time will not be given consideration, she said. man of the Washington legislative committee; T. W. Hughes, educational department manager; Walter D. Heckman, associate editor of the weekly; W. L. Stahl, editor of the weekly, Willis Owen, business analyst, and P. M. McEvoy, Washington correspondent and press agent.

Arriving at national headquarters shortly after Brinton had announced the resignations, Townsend refused to comment and went directly to his office where he was closeted with associates, described by Brinton as those likely to succeed to the organization's management.

Robert Townsend, 22-year-old son of the old age pension advocate, was in charge of headquarters today.

"We feel," the resignation statement said, "that our services are of no value to those who contribute to our salaries in view of your repeated public utterances in the press and on the platform attacking the president and his administration, whose support and good will we must have if we are to secure the enactment of the general welfare act during the next four years."

Townsend's public opposition to President Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization plan, Brinton said, first drew a reprimand from eight executives May 19. An editorial, Brinton said, signed by Townsend and published in the May 31 issue of the Townsend Weekly was direct cause of the resignation.

In the absence of Mayor Arnold Bernstein, who was unable to attend, the city of Monroe was represented by Commissioners W. D. H. Rodriguez and C. R. A question box and open house conducted by T. H. Ellis, proved interesting and instructive.

WOMACK TO HEAR ATTACK ON LAW

Constitutionality Of Civil Service Act Assailed In Suit

BATON ROUGE, La., June 5.—(AP)—The suit attacking constitutionality of the late Huey P. Long's civil service law was assigned today to Judge James D. Womack in district court here.

Eugene Stanley, former district attorney of Orleans parish, filed the petition for injunctive relief against the law yesterday in behalf of eight plaintiffs.

Plaintiffs claimed the law "created a state oligarchy for the purpose of dominating and controlling the employment of every person in the public service of the state, other than elective officials."

By empowering a state civil service commission to appoint employes of an officer, the suit complained, the commission "drove into the ranks of the state administration every elected official in the state of Louisiana because it took from him the control of his office, and placed it under the domination of the state administration."

Members of the commission, composed of the governor and other high state officials, and the state's financial officers were directed by the court yesterday to appear June 14 to show cause why a preliminary injunction against the law should not be granted. The commission also was ordered to submit its complete records for the scrutiny of the court.

The civil service law, act 22 of the second extraordinary session of 1934, was one of the many statutes Long had the legislature enact in building up his political "dictatorship" in Louisiana.

Stanley resigned as Orleans parish district attorney after his assistants had been replaced by the attorney general. Another of Long's laws made assistants of the Orleans parish district attorney appointive by the attorney general.

Colonel Lindbergh compared Goddard's research with the aeronautical pioneering of Langley and Wright 41 years ago.

"From the standpoint of commerce," Lindbergh wrote, "we must look to the rocket if we hope to attain speeds of transport above a few hundred miles an hour.

"As the airplane gave man freedom from the earth, the rocket offers him freedom from the air. * * * The rocket offers the only known possibility of sending instruments to altitudes above those reached by sounding balloons."

AMELIA PAUSES

FORTALEZA, Brazil, June 5.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart paused at this northeast Brazil seaport today to have the control apparatus of her round-the-world monoplane adjusted. She planned to leave about 5 a.m. tomorrow (3 a.m. eastern standard time) on a 287-mile hop to Natal, near South America's easternmost point.

South Africa is threatened with a shortage of gold miners.

PLAYGROUND MEETING

All persons who desire to assist in directing work on local municipal playgrounds this summer are instructed by Miss Lucyle Godwin, director of the municipal recreation department, to apply at her office in the recreation center, DeSiard street, between the hours of 8:30 and 11 a.m. Monday. Applications not on file in the office by that time will not be given consideration, she said. A three-day institute for the instruction of playground workers is proposed on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Present plans anticipate the re-opening of the playgrounds a week from tomorrow. The season will extend through June, July and August.

CONDITION IMPROVES

J. A. Taylor, 1904 South Grand street, is still a patient in the United States Veterans' hospital, Alexandria. His condition, however, is said to have improved somewhat. His son, J. A. Taylor, Jr., has returned home to spend a furlough granted by the navy. He is stationed at Norfolk, Va.

Arriving at national headquarters shortly after Brinton had announced the resignations, Townsend refused to comment and went directly to his office where he was closeted with associates, described by Brinton as those likely to succeed to the organization's management.

Robert Townsend, 22-year-old son of the old age pension advocate, was in charge of headquarters today.

"We feel," the resignation statement said, "that our services are of no value to those who contribute to our salaries in view of your repeated public utterances in the press and on the platform attacking the president and his administration, whose support and good will we must have if we are to secure the enactment of the general welfare act during the next four years."

Townsend's public opposition to President Rooseelt's supreme court reorganization plan, Brinton said, first drew a reprimand from eight executives May 19. An editorial, Brinton said, signed by Townsend and published in the May 31 issue of the Townsend Weekly was direct cause of the resignation.

consecutively, the longest period of time of any of the women members of the group.

The membership presented a traveling bag to President Moody as token of recognition of the distinguished service he has rendered.

Business men of Monroe and West Monroe gave a complimentary breakfast on Hotel Virginia roof, Saturday at 8 a.m. to honor Harrison Parkman, purchasing agent and director of the division of building operations and supplies, and Frank H. Ellis, assistant superintendent of the division of post-office service in Washington, D. C.

Fred Williamson, managing editor of the News-Star and Morning World, toastmaster, emphasized the breakfast was given as a compliment to the two officials for the extension and general improvement of postal service here and for the high degree of service that is being maintained.

In the absence of Mayor Arnold Bernstein, who was unable to attend, the city of Monroe was represented by Commissioners W. D. H. Rodriguez and C. R. Tidwell, and West Monroe was represented by Mayor C. C. Bell. The parish of Ouachita was represented by J. Lloyd Warren, president of the police jury. Short talks were made by Postmaster J. R. Wooten, J. L. Keenan, S. L. Digby and A. K. Kilpatrick.

Each of the two guests of honor delivered short talks in which they expressed appreciation of the honors bestowed.

The morning business session, which followed immediately after the breakfast, was devoted to the final business of the session.

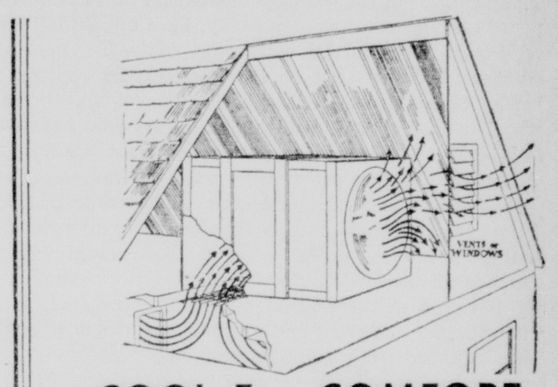

A question box and open house conducted by T. H. Ellis, proved interesting and instructive.

A Program To Meet Vital Needs

On July 8 next the people of Monroe will vote on one of the most important proposals that has been submitted to the electorate in many years.

The proposition is one involving the issue of $1,600,000 in bonds to raise funds for essential public improvements. The members of the commission-council, in a carefully prepared statement issued Thursday, have outlined the needs which are to be served in the proposals. To most of the citizens of Monroe this statement merely crystallizes what has long been evident to the public at large—the vital necessity that exists for extending the sanitary sewerage system, to adequately expand the power and light plant to meet constantly growing demand, to make the municipal transportation system more effective and economical in its operation, and to determine the feasibility of providing a better supply of water without the present expensive methods of purification.

Solution of these problems, which bear so intimately on the health, comfort and convenience of the public, has been attacked with courage and resourcefulness by the commission-council after canvassing every available means for rectifying situations that unless corrected offer serious menace to the well-being of the city.

Lack of adequate sanitary sewerage facilities in several important residential sections of the city has been the occasion of alarm and deep concern to the health authorities for many years, as well as to the public directly affected. This lack has itself contributed danger to the source of the city's water supply, aside from the insanitary conditions which it promotes in those areas that are not sufficiently protected by adequate sewerage facilities.

It is only necessary to make a tour along Bayou DeSiard and observe the means residents are forced to adopt in the disposal of sewage to become aware of the contamination of our water supply, and to realize the necessity for using expensive chemicals to make the drinking water safe for consumption.

The newer additions to the city, which long ago received assurance that these conveniences would be granted them as part of the privilege of incorporation in the municipal area, have every right to look for a fulfillment of that obligation which is provided for in the proposed bond issue.

The need of a larger and more adequate power and light plant is patent to every citizen who has taken the trouble to consider the effect of the greatly increased consumption of electricity in recent years, and particularly in recent months. The advent of the radio, air-conditioning systems for both business houses and private homes, and the modernization of stores and dwellings throughout the community have placed a burden on the present plant which has already reached the ultimate limit. A breakdown of any part of the present plant during the hot summer weather, when the demand is greatest, might conceivably result in a serious calamity involving interruption of service for an extensive period. Additions to the power and light plant sufficient to meet any demand in the next ten years are absolutely imperative.

Monroe is becoming more and more a large city. Business interests all over the land are focusing their attention on this community as the logical center for their operations. These newcomers, as well as prospective ones, have the right to look for ample protection of their investments, as well as protection of their health and general well-being through those facilities which are essential to a modern and well-equipped community.

If it is possible for Monroe to have a better supply of water—the most important factor in the public health—at lower cost than we now can get it, that should be provided. If our transportation system is inadequate and expensive, and the difficulty can be corrected by electrification, it should be done.

Facilities that rightfully belong to the public welfare, that are essential to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," are needful to civic progress. It is to meet this obligation that the city authorities have proposed the issue of $1,600,000 in bonds. The proposal involves no increase in taxation. The bonds are to be retired over a period of forty years from economies effected through the improvements themselves and the use of excess revenue which can rightfully be expected under the modernization program.

The voters will have an opportunity on July 8 of determining whether they want Monroe as a progressive community to fulfill its duty to its citizens or to go backward by denying to the people privileges that should be theirs through the inalienable right of citizenship.

She is acquainted with unhappiness . . .

So deep her woe, it is not lightly worn,
And only when alone does she reveal
The hidden pain she cannot help but feel . . .
Now there is no one near to see her mourn.

Her pride is great . . . She cannot help despise
The noisy, shallow evidence she hears
Of trouble that is wiped away by tears . . .
She hides her secret grief behind her eyes.

POWERS FACE ANARCHY

By BRUCE CATTON

If Europe does not finally manage to blunder into a war, it certainly won't be because the necessary amount of ill will is lacking. The combined Deutschland-Almeria incident is ample proof that to speak of the Spanish situation as a powder magazine is to state the case mildly.

It is proof of another thing, too, when you stop to think about it; that however imperfect the League of Nations may be, it is nevertheless an institution which, in the present state of civilization, the world cannot well get along without.

For what we are seeing in Spain is the sort of dangerous anarchy which comes when all pretense of disinterested international action is abandoned.

If this revolt could have begun four years ago, when the league was still a respected institution, and if the nations who have most to gain from the league's continued existence had found the courage to insist that its covenant be respected, we would not have had the ominous crisis that now exists.

A league patrol, in place of the sketchy and imperfect patrol that was called into being last winter, might have had some chance of isolating the trouble. It might have enabled Europe to go about its business in security, leaving the Spaniards to fight one another, if that seemed good to them, to determine who would rule them.

In that case, we would be having none of these frenzied complaints about Italian, Russian and German aid to one or the other of the contending parties. We would not have a German cruiser anchored in a rebel port to be bombed by a government plane. We would not have a German squadron bombing a government seaport.

Instead—assuming that league supervision of the patrol had been wholehearted—we would have a revolution which, sealed off from the rest of Europe, would be no more threatening to Europe's peace than one of the perennial clashes of outs and ins in Central America.

The point is that we do not have such a desirable state of affairs because the powers which would benefit most from it—England an France—permitted the league to fall into decay long before the Spanish revolt began. When Japan, Italy and Germany proved individually that a determined and ruthless government could flout the league with impunity, the stage was set for the war-breeding chaos we now have in Spain.

It may be impossible to revive the league. But the things that are happening in Spain—things which may so easily plunge all Europe into war—would seem to prove beyond a doubt that some sort of international organization, supported fearlessly by the great powers, must be established if Europe is not to stumble into absolute disaster.

A BOOK REVIEW

FINDS DUST CLOUDS LACK SILVER LININGS

Don't read "The Tree Falls South" if you insist on sweetness, light and happy-ever-after climax in your fiction. But if you want to know what life is like in the "dust bowl," and what these recurrent dust storms mean in terms of plain, every-day human suffering—then read the book and ponder over it.

For this novel, written by Wellington Roe is a blunt and profoundly stirring description of the sort of thing that has been happening to hard-working, decent, independent Americans in a region where drouth and wind are whipping once-prosperous farms to tatters.

Mr. Roe shows us a parched farming area somewhere in western Kansas. A long dry spell has baked the young crops and turned topsoil to powder. The winds come to complete the ruin, whirling the dirt away from the fields, filling houses with it, leaving the farmers completely destitute.

Driven frantic, the farmers try to organize some sort of protest that will bring effective relief. Their effort is a pitiful failure. It winds up with an unintended, meaningless riot in the county seat in which one man is killed, others are jailed, the protest is choked off—and, by implication, the whole region is left to go on slipping unchecked into destruction.

Considered strictly as a novel, the book has defects. Tragedy is piled on tragedy, heartbreak on heartbreak, with monotonous regularity. But life itself does precisely that, now and then, and if Mr. Roe cannot find any silver lining to the southwest's dust clouds, the fault may be the dust clouds', not his. In any case, his book is sensitive and deeply moving.

'NAZI GOVERNMENT SATISFIED FOR PRESENT'

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

The magazine illustrators, most of whom live in New York, are in a deserved lather over an iniquitous bit of tax legislation the ruthless tax barons are trying to foist on them. Illustrators have no liking for figures—unless they are human—and this latest dish has streaked a red across the West 67th street artistic colony moon.

The City of New York has decreed that the illustrators—such men as Howard Chandler Christy, Dean Cornwell, Arthur William Brown, Bradshaw Crandell, Lyendecker and such—are mere tradesmen and must pay the city sales tax on their drawings.

The artists say they are professional people, as do most sensible thinkers, selling their services and not hawking tangible property. It is their belief, backed up by years of cultural reasoning, that they translate prose into pictures.

The fact is there is no sale of the pictures to magazines. Artists give the magazines only the right to reproduce the drawings, which then are returned. Often they may give them to friends, but otherwise they are kept to receive often high prices after the artist has passed from this vale of tears.

The state, which is high-handed in its tax bludgeoning, has slapped on the artist the Unincorporated Business Tax, four per cent of net income. Lawyers, doctors, accountants and so forth are exempt, but according to the state snoopers artists are in the same class with pants-pressers, ditch diggers and delicatessens. In other words the studio has become a shop.

But the illustrators are not going to take the jolt lying down. They have already started a "Workers Arise" campaign, trying to bring all the art clubs together and form an organization like the Will Hays office, the Actors Equity and the Dramatists' Guild. In this way they hope to handle what they consider unfairness by competent counsel and advisors.

The most notable movie come-back of the year, of course, is that of Janet Gaynor. At one time she was in No. 2 position, right next to Mary Pickford, as a boxoffice draw. And then came new figures to the screen and a chilliness for Miss Gaynor at the studios. She was to be dropped as a star and could take what they offered as a featured player. But she had one final fling in "A Star Was Born," which oddly portrayed a falling star and a sudden rise. The same film also established Dorothy Parker as a script writer after many months of knocking around the studios without making much impression.

Add odd complexes: A woman of social prominence when guests decline to attend her rather bizarre cocktail parties circulates reports they are suffering from dreadful maladies or are secreted in sanitariums.

When I see one of those pipe-smoking Englishmen in loose tweeds barging along I think of Jack Donahue's gag in "Sonny." When a Britisher introduced himself by saying, "I'm an Englishman," Donahue replied: "Well my clothes don't fit me either." But when Donahue played in England they reversed the gag.

I talked to a gentleman the other day who had planned since a young man to retire at 50 and finally got around to it at the age of 55. His plans included a trip around the world to be followed by living six months in California and six in the east. He has been at his job of loafing for six weeks and is a trifle bewildered. He started around the world, got as far as San Francisco and abandoned the idea. He went fishing for two weeks and was bored. He sums it up with this: "Vacations are fine if you only have a job to return to when they are over."

Prodigy paragraph: One of the interesting little magazines to reach me is The Sandalwood Herald, whose editor, April Oursler, is 11. She is the precocious daughter of the Editor Fulton Oursler and publishes her pamphlet at her home in West Falmouth, Mass.

A hat dealer tells me of a patron who has a standing order for two new hats of the identical shape and color monthly and has had for more than ten years. The customer is not particularly a smart dresser but his early years were is direst poverty and much of the time he wore a tattered cap the year around. He just likes the feel of a new hat and indulges his desire.

Tom Mix, in his movie days, was one of the heaviest buyers of hats in the world—all of them wide-brimmed, white sombreros. He had a room in his Beverly Hills mansion completely filled with them, several hundred. He did not wear them himself but liked to give them away to his dinner guests as souvenirs.

This pathetic note was received the other day from one of the small hotels in the 30's: "I arrived in New York to take a job two hours ago, homesick, lonely and almost ready for the river. I know no one in the city and am writing you because I know you through your column back home. I am wondering how many other girls there overwhelmed by the city's loneliness are who just arrived tonight and are and immensity?"

VETS BUREAU MANAGER COMMENTS ON POLICIES

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 5.—(Special)—Pointing out that the bill allowing renewal of government term insurance policies for a third five-year period became law on June 1, B. C. Moore, manager of the veterans' administration office at New Orleans, explained in a statement Saturday that all such policy holders who have not exercised their optional right to change to another form of policy and whose second five-year period for which all premiums are paid expired after January 24, 1937, may renew for a third five-year period without medical examination upon payment of premiums, at the attained age, from expiration of present five-year period to current date, provided application is submitted within five months from June 1, 1937, date of the amendatory act.

Mr. Moore stated, however, that in order to obtain protection, veterans should make application immediately where the policy expired subsequent to January 24 last; or before the expiration of the present five-year period in policies still in force.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

(Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

There are so many different names for the various forms of arthritis or rheumatism that anyone but a specialist has a hard time distinguishing them.

Sometimes the rheumatic condition progresses steadily until it affects most of the joints of the body. As it progresses, there are permanent changes. This is usually called chronic arthritis, but it is also known as degenerative arthritis, hypertrophic arthritis, osteo-arthritis and arthritis deformans.

In the very late stages, this condition may involve the joints of the spine when it becomes known as osteo-arthritic spondylitis. The average man might call this chronic lumbago or backache.

There does not appear to be any single cause for this condition and many experts are inclined to believe that the cause is not only an infection but, associated with that, a disturbance of metabolism or digestion and absorption of food in the body, as well as possible mechanical factors.

This type of rheumatism is more common in the United States than it is in either the polar region or the tropics. It affects both men and women and is most likely to occur just after 40 years of age.

Sometimes the trouble begins in a joint which has been injured by some sort of an accident. Frequently it occurs in the knee joints of athletes who have been troubled with broken or loose cartilages.

Quite frequently it occurs in extremely fat people whose leg joints are subjected to a good deal of wear and tear. Sometimes acute rheumatism gradually becomes chronic or changes over into the chronic type.

While the condition may seem to affect only one knee, studies of the other knee will usually show a certain amount of infection, so that it is rather the tendency of this condition to affect the joints on both sides of the body. Knee joints are most frequently affected in women and the hip joints in men.

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein

WHILE efforts are being made to discourage "stunt" flights, Representative Ashbrook of Ohio has introduced a resolution in Congress providing for the carrying of stamped mail by other than the regular carriers, thus permitting private persons to carry mail on special flights or exhibitions.

Another resolution is one introduced by Senator Copeland of New York, providing for lower airmail rates and permitting the use of postal cards in airmail at 2 cents each. Another airmail classification would be "lettergrams," or regular size letters folded in and sealed without use of an envelope. These would be flown at 3 cents each. The regular airmail rate, also, would be reduced to 5 cents a half ounce.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—There seems to be no immediate prospect that the administration will officially promote consumer cooperatives, as some business men have feared.

But hundreds of minor New Dealers have taken the matter into their own hands and established a series of small but growing cooperative enterprises in the capital. This group includes a considerable number of employes of the several federal agencies, which in one way or another have had contact with phases of the cooperative movement in the last four years.

Last year, when Roosevelt appointed a committee of six to study the cooperative movement in Europe there was some disturbance among American merchants and tradesmen who feared the committee's study might be a prelude to an active government program aimed at extending the movement in the United States.

The committee has returned and made its report without any drastic recommendations. Some members urged the extending to consumer cooperatives the same kind of credit aid the government gives to farmers' purchasing and marketing cooperatives. Establishment of an information service for cooperatives, similar on a small scale to what the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce is to industry, was recommended.

No action has been taken on the reports, but they serve as a reliable source of information, and to some extent have helped stimulate cooperative enterprises among Washingtonians in their position as consumers and private citizens.

Turning Them Away

The newest "co-op" is the Rochdale Restaurant, Inc., behind whose establishment Chairman Jacob S. Baker of the president's committee has been a moving spirit. More than a hundred persons subscribed to shares of stock and opened it at a central spot with a block of the state department, interior department, WPA, PWA, SEC, the Social Security Board and other government agencies. It has been turning people away and plans to expand.

Operating on Rochdale cooperative principles, it sells shares of stock at $5, limits purchases to 40 shares per member, can pay a maximum 4 per cent dividend on shares, returns most of the profits to patrons and pays union wages.

The Washington Consumer's club has 480 dues-paying members. Its aims and activities include promotion of cooperatives and legislation for consumer protection, cooperative library and local news service, public meetings, arrangements for club discounts on member purchases of milk, fuel, jewelry, books and men's clothing and affiliation with a cooperative mail order house in New York.

There is a co-op grocery store which serves buying units in different sections of Washington and suburbs, with shares held by about 175 members. Selected gasoline and oil are sold by another incorporated cooperative, which has about 300 members and recently paid a patronage refund of 8 per cent after six months of operation. The Co-op Fashion shop has blossomed out in the same block with the RFC building and advertises "well tailored coats, suits, toppers, dresses, millinery."

Credit Unions Organized

At least three groups within the government are promoting the cooperative housing projects.

About 88 cooperative credit unions have been organized, mostly under the federal credit union law. There's cooperative insurance for sale and a large number of cooperative ventures appear to be in the planning or discussion stage.

Government agencies with cooperative phases include: Farm Credit Administration, which has banking facilities for farmer purchasing and marketing co-ops and fosters and helps organize credit unions. A Program To Meet Vital Needs

On July 8 next the people of Monroe will vote on one of the most important proposals that has been submitted to the electorate in many years.

The proposition is one involving the issue of $1,600,000 in bonds to raise funds for essential public improvements. The members of the commission-council, in a carefully prepared statement issued Thursday, have outlined the needs which are to be served in the proposals. To most of the citizens of Monroe this statement merely crystallizes what has long been evident to the public at large—the vital necessity that exists for extending the sanitary sewerage system, to adequately expand the power and light plant to meet constantly growing demand, to make the municipal transportation system more effective and economical in its operation, and to determine the feasibility of providing a better supply of water without the present expensive methods of purification.

Solution of these problems, which bear so intimately on the health, comfort and convenience of the public, has been attacked with courage and resourcefulness by the commission-council after canvassing every available means for rectifying situations that unless corrected offer serious menace to the well-being of the city.

Lack of adequate sanitary sewerage facilities in several important residential sections of the city has been the occasion of alarm and deep concern to the health authorities for many years, as well as to the public directly affected. This lack has itself contributed danger to the source of the city's water supply, aside from the insanitary conditions which it promotes in those areas that are not sufficiently protected by adequate sewerage facilities.

It is only necessary to make a tour along Bayou DeSiard and observe the means residents are forced to adopt in the disposal of sewage to become aware of the contamination of our water supply, and to realize the necessity for using expensive chemicals to make the drinking water safe for consumption.

The newer additions to the city, which long ago received assurance that these conveniences would be granted them as part of the privilege of incorporation in the municipal area, have every right to look for a fulfillment of that obligation which is provided for in the proposed bond issue.

The need of a larger and more adequate power and light plant is patent to every citizen who has taken the trouble to consider the effect of the greatly increased consumption of electricity in recent years, and particularly in recent months. The advent of the radio, air-conditioning systems for both business houses and private homes, and the modernization of stores and dwellings throughout the community have placed a burden on the present plant which has already reached the ultimate limit. A breakdown of any part of the present plant during the hot summer weather, when the demand is greatest, might conceivably result in a serious calamity involving interruption of service for an extensive period. Additions to the power and light plant sufficient to meet any demand in the next ten years are absolutely imperative.

Monroe is becoming more and more a large city. Business interests all over the land are focusing their attention on this community as the logical center for their operations. These newcomers, as well as prospective ones, have the right to look for ample protection of their investments, as well as protection of their health and general well-being through those facilities which are essential to a modern and well-equipped community.

If it is possible for Monroe to have a better supply of water—the most important factor in the public health—at lower cost than we now can get it, that should be provided. If our transportation system is inadequate and expensive, and the difficulty can be corrected by electrification, it should be done.

Facilities that rightfully belong to the public welfare, that are essential to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," are needful to civic progress. It is to meet this obligation that the city authorities have proposed the issue of $1,600,000 in bonds. The proposal involves no increase in taxation. The bonds are to be retired over a period of forty years from economies effected through the improvements themselves and the use of excess revenue which can rightfully be expected under the modernization program.

The voters will have an opportunity on July 8 of determining whether they want Monroe as a progressive community to fulfill its duty to its citizens or to go backward by denying to the people privileges that should be theirs through the inalienable right of citizenship.

Talking economy while spending money is the congressional version of the technique needed for attainment of a balanced budget.

RHYME AND REASON

By ANNE CAMPBELL

A SECRET GRIEF

She hides a secret grief behind her eyes
So thoroughly the world would never guess
She is acquainted with unhappiness . . .
I speak to her . . . Her smiling voice replies.

So deep her woe, it is not lightly worn,
And only when alone does she reveal
The hidden pain she cannot help but feel . . .
Now there is no one near to see her mourn.

Her pride is great . . . She cannot help despise
The noisy, shallow evidence she hears
Of trouble that is wiped away by tears . . .
She hides her secret grief behind her eyes.

POWERS FACE ANARCHY

By BRUCE CATTON

If Europe does not finally manage to blunder into a war, it certainly won't be because the necessary amount of ill will is lacking. The combined Deutschland-Almeria incident is ample proof that to speak of the Spanish situation as a powder magazine is to state the case mildly.

It is proof of another thing, too, when you stop to think about it; that however imperfect the League of Nations may be, it is nevertheless an institution which, in the present state of civilization, the world cannot well get along without.

For what we are seeing in Spain is the sort of dangerous anarchy which comes when all pretense of disinterested international action is abandoned.

If this revolt could have begun four years ago, when the league was still a respected institution, and if the nations who have most to gain from the league's continued existence had found the courage to insist that its covenant be respected, we would not have had the ominous crisis that now exists.

A league patrol, in place of the sketchy and imperfect patrol that was called into being last winter, might have had some chance of isolating the trouble. It might have enabled Europe to go about its business in security, leaving the Spaniards to fight one another, if that seemed good to them, to determine who would rule them.

In that case, we would be having none of these frenzied complaints about Italian, Russian and German aid to one or the other of the contending parties. We would not have a German cruiser anchored in a rebel port to be bombed by a government plane. We would not have a German squadron bombing a government seaport.

Instead—assuming that league supervision of the patrol had been wholehearted—we would have a revolution which, sealed off from the rest of Europe, would be no more threatening to Europe's peace than one of the perennial clashes of outs and ins in Central America.

The point is that we do not have such a desirable state of affairs because the powers which would benefit most from it—England an France—permitted the league to fall into decay long before the Spanish revolt began. When Japan, Italy and Germany proved individually that a determined and ruthless government could flout the league with impunity, the stage was set for the war-breeding chaos we now have in Spain.

It may be impossible to revive the league. But the things that are happening in Spain—things which may so easily plunge all Europe into war—would seem to prove beyond a doubt that some sort of international organization, supported fearlessly by the great powers, must be established if Europe is not to stumble into absolute disaster.

A BOOK REVIEW

FINDS DUST CLOUDS LACK SILVER LININGS

Don't read "The Tree Falls South" if you insist on sweetness, light and happy-ever-after climax in your fiction. But if you want to know what life is like in the "dust bowl," and what these recurrent dust storms mean in terms of plain, every-day human suffering—then read the book and ponder over it.

For this novel, written by Wellington Roe is a blunt and profoundly stirring description of the sort of thing that has been happening to hard-working, decent, independent Americans in a region where drouth and wind are whipping once-prosperous farms to tatters.

Mr. Roe shows us a parched farming area somewhere in western Kansas. A long dry spell has baked the young crops and turned topsoil to powder. The winds come to complete the ruin, whirling the dirt away from the fields, filling houses with it, leaving the farmers completely destitute.

Driven frantic, the farmers try to organize some sort of protest that will bring effective relief. Their effort is a pitiful failure. It winds up with an unintended, meaningless riot in the county seat in which one man is killed, others are jailed, the protest is choked off—and, by implication, the whole region is left to go on slipping unchecked into destruction.

Considered strictly as a novel, the book has defects. Tragedy is piled on tragedy, heartbreak on heartbreak, with monotonous regularity. But life itself does precisely that, now and then, and if Mr. Roe cannot find any silver lining to the southwest's dust clouds, the fault may be the dust clouds', not his. In any case, his book is sensitive and deeply moving.

'NAZI GOVERNMENT SATISFIED FOR PRESENT'

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

The magazine illustrators, most of whom live in New York, are in a deserved lather over an iniquitous bit of tax legislation the ruthless tax barons are trying to foist on them. Illustrators have no liking for figures—unless they are human—and this latest dish has streaked a red across the West 67th street artistic colony moon.

The City of New York has decreed that the illustrators—such men as Howard Chandler Christy, Dean Cornwell, Arthur William Brown, Bradshaw Crandell, Lyendecker and such—are mere tradesmen and must pay the city sales tax on their drawings.

The artists say they are professional people, as do most sensible thinkers, selling their services and not hawking tangible property. It is their belief, backed up by years of cultural reasoning, that they translate prose into pictures.

The fact is there is no sale of the pictures to magazines. Artists give the magazines only the right to reproduce the drawings, which then are returned. Often they may give them to friends, but otherwise they are kept to receive often high prices after the artist has passed from this vale of tears.

The state, which is high-handed in its tax bludgeoning, has slapped on the artist the Unincorporated Business Tax, four per cent of net income. Lawyers, doctors, accountants and so forth are exempt, but according to the state snoopers artists are in the same class with pants-pressers, ditch diggers and delicatessners. In other words the studio has become a shop.

But the illustrators are not going to take the jolt lying down. They have already started a "Workers Arise" campaign, trying to bring all the art clubs together and form an organization like the Will Hays office, the Actors Equity and the Dramatists' Guild. In this way they hope to handle what they consider unfairness by competent counsel and advisors.

The most notable movie come-back of the year, of course, is that of Janet Gaynor. At one time she was in No. 2 position, right next to Mary Pickford, as a boxoffice draw. And then came new figures to the screen and a chilliness for Miss Gaynor at the studios. She was to be dropped as a star and could take what they offered as a featured player. But she had one final fling in "A Star Was Born," which oddly portrayed a falling star and a sudden rise. The same film also established Dorothy Parker as a script writer after many months of knocking around the studios without making much impression.

Add odd complexes: A woman of social prominence when guests decline to attend her rather bizarre cocktail parties circulates reports they are suffering from dreadful maladies or are secreted in sanitariums.

When I see one of those pipe-smoking Englishmen in loose tweeds barging along I think of Jack Donahue's gag in "Sonny." When a Britisher introduced himself by saying, "I'm an Englishman," Donahue replied: "Well my clothes don't fit me either." But when Donahue played in England they reversed the gag.

I talked to a gentleman the other day who had planned since a young man to retire at 50 and finally got around to it at the age of 55. His plans included a trip around the world to be followed by living six months in California and six in the east. He has been at his job of loafing for six weeks and is a trifle bewildered. He started around the world, got as far as San Francisco and abandoned the idea. He went fishing for two weeks and was bored. He sums it up with this: "Vacations are fine if you only have a job to return to when they are over."

Prodigy paragraph: One of the interesting little magazines to reach me is The Sandalwood Herald, whose editor, April Oursler, is 11. She is the precocious daughter of the Editor Fulton Oursler and publishes her pamphlet at her home in West Falmouth, Mass.

A hat dealer tells me of a patron who has a standing order for two new hats of the identical shape and color monthly and has had for more than ten years. The customer is not particularly a smart dresser but his early years were is direst poverty and much of the time he wore a tattered cap the year around. He just likes the feel of a new hat and indulges his desire.

Tom Mix, in his movie days, was one of the heaviest buyers of hats in the world—all of them wide-brimmed, white sombreros. He had a room in his Beverly Hills mansion completely filled with them, several hundred. He did not wear them himself but liked to give them away to his dinner guests as souvenirs.

This pathetic note was received the other day from one of the small hotels in the 30's: "I arrived in New York to take a job two hours ago, homesick, lonely and almost ready for the river. I know no one in the city and am writing you because I know you through your column back home. I am wondering how many other girls there overwhelmed by the city's loneliness are who just arrived tonight and are and immensity?"

VETS BUREAU MANAGER COMMENTS ON POLICIES

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 5.—(Special)—Pointing out that the bill allowing renewal of government term insurance policies for a third five-year period became law on June 1, B. C. Moore, manager of the veterans' administration office at New Orleans, explained in a statement Saturday that all such policy holders who have not exercised their optional right to change to another form of policy and whose second five-year period for which all premiums are paid expired after January 24, 1937, may renew for a third five-year period without medical examination upon payment of premiums, at the attained age, from expiration of present five-year period to current date, provided application is submitted within five months from June 1, 1937, date of the amendatory act.

Mr. Moore stated, however, that in order to obtain protection, veterans should make application immediately where the policy expired subsequent to January 24 last; or before the expiration of the present five-year period in policies still in force.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

(Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

There are so many different names for the various forms of arthritis or rheumatism that anyone but a specialist has a hard time distinguishing them.

Sometimes the rheumatic condition progresses steadily until it affects most of the joints of the body. As it progresses, there are permanent changes. This is usually called chronic arthritis, but it is also known as degenerative arthritis, hypertrophic arthritis, osteo-arthritis and arthritis deformans.

In the very late stages, this condition may involve the joints of the spine when it becomes known as osteo-arthritic spondylitis. The average man might call this chronic lumbago or backache.

There does not appear to be any single cause for this condition and many experts are inclined to believe that the cause is not only an infection but, associated with that, a disturbance of metabolism or digestion and absorption of food in the body, as well as possible mechanical factors.

This type of rheumatism is more common in the United States than it is in either the polar region or the tropics. It affects both men and women and is most likely to occur just after 40 years of age.

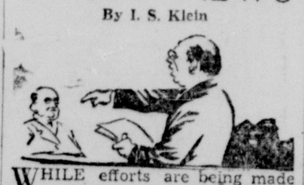

Sometimes the trouble begins in a joint which has been injured by some sort of an accident. Frequently it occurs in the knee joints of athletes who have been troubled with broken or loose cartilages.

Quite frequently it occurs in extremely fat people whose leg joints are subjected to a good deal of wear and tear. Sometimes acute rheumatism gradually becomes chronic or changes over into the chronic type.

While the condition may seem to affect only one knee, studies of the other knee will usually show a certain amount of infection, so that it is rather the tendency of this condition to affect the joints on both sides of the body. Knee joints are most frequently affected in women and the hip joints in men.

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein

WHILE efforts are being made to discourage "stunt" flights, Representative Ashbrook of Ohio has introduced a resolution in Congress providing for the carrying of stamped mail by other than the regular carriers, thus permitting private persons to carry mail on special flights or exhibitions.

Another resolution is one introduced by Senator Copeland of New York, providing for lower airmail rates and permitting the use of postal cards in airmail at 2 cents each. Another airmail classification would be "lettergrams," or regular size letters folded in and sealed without use of an envelope. These would be flown at 3 cents each. The regular airmail rate, also, would be reduced to 5 cents a half ounce.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—There seems to be no immediate prospect that the administration will officially promote consumer cooperatives, as some business men have feared.

But hundreds of minor New Dealers have taken the matter into their own hands and established a series of small but growing cooperative enterprises in the capital. This group includes a considerable number of employes of the several federal agencies, which in one way or another have had contact with phases of the cooperative movement in the last four years.

Last year, when Roosevelt appointed a committee of six to study the cooperative movement in Europe there was some disturbance among American merchants and tradesmen who feared the committee's study might be a prelude to an active government program aimed at extending the movement in the United States.

The committee has returned and made its report without any drastic recommendations. Some members urged the extending to consumer cooperatives the same kind of credit aid the government gives to farmers' purchasing and marketing cooperatives. Establishment of an information service for cooperatives, similar on a small scale to what the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce is to industry, was recommended.

No action has been taken on the reports, but they serve as a reliable source of information, and to some extent have helped stimulate cooperative enterprises among Washingtonians in their position as consumers and private citizens.

Turning Them Away

The newest "co-op" is the Rochdale Restaurant, Inc., behind whose establishment Chairman Jacob S. Baker of the president's committee has been a moving spirit. More than a hundred persons subscribed to shares of stock and opened it at a central spot with a block of the state department, interior department, WPA, PWA, SEC, the Social Security Board and other government agencies. It has been turning people away and plans to expand.

Operating on Rochdale cooperative principles, it sells shares of stock at $5, limits purchases to 40 shares per member, can pay a maximum 4 per cent dividend on shares, returns most of the profits to patrons and pays union wages.

The Washington Consumer's club has 480 dues-paying members. Its aims and activities include promotion of cooperatives and legislation for consumer protection, cooperative library and local news service, public meetings, arrangements for club discounts on member purchases of milk, fuel, jewelry, books and men's clothing and affiliation with a cooperative mail order house in New York.

There is a co-op grocery store which serves buying units in different sections of Washington and suburbs, with shares held by about 175 members. Selected gasoline and oil are sold by another incorporated cooperative, which has about 300 members and recently paid a patronage refund of 8 per cent after six months of operation. The Co-op Fashion shop has blossomed out in the same block with the RFC building and advertises "well tailored coats, suits, toppers, dresses, millinery."

RAYVILLE HOT WEATHER WATER RATE TEN CENTS FOR THOUSAND GALLONS

RAYVILLE, La., June 5.—(Special)—A thousand gallons for a dime, with a minimum rate of $1.000 per month, is the rate Rayville home owners will pay for water during the summer months, which include the months of June, July, August and September.

The adjusted water rates have recently been adopted by the Rayville town council for the purpose of assisting property owners to keep flowers and shrubs in the town alive during the hot months. These low rates do not apply to business establishments.

The practice of lowering water rates was used by the town of Rayville during the summers of 1935 and 1936 but the method used in figuring the cost to the home owner was different. The owners' bills for the summer months of 1934 were averaged and the average was used as the maximum amount charged in the summers of 1936 and 1937. The rate adopted for 1937 places a standard charge upon everyone.

To show a comparison of the new rates in effect for the summer, the winter rates were as follows: Up to 2,500 gallons, minimum 1.00; from 2,500 gallon to 5,000 gallons, 40 cents per thousand; from 5,000 to 20,000, 35 cents; 20,000 to 50,000, 30 cents; and 50,000 to 100,000, 25 cents.

FARMERS SIGN CONTRACT FOR SELLING POTATOES

JENA, La., June 5.—(Special)—Contracts have been signed by LaSalle parish farmers for ten carloads of potatoes at the price of $1.10 per hundred pounds, according to A. P. Willis, secretary of the LaSalle parish farm bureau.

Several carloads of the potatoes have been shipped. The farmers are bringing their product to Jena for shipment. Although a big profit will not be made, the farmers do not think that they will lose money on them because LaSalle parish farms average around 200 bushels per acre.

BOLL WEEVIL EMERGENCE GREATER IN MOREHOUSE

BASTROP, La., June 5.—(Special)—Emergence of the boll weevil is greater in Morehouse parish at this time than it has been in a number of years, according to T. H. Milliken, parish agricultural agent. The agent is urging all farmers to watch for over-winter weevils and where they are heavy to check them by pre-square dusting.

Nearly all key industries in Belgium are operating at capacity.

ACTIVITIES BRISK AT POTATO SHEDS

JONESBORO, La., June 5.—(Special)—Activity among the potato sheds in and around Jonesboro has been brisk for several days, those at Jonesboro, Chatham, Quitman and Hodge indicating that competition is keen. To date, there are 13 companies with representatives on the ground and shed space provided for the packers and graders. Eleven carloads of grade No. 1 potatoes have been shipped over the Rock Island lines, paying a price of $1.10 for U. S. No. 1 and only 35 cents for the No. 2 grade.

The quality this year is better than last year, but the yield is considerably less.

The green tomato market opened June 4 with four buyers established throughout the parish.

This is a comparatively new industry in the parish of Jackson and each year finds several additional participants among the farmers.

The foreign market and the cannery at Hodge afford an outlet for most of the produce of the farmers and provide ready cash that relieves the strain under which the farmer has to operate at this time of the year. Each year finds the enterprise more tempting for the new farmer, and with the seasons favorable, the independence of a large element of the people of the parish will be assured.

India, slowly being modernized, has adopted a six-year program of road development. New water supply systems are being installed in many parts of the country.

STORY RE-ELECTED HEAD OF PARISH POLICE JURY

BASTROP, La., June 5.—(Special)—C. N. Story, Morehouse parish police jury member from the fourth ward, was re-elected president of the body for the ensuing year at the regular June meeting of the jury. Mr. Story has been serving as president for the past few months, having been elected to fill the unexpired term of J. H. Gibson who was recalled. The police jury elects a president for the one-year term in June each year.

The paving of the Bastrop-Collinston highway was urged by the police jury, and a resolution submitted by W. B. Gladney, fourth ward member, was unanimously adopted and sent to the state highway commission.

RAYVILLE HOT WEATHER WATER RATE TEN CENTS FOR THOUSAND GALLONS

RAYVILLE, La., June 5.—(Special)—A thousand gallons for a dime, with a minimum rate of $1.000 per month, is the rate Rayville home owners will pay for water during the summer months, which include the months of June, July, August and September.

The adjusted water rates have recently been adopted by the Rayville town council for the purpose of assisting property owners to keep flowers and shrubs in the town alive during the hot months. These low rates do not apply to business establishments.

The practice of lowering water rates was used by the town of Rayville during the summers of 1935 and 1936 but the method used in figuring the cost to the home owner was different. The owners' bills for the summer months of 1934 were averaged and the average was used as the maximum amount charged in the summers of 1936 and 1937. The rate adopted for 1937 places a standard charge upon everyone.

To show a comparison of the new rates in effect for the summer, the winter rates were as follows: Up to 2,500 gallons, minimum 1.00; from 2,500 gallon to 5,000 gallons, 40 cents per thousand; from 5,000 to 20,000, 35 cents; 20,000 to 50,000, 30 cents; and 50,000 to 100,000, 25 cents.

FARMERS SIGN CONTRACT FOR SELLING POTATOES

JENA, La., June 5.—(Special)—Contracts have been signed by LaSalle parish farmers for ten carloads of potatoes at the price of $1.10 per hundred pounds, according to A. P. Willis, secretary of the LaSalle parish farm bureau.

Several carloads of the potatoes have been shipped. The farmers are bringing their product to Jena for shipment. Although a big profit will not be made, the farmers do not think that they will lose money on them because LaSalle parish farms average around 200 bushels per acre.

LIBRARY SYSTEM WILL BE OPENED

Leche And Long To Speak At Inauguration Of Tri-Parish Service

BATON ROUGE, La., June 5.—(Special)—The south's first tri-parish library will be formally opened June 12 when the Louisiana Library commission launches its demonstration of library service in Winn, Grant and Jackson parishes, it was announced today by Miss Essae M. Culver, executive secretary of the commission.

The demonstration, first in the United States covering three parishes or counties and financed and directed by a state agency, will continue for one year. It is being financed jointly by the library commission, which will direct the project, and by the state board of education, which has allocated $10,000 for the project, and it is a result of Governor Richard W. Leche's interest in library development.

The formal opening will be held at 4 p.m., June 12, at Winnfield, where the headquarters library is located. Governor Leche, Lieutenant-Governor Earl Long and other state and parish officials are among those scheduled to speak, and J. O. Modisette of Jennings, chairman of the commission, will preside. The Grant parish unit of the library will be opened on the same day with ceremonies at Colfax at 10:30 a.m. Opening ceremonies for Jackson parish will be held later.

More than 5,000 books have already been shipped to the three parishes for distribution among the 31,000 white persons who reside in the area. The tri-parish library will operate as a regional unit with one headquarters library under the direction of a trained librarian, with branches at strategic points throughout the three parishes served and with books distributed also from a bookmobile, fitted up as a miniature library. Miss Mary Harris of Minden is librarian in charge of the project, with Miss Bess Vaughan of Ruston as her assistant.

The opening ceremonies at both Colfax and Winnfield will be open to the general public.

We are observing "Children's Day" on the second Sunday in June and we are collectin: e'' saving our offerings. At 9:45 every teacher should be in his place and every pupil should be right there. Let us get out of the ruts and do something worth while for our Church school. The morning sermon subject will be:: "Sermon Without a Bible." Come and hear it. In the evening, at 7:45, the pastor will give a lecture on "Baseball and Religion." Mr. R. Burnett, the well known baseball magnate, and his entire team of ball players, and his staff have accepted the minister's invitation to this service. The preacher has been for years an ardent fan and knows the game. Professor Theophilus Fitz, the well known voice teacher and soloist of Shreveport and Los Angeles, is expected here to begin a music revival on Friday night.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont At Catalpa Street
Ernest Holloway, Minister

'The Christian's Single Purpose" and "The Superior Person's Attitude Toward all People" are the subjects of our meditations. The first deals with the aim of the God-fearer; the second presents the views of the Saviour, whose mission was service, enlightment and character development. The progress of the Kingdom, the honor of God and the glory of Jesus Christ depend to a great extent upon Christians. As members of His Household and the Redeemed of the Lord, what is our one end and views of people, even the folk who may despise and hate us? The Bible school is holding its own. With your support and presence this will be the most satisfactory summer ever. Why not join us today in the study of the Word? Your attendance will encourage the faithfuls and lead some one else to enroll. The First Presbyterian church seeks to lift the fallen, to inspire the weak, to stabilize the fickle, to present Truth and to glorify God. If you worship with us today you may receive a blessing and we know you will please our Heavenly Father.

Let us insure this, and God will do the rest for us. We shall be under the protection of His good Providence, and all things shall work together in our behalf. The epistle teaches us the love of God, and how it ought to operate in making us love our fellowmen. While the Holy Gospel persuades us to be in earnest in accepting the call of God to the great supper which divine love has prepared. Let them praise the name of the Lord; for he commanded, and they were created." (Ps. 148). The lesson sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-All. He is Divine Principle, Love, the Universal Cause, the only Creator, and there is no other self-existence." (p. 331).

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Luke 8:11—"The seed is the word of God." There is vitality in words. Plant them and they spring into life, growing into immeasurable harvests. Civilization, education and religion all come from the sowing of words into fecund soil of the human soul. The turning point in life is where the words fitly spoken take root. "In the beginning was the word"—at every beginning is the word. Jesus describes Himself as the sower of the Word of God. His training of the 12 was to make them expert farmers of the spirit. So we are called to our task which is to be sowers of words. Many of our words will be wasted, no doubt, sown on rocky soil or among thorns, but we are to sow and to spare not. Nature is lavish with her seeds, producing and scattering far more than will ever grow. So could we be with words. We do not know where the good ground is. Our mistake is in selecting the likely spots for our sowing. Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. at Pleasant Hill and 2:30 at Equality church. The minister will supply the pulpit.

Culver, executive secretary of the commission.

The demonstration, first in the United States covering three parishes or counties and financed and directed by a state agency, will continue for one year. It is being financed jointly by the library commission, which will direct the project, and by the state board of education, which has allocated $10,000 for the project, and it is a result of Governor Richard W. The formal opening will be held at 4 p.m., June 12, at Winnfield, where the headquarters library is located. FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont At Catalpa Street
Ernest Holloway, Minister

"The Christian's Single Purpose" and "The Superior Person's Attitude Toward all People" are the subjects of our meditations. The first deals with the aim of the God-fearer; the second presents the views of the Saviour, whose mission was service, enlightment and character development. The progress of the Kingdom, the honor of God and the glory of Jesus Christ depend to a great extent upon Christians. As members of His Household and the Redeemed of the Lord, what is our one end and views of people, even the folk who may despise and hate us? The Bible school is holding its own. With your support and presence this will be the most satisfactory summer ever. Why not join us today in the study of the Word? Your attendance will encourage the faithfuls and lead some one else to enroll. The First Presbyterian church seeks to lift the fallen, to inspire the weak, to stabilize the fickle, to present Truth and to glorify God. If you worship with us today you may receive a blessing and we know you will please our Heavenly Father.

$25,000,000 IN 'SMALL ESTATE'

Amount Left By Rockefeller May Be Reduced By Taxes To $10,000,000

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 5.—(AP)—The "relatively small" estate left by John D. Rockefeller, Sr., turned out today to be approximately $25,000,000, which may shrink to $10,000,000 by the time the tax collectors are through.

GAVE AWAY FORTUNE

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller gave away in his lifetime 21 times the wealth he possessed at his death, the filing of his will for probate today showed.

His philanthropies exceeded $530,000,000. The value of his estate, as estimated by Rockefeller spokesmen today, is $25,000,000.

Principal beneficiaries named in the capitalist's will, which was filed here for probate, were Mrs. Margaret Strong de Cuevas, a granddaughter, and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Mr. Rockefeller explained, in a codicil dated October 3, 1934 that he already had made ample provisions for his other heirs.

Much of the tremendous fortune he developed during the first half of his life from the Standard Oil trust, mines, railroads and numerous other enterprises had been spread over a variety of philanthropic institutions long before he died, on May 23 at Ormond Beach, Fla. The rest had been distributed among members of the family.

While neither affirming nor denying that his fortune once was well in excess of two billion dollars, his public relations counsellors announced at the time of his death that his estate was "relatively small" and "very liquid."

His public benefactions totaled $530,830,000, and extended into every corner of the world.

"I have always indulged the hope," he once said, "that during my life I should be able to establish efficiency in giving, so that wealth may be of greater use to the present and future generations. If the people can be educated to help themselves, we strike at the root of many of the evils of the world."

The petition for the probate of his will listed his personal holdings as "over $10,000." The $25,000,000 estimate was supplied by persons familiar with his affairs.

As originally drawn, on June 2, 1925, the will directed that the residuary estate be divided equally between his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the Laura Spelman Rockefeller foundation, organized in 1918 in memory of his wife.

Codicils were added on May 14, 1930, and November 4, 1932, but they were of no particular importance in the light of the final codicil, which made a radical change in the disposition of the estate.

By the final codicil the entire residuary estate was left in trust to Mrs. de Ceuvas and her children. The three trustees, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Bertram Cutler, a corporation director, and Thomas M. DeBevoise, attorney, were empowered in their discretion to pay the income to Mrs. de Cuevas, to her children, or to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

the kids of the big town that he stands out.

The New York cop, through departmental organization, probably does more for the kids than almost any other individual in New York, and with less noise.

WE DO NOT KNOW who was responsible for the idea in the first place, but we have had two great cops at the head of the New York police in the past few years, carrying out the theory that a good crime preventive is to take the kids off the street corners, and give them places to play, and things to play with.

The very sound logic of this theory is that it gives the cops less work in the long run. If you can keep a kid from becoming a criminal, he will not become a problem to the cops.

It may surprise you to learn that the New York cop, being essentially human, does not go around burning with a desire to arrest somebody. He would much prefer peace and quiet, and law-abidingness among all his fellow citizens.

Edward Mulrooney, as head of the New York police, had a veritable obsession for keeping the kids at play. Mulrooney was a veteran cop, and he had learned through years of pounding the pavements of the big town that a juvenile interested in playing is unlikely to find time for criminal associations and practices. Mulrooney's successor, Louis Valentine, another veteran cop, has the same idea.

SO, THE NEW YORK cops are giving a show at Madison Square Garden, and the idea of this show is not so much to display the might and versatility of the department, as to raise money for the kids.

The proceeds of the show will go into the treasury of the police athletic league, and the police athletics league is a division of the juvenile aid bureau, which provides playground facilities and equipment for the underprivileged children of New York.

You can see cops standing on their ears on motorcycles, and putting their trained police dogs through their paces, and otherwise demonstrating the means and measures designed to abate criminality in our midst, and if you are not impressed by the exhibition you must allow that the purpose is mighty commendable.

The way a New York youngster will approach a cop in the friendliest spirit, and ask him a question, or engage in a discussion with him as to the relative merits of the Giants and the Yankees, has always been a matter of wonder and amazement to us.

In our own youth, a cop was something you out-ran, if possible, and there were no cops around our old home town that we could not outrun except a colored cop named Jim Pate.

It is our vague impression now that Jim Pate must have been as fast as Jesse Owens. He was a long-legged, gangling fellow, but he could negotiate sudden turns into alleys, which was deemed our fort, with the agility of a cat.

THE ONLY TIME we recall winning a heat against Jim Pate was the day we got a good jump on him at the barrier, and beat him a scant head to the city limits. Jim Pate could not go beyond the city limits, though we did not know it at the time.

He stopped at the line, but continued jumping up and down in the road, his feet still giving off the sound of running, and we kept going as long as we could hear that sound, and did not return to our old home town for years.

By that time, Jim Pate had been made a guard at the state penitentiary, and for many years thereafter he always sat the death watch of condemned men, and whenever we chanced his way in reportorial pursuits, he would harrow up our feeling with grisly stories of seeing the ghosts of chaps with whom he had kept company until they were "hung."

Old Jim Pate would have been greatly astonished to observe the relations of the New York cops and the youth of the big city. As a cop, it must have been Jim's impression that youth was a highly untrustworthy institution, given mainly to pegging rocks at Chinese laundrymen. But then our youth had no cops to provide other means of amusement.

ADJOURNMENT

tion was the only addition today to a program disclosed by Senate Majority Leader Robinson after a conference at the White House Thursday night.

Congressional leaders said they looked for no more major suggestions for legislation this session.

The Roosevelt proposal to add five justices to the supreme court unless incumbents past 70 retire remained the big hurdle in the path of adjournment. Bankhead and Rayburn said they discussed it only generally at the White House.

Bankhead said the house would take no action on it until it appeared an agreement had been reached in the senate. He said there might be some "development" in the other branch "in the next week," but that was "just a guess."

The house leadership decided to seek action on the two tax features of the legislative program next week. Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, and Representative Vinson, Democrat, Kentucky, of the ways and means committee, discussed them this morning with Mr. Roosevelt.

Probably Tuesday the house will act on a senate-approved resolution to investigate tax-dodgers. Amendments to restrict publicity and the use of treasury employes may necessitate further senate consideration.

A resolution to extend "nuisance" taxes and the 3-cent postal rate for two years will come up Thursday. A return to 2-cent postage, the administration estimated, would cost upwards of $100,000,000 in revenue and failure to continue the nuisance levies would shut off more than $500,000,000 of income.

The latter taxes apply to such articles as automobiles, gasoline, furs, electricity, matches, chewing gum and radios.

The situation with regard to the rest of the program, as house leaders see it, is this.

1. Consolidation and reorganization of government agencies. Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, is working on a new bill which may help to compose some congressional differences.

2. Farm tenancy. Legislation probably will provide for a $10,000,000 experimental system the first year and authorize $25,000,000 the second year and $50,000,000 for ten years thereafter.

3. Low cost housing. The treasury and sponsors of legislation are in dispute over financing provisions. A smaller program than that proposed by Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, is likely. Wagner's bill provides for a $50,000,000 appropriation each year for four years and a $1,000,000,000 bond issue.

4. Wages and hours. A measure to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for interstate industries probably will be enacted before the end of the session. The senate and house labor committees are holding joint hearings on it now.

5. Conservation and power authorities. Bankhead said "There may be such a row on that nothing will get through."

VANDENBERG ASKS WAGE AND HOUR DELAY

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, opposed today immediate enactment of wage and hour legislation. He contended that industry needed a "breathing spell" rather than new "medicine."

In a radio address, Vandenberg accused the administration of "snap judgment" because it wants congress to enact minimum wage and maximum hour standards at this session.

He proposed instead that congress defer action until interim committees can prepare "seasoned," sustained and mature recommendations."

Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, co-author of the administration bill, announced that hearings on the measure may be completed by June 14. This prompted Vandenberg to say:

"The idea that such a program might be perfected by June 15 and rushed to quick conclusion—involving, as it ultimately does, the whole American economy—is a travesty upon prudence."

Warning his listeners against "economic indigestion and suicide," Vandenberg declared "the whole related economic problem must be painstakingly explored lest our zeal lead us unwittingly astray."

"There is no imminent emergency which calls for federal control of hours and wages at the moment; and there is less than no experienced assurance that the proposed control would contribute to trade and employment and the general welfare if there were an emergency. Probably we are coming to some sort of ultimate federal direction in these fields. But haste makes waste."

He said that "the uncertainties of an unbalanced federal budget and the restless implications of our giddy gold and silver purchase policies warn all realists that the value of money is utterly speculative until these inflationary forces come to curb. Until money values are standardized, wage values cannot be standardized."

Vandenberg said questions which should be studied before enactment of wage-hour legislation included "new dislocations in relative agricultural parity and the deadly menace of an ultimate consumer who will one day himself strike against commodity prices which are driven too swiftly upward by artificial governmental means.

"They include the probability that federal wage fixing, once initiated, may lead to federal price fixing. They include the probability that federal wage-fixing and price-fixing together will lead to compulsory arbitration in labor relations—not voluntarily, but by sheer force of necessity as we are driven closer and ever closer to the centralized, authoritarian state with its tyranny of oppressive government-blessed monopolies."

The occasion will be marked by the presence of physicians and surgeons of nation-wide renown who are to be in Monroe for the Fifth District Medical society meeting. B. McElroy, professor of medicine, University of Tennessee college of medicine, and Dr. W. S. Kerlin, Shreveport.

Dedication of the Cooley sanatorium will mark the culmination of one of the most important projects in public welfare ever undertaken in this part of the state. Mr. Crutcher stated during his visit to Monroe last week that the sanatorium is the finest hospital of its kind in Louisiana. It has been erected at a cost of nearly $100,000 from funds provided mainly by the Works Progress Administration.

two important outposts, the Edmonds No. 1, three miles southwest of the discovery, and the Gulf Refining company's J. J. Henry No. 1, two miles north and east of the discovery. T. L. James and company are drilling on the Patton No. B-2, one half mile north of production in the field, also adding to the interest in those watching the trend of the structure.

Over the line into northwest Lincoln parish, Lyons and Neely, Shreveport operators, have completed the first Lincoln parish oil well, the Eva Bennett No. 1, approximately 600 feet east of the discovery well in the field, and are now drilling on the Bennett No. 2, one quarter mile east of their first completion. From these four direction wells, operators in the area are now expecting to determine the direction and extent of production in the field.

Eight miles south of the Lisbon field, the Sugar Creek area, long a proven gas field, has recently created considerable interest among oil operators by the completion of two oil wells in the area. Production has been limted so far, however. With operations gaining headway, the area is being watched closely for possible indications as to whether or not the Lisbon structure is extended in that direction.

In the so-called Ruston gas area, two producers have been completed, both making a high quantity of distillate plus approximately 70,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day, with the third test now being rigged up on wildcat holdings north of the discovery wells. Lide and Greer, Pat Marr and Herman Brown, discoverers of the field, also discoverers of the Bienville parish gas field, are reported making preparations for drilling two additional wells in the field.

Southwest of the Sugar Creek field in Bienville parish the Seaboard Oil company is reported preparing to drill a deep-test offset to its McGee No. 1, section 3-16-6, in the Bear Creek area, with location for the new test expected to be announced within the next few days. The McGee, guaged at 60,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day, is making an estimated 1,250 gallons of distillate per million cubic feet of gas, leading operators to believe that farther down the structure lies oil production.

In southeast Bienville parish, directly south of the Lincoln parish gas production, Lide and Greer yesterday completed their third deep test in the Union Church area, with two heavily saturated gas producers already in.

The third well, the Smelley B-2, section 15-16-5, was brought in yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock with an estimated production of 80,000,000 to 90,000,000 feet of highly saturated gas daily. The distillate content was said to be greater than in any other of the distillate wells in that section.

The well was brought in from a 23-foot sand at a depth of 7,117-7,149 feet. Total depth of the well is 7,179 feet and production is from the top of the Travis peak.

The same operators will immediately start another test a mile northeast of the Union Church discovery well.

Drilling in the west-central portion of Lincoln parish, Harry D. Easton-Belmont-Quadrangle are now well below the surface casing in their Dye No. 1, section 21-21-4, with the test scheduled to be carried to 6,500 feet unless production is located above that level. The well is located in the vicinity of the old Lewis No. 1, drilled by Easton, discoverer of the Lisbon field, in 1920, and abandoned at 3,000 feet.

In section 16-20-3, Lincoln parish, Glassell and Glassell of Shreveport are coring in their Gray No. 1, now down to a total depth of approximately 5,000 feet. This test is also drawing the close attention of oil companies due to its favorable geological indications with the Lisbon field.

In section 32-19-2, Lincoln parish, the American-Liberty Oil company has agreed to re-enter the Louisiana-Arkansas Gas company Causey No. 1, and to deepen the test into the Travis peak, expected near the 6,200 foot level. The test was abandoned by the Arkansas Fuel Oil company last year at 4,680 feet.

Leasing activities throughout both eastern Lincoln and western Ouachita, as well as southeastern Union parish, are reported very active, with considerable speculation upon the possibilities of a further testing of the Golson area by the American-Liberty Oil company. The Golson No. 1 was abandoned late in 1935 at 5,300 feet after making salt water, although corings in the well had indicated probable production of saturated gas.

In developing the area between the south Arkansas oil field, the Rodessa and south Caddo parish areas and the eastern Ouachita fields, the oil companies have brought into operation scientific instruments and chemical resources never before used in the industry. Seismograph exploration has determined the location of every wildcat well, with the exception of the discovery well in the Lisbon field, while acidizing, a process new to the industry and used for the first time two years ago, has played a major part in the Lisbon production, due to the tight limestone formations from which the field is producing.

Evidence that the Lisbon field is now playing a major part in the state's oil production was given two weeks ago by the state conservation department in placing a 300-barrel per day per well allowable on the field.

tion was the only addition today to a program disclosed by Senate Majority Leader Robinson after a conference at the White House Thursday night.

Congressional leaders said they looked for no more major suggestions for legislation this session.

The Roosevelt proposal to add five justices to the supreme court unless incumbents past 70 retire remained the big hurdle in the path of adjournment. Bankhead and Rayburn said they discussed it only generally at the White House.

Bankhead said the house would take no action on it until it appeared an agreement had been reached in the senate. He said there might be some "development" in the other branch "in the next week," but that was "just a guess."

The house leadership decided to seek action on the two tax features of the legislative program next week. Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, and Representative Vinson, Democrat, Kentucky, of the ways and means committee, discussed them this morning with Mr. Roosevelt.

Probably Tuesday the house will act on a senate-approved resolution to investigate tax-dodgers. Amendments to restrict publicity and the use of treasury employes may necessitate further senate consideration.

A resolution to extend "nuisance" taxes and the 3-cent postal rate for two years will come up Thursday. A return to 2-cent postage, the administration estimated, would cost upwards of $100,000,000 in revenue and failure to continue the nuisance levies would shut off more than $500,000,000 of income.

The latter taxes apply to such articles as automobiles, gasoline, furs, electricity, matches, chewing gum and radios.

The situation with regard to the rest of the program, as house leaders see it, is this:

1. Consolidation and reorganization of government agencies. Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, is working on a new bill which may help to compose some congressional differences.

2. Farm tenancy. Legislation probably will provide for a $10,000,000 experimental system the first year and authorize $25,000,000 the second year and $50,000,000 for ten years thereafter.

3. Low cost housing. The treasury and sponsors of legislation are in dispute over financing provisions. A smaller program than that proposed by Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, is likely. Wagner's bill provides for a $50,000,000 appropriation each year for four years and a $1,000,000,000 bond issue.

4. Wages and hours. A measure to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for interstate industries probably will be enacted before the end of the session. The senate and house labor committees are holding joint hearings on it now.

5. Conservation and power authorities. Bankhead said "There may be such a row on that nothing will get through."

VANDENBERG ASKS WAGE AND HOUR DELAY

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, opposed today immediate enactment of wage and hour legislation. He contended that industry needed a "breathing spell" rather than new "medicine."

In a radio address, Vandenberg accused the administration of "snap judgment" because it wants congress to enact minimum wage and maximum hour standards at this session.

He proposed instead that congress defer action until interim committees can prepare "seasoned," sustained and mature recommendations."

Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, co-author of the administration bill, announced that hearings on the measure may be completed by June 14. This prompted Vandenberg to say:

"The idea that such a program might be perfected by June 15 and rushed to quick conclusion—involving, as it ultimately does, the whole American economy—is a travesty upon prudence."

Warning his listeners against "economic indigestion and suicide," Vandenberg declared "the whole related economic problem must be painstakingly explored lest our zeal lead us unwittingly astray."

"There is no imminent emergency which calls for federal control of hours and wages at the moment; and there is less than no experienced assurance that the proposed control would contribute to trade and employment and the general welfare if there were an emergency. Probably we are coming to some sort of ultimate federal direction in these fields. But haste makes waste."

He said that "the uncertainties of an unbalanced federal budget and the restless implications of our giddy gold and silver purchase policies warn all realists that the value of money is utterly speculative until these inflationary forces come to curb. Until money values are standardized, wage values cannot be standardized."

Vandenberg said questions which should be studied before enactment of wage-hour legislation included "new dislocations in relative agricultural parity and the deadly menace of an ultimate consumer who will one day himself strike against commodity prices which are driven too swiftly upward by artificial governmental means.

"They include the probability that federal wage fixing, once initiated, may lead to federal price fixing. They include the probability that federal wage-fixing and price-fixing together will lead to compulsory arbitration in labor relations—not voluntarily, but by sheer force of necessity as we are driven closer and ever closer to the centralized, authoritarian state with its tyranny of oppressive, government-blessed monopolies."

in the afternoon to permit the members to be present. The occasion will be marked by the presence of physicians and surgeons of nation-wide renown who are to be in Monroe for the Fifth District Medical society meeting. These include Dr. Williard Bartlett, professor of clinical surgery at the Missouri medical school, St. Louis; Dr. Willis Campbell, professor of orthopedic surgery, University of Tennessee college of medicine, Memphis; Dr. J. B. McElroy, professor of medicine, University of Tennessee college of medicine, and Dr. W. S. Kerlin, Shreveport.

Dedication of the Cooley sanatorium will mark the culmination of one of the most important projects in public welfare ever undertaken in this part of the state. Mr. Crutcher stated during his visit to Monroe last week that the sanatorium is the finest hospital of its kind in Louisiana. It has been erected at a cost of nearly $100,000 from funds provided mainly by the Works Progress Administration.

NORTH LOUISIANA

two important outposts, the Edmonds No. 1, three miles southwest of the discovery, and the Gulf Refining company's J. J. Henry No. 1, two miles north and east of the discovery. T. L. James and company are drilling on the Patton No. B-2, one half mile north of production in the field, also adding to the interest in those watching the trend of the structure.

Over the line into northwest Lincoln parish, Lyons and Neely, Shreveport operators, have completed the first Lincoln parish oil well, the Eva Bennett No. 1, approximately 600 feet east of the discovery well in the field, and are now drilling on the Bennett No. 2, one quarter mile east of their first completion. From these four direction wells, operators in the area are now expecting to determine the direction and extent of production in the field.

Eight miles south of the Lisbon field, the Sugar Creek area, long a proven gas field, has recently created considerable interest among oil operators by the completion of two oil wells in the area. Production has been limted so far, however. With operations gaining headway, the area is being watched closely for possible indications as to whether or not the Lisbon structure is extended in that direction.

In the so-called Ruston gas area, two producers have been completed, both making a high quantity of distillate plus approximately 70,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day, with the third test now being rigged up on wildcat holdings north of the discovery wells. Lide and Greer, Pat Marr and Herman Brown, discoverers of the field, also discoverers of the Bienville parish gas field, are reported making preparations for drilling two additional wells in the field.

Southwest of the Sugar Creek field in Bienville parish the Seaboard Oil company is reported preparing to drill a deep-test offset to its McGee No. 1, section 3-16-6, in the Bear Creek area, with location for the new test expected to be anonunced within the next few days. The McGee, guaged at 69,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day, is making an estimated 1,250 gallons of distillate per million cubic feet of gas, leading operators to believe that farther down the structure lies oil production.

In southeast Bienville parish, directly south of the Lincoln parish gas production, Lide and Greer yesterday completed their third deep test in the Union Church area, with two heavily saturated gas producers already in.

The third well, the Smelley B-2, section 13-16-5, was brought in yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock with an estimated production of 80,000,000 to 90,000,000 feet of highly saturated gas daily. The distillate content was said to be greater than in any other of the distillate wells in that section.

The well was brought in from a 23-foot sand at a depth of 7,117-7,140 feet. Total depth of the well is 7,179 feet and production is from the top of the Travis peak.

The same operators will immediately start another test a mile northeast of the Union Church discovery well.

Drilling in the west-central portion of Lincoln parish, Harry D. Easton-Belmont-Quadrangle are now well below the surface casing in their Dye No. 1, section 21-21-4, with the test scheduled to be carried to 6,500 feet unless production is located above that level. The well is located in the vicinity of the old Lewis No. 1, drilled by Easton, discoverer of the Lisbon field, in 1920, and abandoned at 3,000 feet.

In section 16-20-3, Lincoln parish, Glassell and Glassell of Shreveport are coring in their Gray No. 1, now down to a total depth of approximately 5,000 feet. This test is also drawing the close attention of oil companies due to its favorable geological indications with the Lisbon field.

In section 32-19-2, Lincoln parish, the American-Liberty Oil company has agreed to re-enter the Louisiana-Arkansas Gas company Causey No. 1, and to deepen the test into the Travis peak, expected near the 6,200 foot level. The test was abandoned by the Arkansas Fuel Oil company last year at 4,680 feet.

Leasing activities throughout both eastern Lincoln and western Ouachita, as well as southeastern Union parish, are reported very active, with considerable speculation upon the possibilities of a further testing of the Golson area by the American-Liberty Oil company. The Golson No. 1 was abandoned late in 1935 at 5,300 feet after making salt water, although corings in the well had indicated probable production of saturated gas.

In developing the area between the south Arkansas oil field, the Rodessa and south Caddo parish areas and the eastern Ouachita fields, the oil companies have brought into operation scientific instruments and chemical resources never before used in the industry. Seismograph exploration has determined the location of every wildcat well, with the exception of the discovery well in the Lisbon field, while acidizing, a process new to the industry and used for the first time two years ago, has played a major part in the Lisbon production, due to the tight limestone formations from which the field is producing.

Evidence that the Lisbon field is now playing a major part in the state's oil production was given two weeks ago by the state conservation department in placing a 300-barrel per day per well allowable on the field.

Bish Mathis Business Institute Will Be Formally Opened Tomorrow

MODERN SCHOOL INVITES PUBLIC TO 'OPEN HOUSE'

Educational Plant One Of Finest, Most Complete In Southwest

Every facility for the efficient instruction and training of the student and for the comfort of both student and instructor is provided in the new school home of the B. M. I., located on the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building.

This new business school, one of the most complete in the southwest, will be formally opened tomorrow, and the public of this section is cordially invited to inspect the commodious premises which will accommodate as many as 250 pupils.

"Open house" will be observed at the school Monday night from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., at which time refreshments will be served and favors presented to all the visiting ladies. The public of northeast Louisiana is cordially invited to be present.

Occupying the major portion of the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building, B. M. I. in Monroe has a business atmosphere equalled by few similar schools in the country. The location of the school on the top floor of this modern office building places it above the noise of the city streets but affords the convenience of being in the center of every activity.

Specially Designed

The rooms occupied by B. M. I. were specially designed and constructed for the school. The rooms are arranged according to a studied plan which provides an abundance of fresh air and natural light. All walls and partitions in the school are finished in light color to provide additional light. An attractive and harmonizing color scheme, restful to the eyes, is carried out in all rooms and departments.

Windows on the school floor are equipped with Venetian blinds. The rooms are equipped with modern lighting fixtures and steam radiators. A corridor divides the floor so as to permit easy access to all departments without disturbing others. Two spacious lounge rooms are provided, one for girls and one for boys.

There are two private offices, a reception room, library, an office training department for finishing students, spacious departments for bookkeeping, accounting, shorthand, typewriting and business administration.

The desk equipment throughout the school was fashioned by hand from select red gum and finished in natural wood. The grain of the wood makes this furniture of a distinctive type that fits in well with the color scheme of the various departments.

All Furnishings Modern

Teachers' chairs are of chromium, upholstered with red and blue leather. Student chairs and desks were designed and built specially for B. M. I., and are of the appropriate size, height and type to provide the most

INSTRUCTOR

W. C. CUBERLEY

No business or professional school in the southwest has a more outstanding educator in any course than has B. M. I. in W. C. Cuberley, instructor in charge of advanced shorthand, dictation, court reporting and business administration. His recent selection as vice-president of the teachers' division of the Southwest Commercial Schools association was a deserved honor. He secured his education in the College of Marshall, University of Texas, and University of Southern California.

FRIENDLY FACULTY HIGHLY PRAISED

Students of B. M. I. comment often upon the friendliness and helpfulness of the faculty and management of the school.

Faculty members have been employed because of their efficiency in teaching the various courses, and also because of their spirit of cooperation.

Instructors are always glad to give individual assistance to students who need special help and attention, and to offer suggestions that will help students.

There is also a studied effort on the part of the faculty to develop strong and positive personalities for the students, a definite asset in modern business life.

THE PESSIMIST

Nothing to do but work, nothing to eat but food,
Nothing to wear but clothes to keep from going nude,
Nothing to breathe but air, quick as a flash 'tis gone;
Nowhere to fall but off, nowhere to stand but on.

Nothing to comb but hair, nowhere to sleep but in bed,
Nothing to weep but tears, nothing to bury but dead.
Nothing to sing but songs, Ah, well, alas! alack!
Nowhere to go but out, nowhere to come but back.

Nothing to see but sights, nothing to quench but thirst,
Nothing to have but what we've got; thus thro' life we are cursed.
Nothing to strike but a gait; everything moves that goes.
Nothing at all but common sense, can ever withstand these woes.

B. M. I. PREPARES YOUTHS FOR JOBS

Pressure Of Business Since Depression Requires Men Who Are Accurate

For the first time since the depression, men are wanted. The lack of personnel forces created by depression economics is now beginning to be felt as an actual employment crisis. Business and industry alike are looking for young people having ripe qualifications—not to shelve into mere run-of-the-mill positions, but to groom to junior executives and ultimately the highest positions executives have to offer. But ONLY to those having the right qualifications. The reservoirs of the unqualified are still full to overflowing.

B. M. I. strives to bring you the courses that will be of the greatest aid in securing these better positions and in fitting you for successful business careers. This new course for men in personality development will use Miss Frances Maule's recently released book, "Men Wanted" as a basis for its study. Ones opportunities and what qualifications are requested to take advantage of them will be discussed in this course. The information has been secured in first-hand talks with men on the "hiring and firing lines" of the great corporation who know what it is they want in the young people they hire for the new jobs.

"Where," asks business and industry, "are the experienced business juniors required by the revival of business?" The answer in most cases is "No-where." "We are looking for men for whom we can pay ten thousand dollars a year—but try and find them!" The opportunity of the times places a premium upon men of outstanding qualifications. To land a ten thousand dollar a year job you must be a ten thousand dollar a year man—in ability, in training, and in personality.

The chiefly wanted are men of average or higher-than-average mental capacity plus adequate training. This training can be secured in any subject pertaining to business at B. M. I.

For every job available there are numbers of able candidates, all of who could do the work equally well. The deciding factor in employment, therefore, is personality. Personality is rated as one-half to eight-five per cent of business success. The elements of personality are: the way you look, the way you act, and the way you speak. The higher and better the job, the more exacting the requirements are in regard to personality qualifications.

The men wanted today are men who can stand up against pressure, who'll take it and like it—men with character, a most vital quality. What do you want to get out of life? Are you going somewhere—or just traveling? The big chances of today are not for the aimless; employers prefer men who are constantly going somewhere rather than men who are just traveling.

What would you hire yourself for? Explore your own abilities and apti-

PRESIDENT

BISH S. MATHIS

Monroe's possibilities as the center for a successful school of business prompted Bish S. Mathis, president of B. M. I., to open his second school here. Located on the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building, the Monroe B. M. I. is one of the most complete educational plants in the south. Mr. Mathis, although still a young man, is a forceful executive and since entering the educational field has achieved marked success.

MANAGER

L. E. MATHIS

This popular young business man has been promoted to directing manager of B. M. I. in Monroe after two years as registrar at Longview, Tex. He finished his college work in 1925, and has had actual business experience as assistant auditor and paymaster for Texas Gulf Sulphur company, and as division manager of the "M" System food stores in south Texas.

B. M. I. SUGGESTS: WATCH THESE POINTS WHEN HUNTING A JOB

A knowledge of etiquette and good taste pays handsome dividends to job seekers.

For the people who hire and fire judge an applicant by her looks, language and behavior as well as by her previous employment record.

Doris Scripture, 26-year-old "extra" employment director for one of New York's largest department stores, is an example. She always looks at the shoes of the girls she interviews—as they leave.

"Not to see whether they're in style," says she, "but just to see whether they're well-kept—whether the heels are run over or the suede needs brushing."

When she first sees a prospective employe she makes a mental note of the general impression he or she gives. That means what they're wearing and their mannerisms.

"The old standby black and dark blue outfits aren't musts with me," she comments. "Colors are all right, depending, of course, on how they're used.

"Jewelry, too, if it's in good taste and is not overdone, is also acceptable.

"Nail polish is also all right. But it has to be put on neatly. It can't be in the chipping-off stage.

"I always ask those who come to see me to take off their hats. Matted, messy-looking hair eliminates a lot of people.

"Diction is very important to us. That means a well-modulated voice which is distinct enough to give a convincing sales talk. Correct grammar is also necessary.

"I don't hold a lack of self-assurance against anyone. There's a lot of difference between fright and deep-seated shyness, you know. But I do pay particular attention to the person who smiles pleasantly when he or she comes in—and then settles comfortably back in a chair for the interview.

"In fact, an engaging smile—if it isn't a grim—will melt a lot of ice, both with me and the customer."

—Joan Durham, AP Feature Service Writer.

Poverty is very good in poems, but very bad in the house; very good in maxims and sermons, but very bad in practical life. Business training at B. M. I. has no limitations as to earnings. It will increase your capacity for life and the enjoyment of its better possibilities. Is not this worth while?

BIG ENROLLMENT IS NOW EXPECTED

'How To Win Friends And Influence People' Seen As Great Need

B. M. I. has completed plans for instituting an entirely new course in its curriculum—a kind of course never before heard of in business schools, it is believed.

Through an arrangement just completed, B. M. I. will offer a special course based on Dale Carnegie's famous new book, "How To Win Friends and Influence People," a favorite on American book shelves.

This great course is expected to have one of the largest enrollments of any course offered by B. M. I., because of its vast importance to the young man and woman preparing to go into the business world.

Here are six ways to make people like you, as taken from Carnegie's new book:

1. Become genuinely interested in other people.
2. Smile!
3. Remember that a person's name is to him the sweetest and most important sound in any language.
4. Be a good listener. Encourage others to talk about themselves.
5. Talk in terms of the other person's interest.
6. Make the other person feel important—and do it sincerely.

Here are twelve ways to win people to your way of thinking:

1. The only way to get the best of an argument is to avoid it.
2. Show respect for the other person's opinions. Never tell a person he is wrong.
3. If you are wrong, admit it quickly and emphatically.
4. Begin in a friendly way.
5. Get the other person saying "yes, yes" immediately.
6. Let the other person do a great deal of the talking.
7. Let the other person feel that the idea is his.
8. Try honestly to see things from the other person's point of view.
9. Be sympathetic with the other person's ideas and desires.
10. Appeal to the nobler motives.
11. Dramatize your ideas.
12. Throw down a challenge.

Here are seven ways to make your home life happier:

1. Don't nag.
2. Don't try to make your partner over.
3. Don't criticize.
4. Give honest appreciation.
5. Pay little attentions.
6. Be courteous.
7. Read a good book on the sexual side of marriage. Don't be a marriage illiterate!

Spurrier, who has been with the school nearly two years and is regarded as one of the most valued additions to the staff. He is a graduate of B. M. WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT YOU, INC.?

Corporations must check on themselves periodically lest they go out of style, fall into a groove, become loaded with dead wood in personnel and policies. That is why there are annual audits and reports.

A company's greatest asset is a loyal and efficient body of employes. These it cannot audit. An employe should be his own auditor.

How can he or she go about such a job?

Look at the operating departments of "You, Inc." Are work and recreation activities coordinated? Is your own information department keeping you up-to-date on changing conditions? Are your public contacts friendly and numerous?

What is your conception of the quality and quantity of the work turned out by "You, Inc."? Are you in business for profit only, or do you keep before you an ideal of service, a pride in achievement, a sense of trust and responsibility to yourself, your family and society?

In short, has "You, Inc." an AAA rating?

INSTITUTE GIVES MODERN COURSE

'Personality Development' Added To Business School's Curriculum

A new course dealing with "Personality Development" is being added to the curriculum of B. M. I.

Miss Frances Maule has succeeded in crystallizing in book form just exactly the type of counsel and information a good personnel director would like to give to any girl entering in the firm's employ—if only the director had the time to do it. Any girl who is honestly striving to find her way through the intricate and baffling mazes of the business world will want to take this new course on business behavior, opportunities, and job requirements for women.

In the business girl's own vernacular the basic text "She Strives To Conquer" states her problems and offers practical solutions, based on all old-fashioned, abstract, moralistic ideas put on the present-day requirements of the hard-boiled business world. This course cannot fail to raise the level of service and efficiency of every young lady who takes it. Any young woman who practices the suggestions brought out during this course will have an enormous advantage over her competitors in getting and holding a position.

This course will enable you to answer the following questions:

FIRST, Have You Got What It Takes?

SECOND, What Do They Mean—"Personality"?

THIRD, How Are Your Sound Effects?

FOURTH, Are You Fit For Your Job?

You will also discuss the following topics: Business Manners, It's Not Cricket, Women Are So Personal, Winning Ways, Dressing The Part, Things Your Best Friend Won't Tell You, The Love Motif, Stepping Out, Choosing Your Line, Landing Your Job, The Road To Almost Anywhere, If You Can Sell You Can Always Eat, Cashing In On Woman's Sphere, If You Have The Talent.

"She Strives To Conquer" is being read, studied, and criticized by many of the country's most learned men and women.

Mr. Newman L. Hoopingarner, professor of business psychology in the School of Commerce, New York university, drew this definite conclusion: "Miss Maule has written a book which should be a great help to the young girl in adjusting herself to the requirements of a modern business of-

Bish Mathis Business Institute Will Be Formally Opened Tomorrow

Educational Plant One Of Finest, Most Complete In Southwest

Every facility for the efficient instruction and training of the student and for the comfort of both student and instructor is provided in the new school home of the B. M. I., located on the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building.

This new business school, one of the most complete in the southwest, will be formally opened tomorrow, and the public of this section is cordially invited to inspect the commodious premises which will accommodate as many as 250 pupils.

"Open house" will be observed at the school Monday night from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., at which time refreshments will be served and favors presented to all the visiting ladies. The public of northeast Louisiana is cordially invited to be present.

Occupying the major portion of the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building, B. M. I. in Monroe has a business atmosphere equalled by few similar schools in the country. The location of the school on the top floor of this modern office building places it above the noise of the city streets but affords the convenience of being in the center of every activity.

Specially Designed

The rooms occupied by B. M. I. were specially designed and constructed for the school. The rooms are arranged according to a studied plan which provides an abundance of fresh air and natural light. All walls and partitions in the school are finished in light color to provide additional light. An attractive and harmonizing color scheme, restful to the eyes, is carried out in all rooms and departments.

Windows on the school floor are equipped with Venetian blinds. The rooms are equipped with modern lighting fixtures and steam radiators. A corridor divides the floor so as to permit easy access to all departments without disturbing others. Two spacious lounge rooms are provided, one for girls and one for boys.

There are two private offices, a reception room, library, an office training department for finishing students, spacious departments for bookkeeping, accounting, shorthand, typewriting and business administration.

The desk equipment throughout the school was fashioned by hand from select red gum and finished in natural wood. The grain of the wood makes this furniture of a distinctive type that fits in well with the color scheme of the various departments.

All Furnishings Modern

Teachers' chairs are of chromium, upholstered with red and blue leather. Student chairs and desks were designed and built specially for B. M. I., and are of the appropriate size, height and type to provide the most

INSTRUCTOR

W. C. CUBERLEY

No business or professional school in the southwest has a more outstanding educator in any course than has B. M. I. in W. C. Cuberley, instructor in charge of advanced shorthand, dictation, court reporting and business administration. His recent selection as vice-president of the teachers' division of the Southwest Commercial Schools association was a deserved honor. He secured his education in the College of Marshall, University of Texas, and University of Southern California.

FRIENDLY FACULTY HIGHLY PRAISED

Students of B. M. I. comment often upon the friendliness and helpfulness of the faculty and management of the school.

Faculty members have been employed because of their efficiency in teaching the various courses, and also because of their spirit of cooperation.

Instructors are always glad to give individual assistance to students who need special help and attention, and to offer suggestions that will help students.

There is also a studied effort on the part of the faculty to develop strong and positive personalities for the students, a definite asset in modern business life.

THE PESSIMIST

Nothing to do but work, nothing to eat but food,
Nothing to wear but clothes to keep from going nude,
Nothing to breathe but air, quick as a flash 'tis gone;
Nowhere to fall but off, nowhere to stand but on.

Nothing to comb but hair, nowhere to sleep but in bed,
Nothing to weep but tears, nothing to bury but dead.
Nothing to sing but songs, Ah, well, alas! alack!
Nowhere to go but out, nowhere to come but back.

Nothing to see but sights, nothing to quench but thirst,
Nothing to have but what we've got; thus thro' life we are cursed.
Nothing to strike but a gait; everything moves that goes.
Nothing at all but common sense, can ever withstand these woes.

B. M. I. PREPARES YOUTHS FOR JOBS

Pressure Of Business Since Depression Requires Men Who Are Accurate

For the first time since the depression, men are wanted. The lack of personnel forces created by depression economics is now beginning to be felt as an actual employment crisis. Business and industry alike are looking for young people having ripe qualifications—not to shelve into mere run-of-the-mill positions, but to groom to junior executives and ultimately the highest positions executives have to offer. But ONLY to those having the right qualifications. The reservoirs of the unqualified are still full to overflowing.

B. M. I. strives to bring you the courses that will be of the greatest aid in securing these better positions and in fitting you for successful business careers. This new course for men in personality development will use Miss Frances Maule's recently released book, "Men Wanted" as a basis for its study. Ones opportunities and what qualifications are requested to take advantage of them will be discussed in this course. The information has been secured in first-hand talks with men on the "hiring and firing lines" of the great corporation who know what it is they want in the young people they hire for the new jobs.

"Where," asks business and industry, "are the experienced business juniors required by the revival of business?" The answer in most cases is "No-where." "We are looking for men for whom we can pay ten thousand dollars a year—but try and find them!" The opportunity of the times places a premium upon men of outstanding qualifications. To land a ten thousand dollar a year job you must be a ten thousand dollar a year man—in ability, in training, and in personality.

The chiefly wanted are men of average or higher-than-average mental capacity plus adequate training. This training can be secured in any subject pertaining to business at B. M. I.

For every job available there are numbers of able candidates, all of who could do the work equally well. The deciding factor in employment, therefore, is personality. Personality is rated as one-half to eight-five per cent of business success. The elements of personality are: the way you look, the way you act, and the way you speak. The higher and better the job, the more exacting the requirements are in regard to personality qualifications.

The men wanted today are men who can stand up against pressure, who'll take it and like it—men with character, a most vital quality. What do you want to get out of life? Are you going somewhere—or just traveling? The big chances of today are not for the aimless; employers prefer men who are constantly going somewhere rather than men who are just traveling.

What would you hire yourself for? Explore your own abilities and apti-

PRESIDENT

BISH S. MATHIS

Monroe's possibilities as the center for a successful school of business prompted Bish S. Mathis, president of B. M. I., to open his second school here. Located on the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building, the Monroe B. M. I. is one of the most complete educational plants in the south. Mr. Mathis, although still a young man, is a forceful executive and since entering the educational field has achieved marked success.

This popular young business man has been promoted to directing manager of B. M. I. in Monroe after two years as registrar at Longview, Tex. He finished his college work in 1925, and has had actual business experience as assistant auditor and paymaster for Texas Gulf Sulphur company, and as division manager of the "M" System food stores in south Texas.

B. M. I. SUGGESTS: WATCH THESE POINTS WHEN HUNTING A JOB

A knowledge of etiquette and good taste pays handsome dividends to job seekers.

For the people who hire and fire judge an applicant by her looks, language and behavior as well as by her previous employment record.

Doris Scripture, 26-year-old "extra" employment director for one of New York's largest department stores, is an example. She always looks at the shoes of the girls she interviews—as they leave.

"Not to see whether they're in style," says she, "but just to see whether they're well-kept—whether the heels are run over or the suede needs brushing."

When she first sees a prospective employe she makes a mental note of the general impression he or she gives. That means what they're wearing and their mannerisms.

"The old standby black and dark blue outfits aren't musts with me," she comments. "Colors are all right, depending, of course, on how they're used.

"Jewelry, too, if it's in good taste and is not overdone, is also acceptable.

"Nail polish is also all right. But it has to be put on neatly. It can't be in the chipping-off stage.

"I always ask those who come to see me to take off their hats. Matted, messy-looking hair eliminates a lot of people.

"Diction is very important to us. That means a well-modulated voice which is distinct enough to give a convincing sales talk. Correct grammar is also necessary.

"I don't hold a lack of self-assurance against anyone. There's a lot of difference between fright and deep-seated shyness, you know. But I do pay particular attention to the person who smiles pleasantly when he or she comes in—and then settles comfortably back in a chair for the interview.

"In fact, an engaging smile—if it isn't a grim—will melt a lot of ice, both with me and the customer."

—Joan Durham, AP Feature Service Writer.

Poverty is very good in poems, but very bad in the house; very good in maxims and sermons, but very bad in practical life. Business training at B. M. I. has no limitations as to earnings. It will increase your capacity for life and the enjoyment of its better possibilities. Is not this worth while?

BIG ENROLLMENT IS NOW EXPECTED

'How To Win Friends And Influence People' Seen As Great Need

B. M. I. has completed plans for instituting an entirely new course in its curriculum—a kind of course never before heard of in business schools, it is believed.

Through an arrangement just completed, B. M. I. will offer a special course based on Dale Carnegie's famous new book, "How To Win Friends and Influence People," a favorite on American book shelves.

This great course is expected to have one of the largest enrollments of any course offered by B. M. I., because of its vast importance to the young man and woman preparing to go into the business world.

Here are six ways to make people like you, as taken from Carnegie's new book:

1. Become genuinely interested in other people.
2. Smile!
3. Remember that a person's name is to him the sweetest and most important sound in any language.
4. Be a good listener. Encourage others to talk about themselves.
5. Talk in terms of the other person's interest.
6. Make the other person feel important—and do it sincerely.

Here are twelve ways to win people to your way of thinking:

1. The only way to get the best of an argument is to avoid it.
2. Show respect for the other person's opinions. Never tell a person he is wrong.
3. If you are wrong, admit it quickly and emphatically.
4. Begin in a friendly way.
5. Get the other person saying "yes, yes" immediately.
6. Let the other person do a great deal of the talking.
7. Let the other person feel that the idea is his.
8. Try honestly to see things from the other person's point of view.
9. Be sympathetic with the other person's ideas and desires.
10. Appeal to the nobler motives.
11. Dramatize your ideas.
12. Throw down a challenge.

Here are seven ways to make your home life happier:

1. Don't nag.
2. Don't try to make your partner over.
3. Don't criticize.
4. Give honest appreciation.
5. Pay little attentions.
6. Be courteous.
7. Read a good book on the sexual side of marriage. Don't be a marriage illiterate!

FORREST A. SPURRIER

The Gladewater area in western Gregg county, Texas, furnished the B. M. I. faculty with Forrest A. Spurrier, who has been with the school nearly two years and is regarded as one of the most valued additions to the staff. He is a graduate of B. M. I., and has done special preparatory work under Mr. and Mrs. Mathis. He holds a teacher's certificate from the Gregg School of Shorthand in Chicago, and is now doing additional work toward his C. P. WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT YOU, INC.?

Corporations must check on themselves periodically lest they go out of style, fall into a groove, become loaded with dead wood in personnel and policies. That is why there are annual audits and reports.

A company's greatest asset is a loyal and efficient body of employes. These it cannot audit. An employe should be his own auditor.

How can he or she go about such a job?

Look at the operating departments of "You, Inc." Are work and recreation activities coordinated? Is your own information department keeping you up-to-date on changing conditions? Are your public contacts friendly and numerous?

What is your conception of the quality and quantity of the work turned out by "You, Inc."? Are you in business for profit only, or do you keep before you an ideal of service, a pride in achievement, a sense of trust and responsibility to yourself, your family and society?

In short, has "You, Inc." an AAA rating?

INSTITUTE GIVES MODERN COURSE

'Personality Development' Added To Business School's Curriculum

A new course dealing with "Personality Development" is being added to the curriculum of B. M. I.

Miss Frances Maule has succeeded in crystallizing in book form just exactly the type of counsel and information a good personnel director would like to give to any girl entering in the firm's employ—if only the director had the time to do it. Any girl who is honestly striving to find her way through the intricate and baffling mazes of the business world will want to take this new course on business behavior, opportunities, and job requirements for women.

In the business girl's own vernacular the basic text "She Strives To Conquer" states her problems and offers practical solutions, based on all old-fashioned, abstract, moralistic ideas put on the present-day requirements of the hard-boiled business world. This course cannot fail to raise the level of service and efficiency of every young lady who takes it. Any young woman who practices the suggestions brought out during this course will have an enormous advantage over her competitors in getting and holding a position.

This course will enable you to answer the following questions:

FIRST, Have You Got What It Takes?

SECOND, What Do They Mean—"Personality"?

THIRD, How Are Your Sound Effects?

FOURTH, Are You Fit For Your Job?

You will also discuss the following topics: Business Manners, It's Not Cricket, Women Are So Personal, Winning Ways, Dressing The Part, Things Your Best Friend Won't Tell You, The Love Motif, Stepping Out, Choosing Your Line, Landing Your Job, The Road To Almost Anywhere, If You Can Sell You Can Always Eat, Cashing In On Woman's Sphere, If You Have The Talent.

"She Strives To Conquer" is being read, studied, and criticized by many of the country's most learned men and women.

Mr. Newman L. Hoopingarner, professor of business psychology in the School of Commerce, New York university, drew this definite conclusion: "Miss Maule has written a book which should be a great help to the young girl in adjusting herself to the requirements of a modern business of-

SEES HAPPINESS IN BEING BUSY

Americanized Soviet Lady Says People Should Stick To Instinct

("What a Business Course at B. M. I. Will Do For You" is the subject of an interesting article prepared by Miss Fanye Margulis, a native of Russia but now an American. Her article follows:)

By Fanye Margulis

What is success? I'd say "happiness." And now you ask, what might happiness be? I see it as being busy at something you like. A man with millions—even millions earned by his own mind and body—may or may not be a success. A rare form of unhappiness, do you suggest. Yes, it is rare. But it's never been exterminated, and while it's perfectly true the number of unhappy workers exceeds the number of unhappy millionaires, don't lose sight of the corollary; the extent to which the happy workers outnumber the happy millionaires.

How about the proportion of happy to unhappy workers? Your guess is as good as any. But—did you ever see a man or woman, boy or girl, happy doing work he didn't like? Did you ever see a talented writer stop writing when wealth came to him? Or an inventor with whom riches displaced his love for tools?—an artist who discarded his palette because his fame was secure?—a scientist who became a man about town when prosperity was assured?

No. I am not going to say that you ought to take a course in business training as a sort of "vocational experience." A man born engineer should keep on with his blueprints. The man with instinct for trading should stick to his markets. Those whose destiny is science should never leave the laboratory.

But if you don't know what you are—if you're one of those people with an urge that seems to shoot off in a dozen different directions—or if you aren't what you want to be—a business course at B. M. I. will bring you in closer contact with life and its better opportunities; it will prove you to yourself, bring out your "talent"—and to a greater extent than any other training I know, expose you to an illimitable number of chances.

Training at B. M. I. will reveal ability in many "fields." It is the school with the highest degree of efficiency and success. There probably isn't another profession that offers so many opportunities and such a variety of interest as this school.

Here you gain an educational distinction—completing your course will strengthen your mind, and when your diploma is won you will be better able to analyze, make comparisons and reach conclusions. It will strengthen your character because it will bring you in vital touch with strong personalities and strong forces. It will broaden your views. You will be better prepared to select your life work, for remember that "we enjoy ourselves only in our work, in our doing—and our best doing is our best enjoyment."

Business training, while not absolutely vital to success, is most emphatically desirable for obvious reasons. It means a broader background, a more intimate knowledge of affairs—familiarity with the bigger things in life that will keep you on your toes and in contact with opportunity in the widest possible variety. You waste no time in misdirection—every step of training brings you new knowledge, broadens your viewpoints, and adds to your confidence.

This is an accomplished age. People are better educated, better informed than they used to be. More people are completing business courses now than formerly, and more people are going to complete them next year than this year. So it is necessary for you to be able to meet this competition, and the most natural way to meet it is to be as well educated as those with whom you compete.

To be sound, an investment must have certain standards. It must safeguard money; it must convert into cash; it must, above all, pay good dividends. Do you want an investment that will help you? Honesty and sincerity, truth and candor, are the most important characteristics. May I introduce to you not an ordinary business school, but a school with a personality—an individuality all its own. Here are people, real people with an aim in life; with hopes, ambitions, and desires.

In any complex undertaking, if a common goal is to be reached, there must be sympathetic cooperation. You'll find it at B. M. I. Of course, you can have a lot of ability and fail if you are shiftless—or little ability and succeed if you are industrious.

My training at B. M. I. wasn't a course at all, but the most wonderful experience I have ever had. After all, that is the standard now used to measure the efficiency of education in whatever field it is sought.

The students and teachers are the most congenial I have ever come in contact with.

B. M. I. has but one fee—a very modest fee when measured against the service that is rendered. This fee was arrived at not by arbitrarily selecting, a nice-sounding sum that Mr. Mathis thought he might be able to get for a course, but by accurately determining what he must get to cover his cost of operating, plus a reasonable margin of profit.

There are lower priced courses than those given by B. M. I. You can get "something just as good" for half the price, with a cleverly worded money-back guarantee to boot—but the intelligent person pays no more attention to such offers than he pays to the "guaranteed not to shrink" label on a bargain suit of clothes. He knows that in these days of intense competition in everything, one gets just about what one pays for.

B. M. I. GRADUATE BORN IN RUSSIA

Miss Fanye Margulis Tells Of Experiences In Daring Escape From Reds

Miss Fanye Margulis, a student at B. M. I., is a native of Russia. She went through the terrible experiences of the Bolshevik revolution and although she was only eight years old she retains a vivid memory of the exciting events that transpired.

She came to America with her parents in 1922, after a daring escape from Russia and an anxious journey through Poland, Germany, France and Belgium, where they took passage on a boat for New York.

When she arrived in America, the family migrated to Texas. She was nine, and could not speak English. She finished grammar and high school at Mt. Pleasant in May, 1929, doing the normal 11-year course in seven years.

She was visiting in Longview two weeks prior to the opening of B. M. I. there last year. She decided to locate there instead of at Kilgore, as the family had previously planned.

Upon graduation from B. M. I., Miss Margulis accepted a position with Leiber and Ogle, at Greggton. Shortly thereafter, she went to Shreveport to take a position in the credit department of Selber Bros. She is now private secretary to Charles A. Hazen, managing editor of the Shreveport Times.

Her own story, in brief, follows:

"Fourteen years ago I migrated to the United States with my parents. We sailed from Antwerp, Belgium, on the ship Manchuria. The day we landed in New York was the happiest day in my life—no more fears, no more perpetual suspense and ever-renewed uncertainty—here was a heavenly refuge at last.

"I was a resident of Odessa, Russia, when the revolution swept the country, leaving havoc in its midst. In a short time 'centuries of progress' were swept away like so much dust. It was horrible and cruel. The memories are very unpleasant.

"In 1919, living in Russia had become almost impossible. Our lives were constantly in danger. We never knew when the Bolsheviks would come—sometimes before dawn, sometimes in the middle of the night, during a mealtime, at any unexpected time. We had to be always on the alert—always watching, watching, afraid to eat, to sleep, to walk, for fear of saying or doing the wrong thing.

"It may sound funny, but we seldom undressed at night for fear that we could not dress quickly enough should the Bolsheviks come during the night and throw us out of the house. Things like that have a funny way of taking root even in the mind of an eight-year-old child. Such experiences can't be easily forgot.

"On a Friday morning in the latter part of 1919 we escaped into Galicia with some Polish troops. We almost froze before we reached our destination. Here we lived only a short time. Our next stop was Lwov, Poland, where we lived for almost a year. We would have made this our home had we not heard a rumor that the Bolsheviks were going to take possession of Poland; that was too much for us. We were still Russian citizens, and, had they found us, it would have meant death. We at once secured citizenship papers in Poland, and the same day mother telegraphed to her sister in America to send us a visa (or the necessary papers for us to come to the United States). The papers arrived in about three weeks. We went through the usual procedure before we were granted passports.

"Our next stop was at Ellis Island, New York. That was in 1922. Close your eyes for a moment—hear the hissing of bombs, see the scurrying men, women and children fleeing from it all? There was no hiding place from the Bolshevik—it was horrible. If you've never seen people tortured, and starving, then you can't possibly know what was in our hearts as we entered New York. It wasn't the glamor of the place. America spelled much more to us than that. Here was freedom and peace; for the first time, we could relax—in peace. It sounds strange to you, doesn't it? We who live in America cannot conceive it in our imagination, let alone to live it. You don't know what a revolution is like. You should be thankful that you live in America.

"After spending a few weeks in New York, we came to Denison, Tex., where mother's sister lives. We visited in Denison and Fort Worth several weeks and then went to Dallas. We lived there two years. We lived a year at Sulphus Springs. Then we moved to Mt. Pleasant where we lived until 1935, when we moved to Longview.

"Had I all the countries from which to choose, I would choose America. Her people are the most congenial and living conditions here are the most desirable. The language isn't difficult at all. One can express oneself much more clearly than in Russian. Every word is fabricated to suit the meaning it is to convey. This is the most 'expressive' language I know.

"Without a doubt in my mind I can say I am glad to live in America, 'the home of the brave and the free'—and may she always remain so. I shall always be grateful to her for the cordial welcome she extended us upon arrival in the United States 17 years ago."

Now I ain't dumb
Or extremely clever
But it all came about because of a letter.
I received this letter
And heaved a sigh
Cause I saw at once it was from B. M. I.
That letter got me!
I'm telling you!
The next thing I knew I was going to school.
We learned to type (if we were lucky)
Learned to spell (and that took study)
Learned how to look nice and neat
And above all where to put our feet.
When you see Mrs. Mathis you'll surely stare
She's about the best one there.
She teaches shorthand, spelling and English
(And is just a little smaller than the least.)

Cause I didn't have time

—Roever, a B. M. I. student.

Since 1920 there have been 18 per cent more men teachers and only 6 per cent more women teachers in the public elementary schools of the United States.

America's school property is valued at $12,050,000,000, including $2,150,000,000 held as endowment and other trust funds. This is an investment of about $400 per pupil.

SPARE TIME NOW MAY BE UTILIZED

School Can Care For 250 Students At Either Time

For the convenience of all prospective students, B. M. I. operates both day and night classes on regular schedule.

The individual who devotes his spare time to improving himself and his business knowledge is the employe most often selected by executives for advancement.

With this fact in mind, officials of B. M. I. have arranged regular night classes in many subjects so those who work during the day may get additional training by attending these classes.

Classes meet regularly five days a week, and three nights a week. A schedule can be worked out for individual students who have unusual hours of work, so they too can get additional training.

The school has ample facilities to care for more than 150 students during the day, and can accommodate practically as many at night. The day classes, however, are usually much the larger.

Business executives have often urged young men and women to continue their studies and training after they enter employment, because it makes them much more efficient and of more service to their employer.

Such education also is a great asset to young business men and women who seek better employment, wider and more responsible fields of service, and positions that have more possibilities for future advancement.

"Time and money spent on self-development is not an expense," an official of B. M. I. has said. "It is an investment, and one that pays great dividends."

The registrar of B .M. I. will be glad to talk with anyone desiring to take work in the school at either day or night classes.

All inquiries, whether in person or by communication, will be answered promptly, courteously, and without obligation.

Every graduate student of B. M. I. is employed.

That sentence speaks volumes about the valuable training students receive at B. M. I., and the effectiveness of the free employment service conducted by the school for its graduates.

In this respect B. M. I. has made an unusual record, for many business schools and colleges find the placement of their students one of the most difficult parts of their service—some of them make no effort to find employment for students.

During the two years that B. M. I. has operated in Longview, Tex., the school has placed a large number of students in private employment—all of its graduates as well as a number of its advanced students.

School officials report they are unable to supply the demand for trained young men and women who are wanted in business and industry in the Longview area.

"We attribute the success we have enjoyed in this respect to these two things," says Mr. Mathis.

"First, to the proper training of our students to render an unusual and distinctive service to their employers; and, second, to our conscientious desire to recommend the correct individual to the business calling for an assistant.

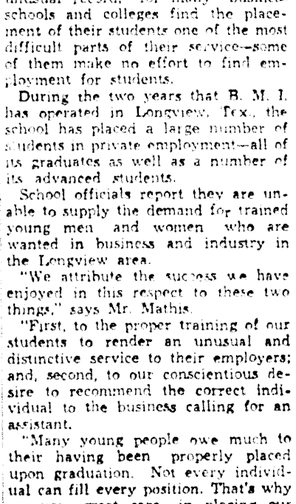

"Many young people owe much to their having been properly placed upon graduation. Not every individual can fill every position. That's why we use great care in placing our graduates.

"After a position has been secured we stress the fact that it is necessary to become acquainted with the nature of the business, the requirements of the position, what the employer expects, and what he likes his employe to do to be of the utmost value to him.

"Our graduates are urged to study constantly to keep abreast of the times."

Americanized Soviet Lady Says People Should Stick To Instinct

("What a Business Course at B. M. I. Will Do For You" is the subject of an interesting article prepared by Miss Fanye Margulis, a native of Russia but now an American. Her article follows:)

By Fanye Margulis

What is success? I'd say "happiness." And now you ask, what might happiness be? I see it as being busy at something you like. A man with millions—even millions earned by his own mind and body—may or may not be a success. A rare form of unhappiness, do you suggest. Yes, it is rare. But it's never been exterminated, and while it's perfectly true the number of unhappy workers exceeds the number of unhappy millionaires, don't lose sight of the corollary; the extent to which the happy workers outnumber the happy millionaires.

How about the proportion of happy to unhappy workers? Your guess is as good as any. But—did you ever see a man or woman, boy or girl, happy doing work he didn't like? Did you ever see a talented writer stop writing when wealth came to him? Or an inventor with whom riches displaced his love for tools?—an artist who discarded his palette because his fame was secure?—a scientist who became a man about town when prosperity was assured?

No. I am not going to say that you ought to take a course in business training as a sort of "vocational experience." A man born engineer should keep on with his blueprints. The man with instinct for trading should stick to his markets. Those whose destiny is science should never leave the laboratory.

But if you don't know what you are—if you're one of those people with an urge that seems to shoot off in a dozen different directions—or if you aren't what you want to be—a business course at B. M. I. will bring you in closer contact with life and its better opportunities; it will prove you to yourself, bring out your "talent"—and to a greater extent than any other training I know, expose you to an illimitable number of chances.

Training at B. M. I. will reveal ability in many "fields." It is the school with the highest degree of efficiency and success. There probably isn't another profession that offers so many opportunities and such a variety of interest as this school.

Here you gain an educational distinction—completing your course will strengthen your mind, and when your diploma is won you will be better able to analyze, make comparisons, and reach conclusions. It will strengthen your character because it will bring you in vital touch with strong personalities and strong forces. It will broaden your views. You will be better prepared to select your life work, for remember that "we enjoy ourselves only in our work, in our doing—and our best doing is our best enjoyment."

Business training, while not absolutely vital to success, is most emphatically desirable for obvious reasons. It means a broader background, a more intimate knowledge of affairs—familiarity with the bigger things in life that will keep you on your toes and in contact with opportunity in the widest possible variety. You waste no time in misdirection—every step of training brings you new knowledge, broadens your viewpoints, and adds to your confidence.

This is an accomplished age. People are better educated, better informed than they used to be. More people are completing business courses now than formerly, and more people are going to complete them next year than this year. So it is necessary for you to be able to meet this competition, and the most natural way to meet it is to be as well educated as those with whom you compete.

To be sound, an investment must have certain standards. It must safeguard money; it must convert into cash; it must, above all, pay good dividends. Do you want an investment that will help you? Honesty and sincerity, truth and candor, are the most important characteristics. May I introduce to you not an ordinary business school, but a school with a personality—an individuality all its own. Here are people, real people with an aim in life; with hopes, ambitions, and desires.

In any complex undertaking, if a common goal is to be reached, there must be sympathetic cooperation. You'll find it at B. M. I. Of course, you can have a lot of ability and fail if you are shiftless—or little ability and succeed if you are industrious.

My training at B. M. I. wasn't a course at all, but the most wonderful experience I have ever had. After all, that is the standard now used to measure the efficiency of education in whatever field it is sought.

The students and teachers are the most congenial I have ever come in contact with.

B. M. I. has but one fee—a very modest fee when measured against the service that is rendered. This fee was arrived at not by arbitrarily selecting, a nice-sounding sum that Mr. Mathis thought he might be able to get for a course, but by accurately determining what he must get to cover his cost of operating, plus a reasonable margin of profit.

There are lower priced courses than those given by B. M. I. You can get "something just as good" for half the price, with a cleverly worded money-back guarantee to boot—but the intelligent person pays no more attention to such offers than he pays to the "guaranteed not to shrink" label on a bargain suit of clothes. He knows that in these days of intense competition in everything, one gets just about what one pays for.

B. M. I. GRADUATE BORN IN RUSSIA

Miss Fanye Margulis Tells Of Experiences In Daring Escape From Reds

Miss Fayne Margulis, a student at B. M. I., is a native of Russia. She went through the terrible experiences of the Bolshevik revolution and although she was only eight years old she retains a vivid memory of the exciting events that transpired.

She came to America with her parents in 1922, after a daring escape from Russia and an anxious journey through Poland, Germany, France and Belgium, where they took passage on a boat for New York.

When she arrived in America, the family migrated to Texas. She was nine, and could not speak English. She finished grammar and high school at Mt. Pleasant in May, 1929, doing the normal 11-year course in seven years.

She was visiting in Longview two weeks prior to the opening of B. M. I. there last year. She decided to locate there instead of at Kilgore, as the family had previously planned.

Upon graduation from B. M. I., Miss Margulis accepted a position with Leiber and Ogle, at Greggton. Shortly thereafter, she went to Shreveport to take a position in the credit department of Selber Bros. She is now private secretary to Charles A. Hazen, managing editor of the Shreveport Times.

Her own story, in brief, follows:

"Fourteen years ago I migrated to the United States with my parents. We sailed from Antwerp, Belgium, on the ship Manchuria. The day we landed in New York was the happiest day in my life—no more fears, no more perpetual suspense and ever-renewed uncertainty—here was a heavenly refuge at last!

"I was a resident of Odessa, Russia, when the revolution swept the country, leaving havoc in its midst. In a short time 'centuries of progress' were swept away like so much dust. It was horrible and cruel. The memories are very unpleasant.

"In 1919, living in Russia had become almost impossible. Our lives were constantly in danger. We never knew when the Bolsheviks would come—sometimes before dawn, sometimes in the middle of the night, during a mealtime, at any unexpected time. We had to be always on the alert—always watching, watching, afraid to eat, to sleep, to walk, for fear of saying or doing the wrong thing.

"It may sound funny, but we seldom undressed at night for fear that we could not dress quickly enough should the Bolsheviks come during the night and throw us out of the house. Things like that have a funny way of taking root even in the mind of an eight-year-old child. Such experiences can't be easily forgot.

"On a Friday morning in the latter part of 1919 we escaped into Galicia with some Polish troops. We almost froze before we reached our destination. Here we lived only a short time. Our next stop was Lwov, Poland, where we lived for almost a year. We would have made this our home had we not heard a rumor that the Bolsheviks were going to take possession of Poland; that was too much for us. We were still Russian citizens, and, had they found us, it would have meant death. We at once secured citizenship papers in Poland, and the same day mother telegraphed to her sister in America to send us a visa (or the necessary papers for us to come to the United States). The papers arrived in about three weeks. We went through the usual procedure before we were granted passports.

"Our next stop was at Ellis Island, New York. That was in 1922. Close your eyes for a moment—hear the hissing of bombs, see the scurrying men, women and children fleeing from it all? There was no hiding place from the Bolshevik—it was horrible. If you've never seen people tortured, and starving, then you can't possibly know what was in our hearts as we entered New York. BISH S. MATHIS EARNS SUCCESS

Executive Who Heads Business Institute Is Self-Made Man

There's a bright new star forging to the zenith in the firmament of southwestern business and professional leadership today—a man young in years, but wise in management, aggressive in spirit and dauntless in courage.

That man is Bish S. Mathis, president of the Bish Mathis institute of Longview, Tex., who announced Saturday that everything is in readiness for the opening of his second school in Monroe Monday.

Mr. Mathis went to Longview early in June, 1935, at the invitation of the Longview Junior Chamber of Commerce, and conferred with a committee seeking new industries and institutions for that city.

He saw Longview's possibilities in a flash, and one June 10, 1935, he formally opened his school of business. It was sponsored as a new institution by the junior commercial organization. Mathis asked no concessions —only friendship and cooperation.

Although his school was a success from the start, he did not rest upon his laurels. At once he became aggressive in civic and community leadership. Within two months the Junior Chamber of Commerce elected him vice-president.

At the conclusion of his six-month term, he was elected president of the organization. Spreading responsibility and taking none of the honors for himself, he succeeded in making the chamber a strong force for community achievement.

Mathis turned his attention to numerous lines of activity. He became active in Boy Scout work, and today, although his private business makes heavy demands upon his time, he serves the Longview area Boy Scout council as activities chairman.

He is still active in the affairs of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is also a member of the Senior Chamber of Commerce, and is active on that organization's convention committee.

In his spectacular success in a wide and varied field of activity, young Mathis has not neglected his religious life and development. He is president of the Wesley Brotherhood, an organization for men of the First Methodist church of Longview. He is also a member of the board of stewards of that church, and is a past president of the Wesley Bible class for men.

During his two years in Longview he has been among the city's most active workers in the interest of charity and relief, and in helping local organizations of all kinds to raise their budgets when public subscriptions and support was necessary.

Mr. Mathis was born in Crowville, La., where he received his elementary and high school education. He completed his college training in 1923 and entered private business. His first business experience after graduation was as a stage artist. He also directed and handled business relations for several orchestras, securing the experience that enabled him later to make a signal success in the amusement field. Although today a youthful man, Mr. Mathis has had nearly 15 years of experience in the field of business education, having served in many capacities.

He went to Tyler, Tex., where he became connected with a business school. He was active in that school until 1928, when he resigned to become business manager and registrar of Draughon's Business college, Little Rock, Ark.

Other business talents came to the forefront in his life and activities in Little Rock. He became owner and manager of the Stadium corporation, and also of the Bish Mathis Distributing company, a novelty concern.

Developing still another side of his character, he became active in civic and community work. He was elected secretary of the Young Business Men's asociation of Greater Little Rock, the largest organization of its kind in the southwest.

Mathis gave up his connections in the Arkansas capital in 1933 to return to Tyler, where, in 1934, he established the Federal institute. He made an unusual record as the head of that school.

In Tyler, he continued his activities along civic and community service lines. He was elected secretary of the Tyler Junior Chamber of Commerce, and served as chairman of the committee to make arrangements for entertaining the state Jaycee convention.

The success of B. M. I. in Longview has been outstanding. Only a few months after the school was opened, the student enrollment had become so great that new and larger quarters were needed.

He foresaw the need for a large business school in Longview, because the area served was large and because the hundreds of business and industrial organizations in the Longview area need thousands of well-trained employes.

Through his constant work to make the school as modern and efficient as it was possible to do so, he was able to persuade a Longview builder to construct a new building that would give the institution adequate facilities.

The school today can accommodate more than 500 students annually. It is operating at near capacity.

The success of the school under Mathis' direction and leadership is forcefully demonstrated in the fact that every graduate is now employed, and that although the institution is turning out nearly 500 students a year, it is unable to supply one-third of the requests for trained assistants.

Mathis attributes his success in securing employment for his students to the fine cooperation he receives from business and industrial organizations in Longview and east Texas. The fact that he receives such cooperation and respect is another indication of his friendliness, and his ability as a leader.

Monday, June 7, a new B. M. I. will be formally opened in Monroe on the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building. This school will be an exact duplicate of the Longview school in furnishings and equipment. The school here will occupy most of the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building, which has been expressly arranged to fill the needs of the school.

Most of the faculty members of the new school have been brought to Monroe from the Longview school, where they have had actual teaching experience or have been trained for their positions by Mathis faculty members.

Mr. Mathis is married, has a two and one-half-year-old daughter, and owns an attractive home on Hughes street in south Longview. Mrs. Mathis is active in the operation of the business school which her husband heads. She is head of the shorthand and literary departments of the school.

Even though he will continue to reside in Longview, Mr. Mathis will spend about half of his time in Monroe. He is also bringing to this city another new business which will be in readiness for operation soon. He is the distributor in east Texas and north Louisiana for the Woodstock Typewriter company. In Longview he has one of the most complete office machine services and one of the best equipped typewriter stores to be found anywhere. He intends to open the same line of activity in Monroe and promises to make this branch as well equipped as the one in Texas.

LORENA WHATLEY REED

Students of B. M. I. are assured of gaining a thorough training in the fundamentals of touch typewriting as a result of the study, special training and efficiency of Lorena Whatley Reed, instructor in typing. After making an outstanding record in that work at B. M. I. in Longview, she has been transferred to the new B. M. I. in Monroe, to head the same department here. She also holds a Gregg shorthand teachers' certificate, and is regarded as one of the most valued B. M. I. staff members.

OFFICE TRAINING DEPARTMENT

The office training department at B. M. I. has the most elaborate and modern equipment to be found in any business school in the southwest, it is believed. New Woodstock and Royal typewriters, multigraph, mimeograph, dictaphone, filing equipment, reference materials, paper cutters, and other office supplies and devices afford B. M. I. students complete training and practical use and application of modern office equipment. It is here that many students receive their finishing work before taking a position.

SCHOOL AFFORDS PRACTICAL WORK

Training Given By Institute Compares With Actual Experience

The most practical training outside of actual experience in business and industry itself—and far more efficient —is afforded by the varied courses offered in the curriculum of B. M. I.

Believing that the aim and purpose of the modern business school should be to prepare the student to enter private business immediately, B. M. I. faculty members have designed and worked out their instructions accordingly.

B. M. I. courses provide a comprehensive and thorough knowledge of the general principles of modern-day business and industry, with a specialized training in the actual requirements of all the various positions open to trained men and women.

Careful selection of text materials and personalized instruction by men and women highly trained in their profession and most of them with actual successful business experience make B. M. I. training even more useful to the student.

Courses available are bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, elementary, proprietorship, partnership and corporation accounting; business ethics, salesmanship, advertising, business penmanship, business spelling and termirology, business English, correspondence and letters, posting machine—both bank and commercial; adding machine, court reporting, office training, multigraph, mimeograph, check writer, filing, dictaphone, commission and wholesale records, income tax, and business administraton.

All of the above courses may be obtaned at B. M. I. in the standard length of time for teaching such course. They parallel the best principles of American business achievement.

In addition to these standard courses, several or all of which are required in various positions in private industry, B. M. I. is offering a number of courses in personality development, such as how to win friends and influence people, how to be happier, and how to go forward even ahead of others who have equal training.

B. M. I. students may take single courses, or a full time list of associated courses in preparation for graduation in a given department of the school.

The author of "Behaviorism," John B. Watson, Pr. D., said, "It is a good book. Her contributions on job holding are most important. If the women in industry would learn their business behavior from her (Miss Maule), most offices would be more happily and more prosperously run."

"It has given me great satisfaction to find a book which stresses the personality qualifications for business, which I know from long experience in training young women, are as essential to success as technical proficiency." This was the statement made by Miss A. Louise Belderhase, who is the director of the secretarial department of the Ballard School, Y. W. C. A.

ease, comfort and efficient study conditions for students.

Mechanical equipment of the school is all standard commercial equipment, the best that can be had on the market, and the kind used in business, industrial and professional organizations throughout the country. This equipment includes Woodstock and Royal typewriters, Sunstrand adding machines, Burroughs posting machines, multigraph, mimeograph, mimeoscope, check writers, paper cutters, and filing equipment.

The departmental and individual method of operation at B. M. I. enables the school to accept new students at any time.

Progress on courses is always allowed in accordance with the individual effort and ability of the student.

Many students reduce their time in school through this kind of cooperative instruction and assistance.

Asset To City

This new industrial plant will mean more than $250,000 in cash annually to the city, in addition to the new population which it is expected to attract here and the wide publicity it affords.

B. M. I. attracts a minimum of 250 students annually from outside the city. It is conservatively estimated that out-of-town students spend an average of $500 each during a full course in the school. On that basis a total of $125,000 in new cash will be brought into the city and spent for board and room, clothing and incidentals and tuition during the course of a year, according to Bish M. Mathis, president of the institute.

"In addition, location of this modern school in Monroe keeps at least 250 students here, and probably more, who otherwise would go to some other city to obtain their business educations," Mr. Mathis said. "This means another $125,000 in cash for the city, since that amount would be spent elsewhere if the school were not located in Monroe. Another angle that should not be overlooked is the fact that through B. M. I., a large number of local girls and boys are able to secure business training that would not otherwise be able to attend a business school or college, Because of a lack of the necessary finances or other handicaps, many boys and girls could not go out of the city and away from home to school.

Many Advantages

"The services provided for those who fall in this classification are invaluable to many young people, Mr. Mathis declared. The school is of great benefit to business and industrial organizations in Monroe because from its graduates, employers can secure well-trained and efficient assistants who will be of great help to them.

"B. M. I. affords the city another advantage through the advertising it gives. Students who attend the local school write back home, telling of the business activities and opportunities in Monroe and describing the city.

"Also B. M. I. sends out a continual stream of promotion material in connection with its employment services. This goes to many kinds of business, industrial and professional offices and organizations throughout the country. Thus, in addition to being a $250,000 business, B. M. I. affords the city many opportunities and advantages it would not otherwise have without the school," Mr. Mathis concluded.

tudes. Securing your training and landing a job constitutes a beginning —not an end. Have the right mental attitude toward your job. Business attitude as distinguished from social attitude, a development of the last decade, will be discussed with the members of the class.

"Move on or drop out," is the common call of business today. You must add continually not only to what you have but to what you are. You must make yourself more of a person. The way to make yourself more of a person is to develop your powers, your faculties, your capacities, your interests, and your apptitudes in every direction.

If you are merely wanting a job, this course is not for you; but if you are shaping your efforts toward the building of a career, it's just the course you are looking for.

WELL WRITTEN LETTERS URGED

If Expertly Done, Use Of Mail As Effective As Personal Interview

Getting a job is essentially like any other form of salesmanship. When it is done by mail, one of the most effective (and one of the most generally abused) methods of selling is employed—the sales letter. It is possible for a letter of application to have all the warmth and persuasiveness of a personal interview. Or it can be as flat and ineffective as "I read your ad. I would like the job."

The principles behind every other business letter apply to the application-for-a-job letter—neatness, clarity, interest, naturalness and "punch." The words you use and the manner in which you express yourself will largely determine whether or not your letter will receive careful consideration. In general, applicants for a position fall into two types—those who have had experience in the kind of work for which they are applying, and those who have just graduated from school and who have had no experience. For those who have had previous business experience the problem of getting a new job is not nearly so difficult as that of the inexperienced person.

As it has been proved that employers judge an applicant 75 per cent by his or her appearance, the letter of application, which generally precedes the personal interview, should be meticulously neat. It should be typewritten on good quality bond paper, using a typewriter that gives a clear, sharp impression. If your typewriter type is not clean and well aligned, it will be well worth the extra trouble to find one that is, or to have the letter done by a competent public stenographer. The importance of the appearance of the letter can not be overemphasized. In a recent advertisement for a salesman in a large metropolitan area, one employer found that fewer than eight application letters out of a hundred met his standards for neatness and appearance.

The tone of the letter should reflect the personality of the applicant. Generally it should be modest but positive, and it should show enthusiasm and interest. Obviously, a letter of application for an executive position such as advertising manager, should reflect more individuality and a more unorthodox presentation than that of a letter applying for a stenographic position.

This brings us to the importance of gaining an understanding of the needs of the employer and the type of business that he is conducting.

An applicant for a position of secretary, for example, might stress, in addition to her qualifications as a stenographer and typist, her ability to act as a "buffer" between her employer and the importunities of salesmen—her ability to handle telephone and personal conversations tactfully, etc. All employers agree that it is most exceptional to find in a letter of application any real knowledge or understanding of the employer's business. And although no employer expects a comprehensive knowledge of his business from the average applicant, he does know that the public libraries have a wealth of helpful fundamental knowledge of almost every type of business. Whenever it is possible, therefore, the applicant should gain some knowledge of these fundamentals before applying for a position.

It should be unnecessary to remind the applicant that no qualifications or experience should be claimed which cannot be backed by proof.

Among a group of application letters submitted by men for a high type of sales position, over 50 per cent failed to list more than the scantiest sort of specific data. The assumption might have been that their letters (containing little essential information) were sufficiently provocative to produce an interview, when there would be plenty of time to present this necessary material. Other flaws among the majority of the letters which were analyzed, were (1) handwritten instead of typed, (2) misunderstanding the nature of the position, (3) stilted openings ("In reply to your advertisement"), (4) use of flamboyant expressions, elaborately encased in quotation marks and (5) attempted humor. Incidentally, of the 10 men who were interviewed, only one was keenly aware that alert salesmen should send a follow-up letter.

"I was particularly pleased to experience the interesting interview we had this morning and wish to tell you again how delighted I should be to accept the position under the conditions mentioned.

"In considering our conversation, I realize the time was short and therefore enclose additional comments which might be useful to you in arriving at a decision."

Attracting attention, arousing interest, creating desire, and closing the sale, these four principles of selling can be applied to the job-hunter's letter. Sincerity is the backbone of any successful sale. Make the reader believe that you really are the person for the job by being human, eager, and above all interested in the employer's business.

BISH S. MATHIS EARNS SUCCESS

Executive Who Heads Business Institute Is Self-Made Man

There's a bright new star forging to the zenith in the firmament of southwestern business and professional leadership today—a man young in years, but wise in management, aggressive in spirit and dauntless in courage.

That man is Bish S. Mathis, president of the Bish Mathis institute of Longview, Tex., who announced Saturday that everything is in readiness for the opening of his second school in Monroe Monday.

Mr. Mathis went to Longview early in June, 1935, at the invitation of the Longview Junior Chamber of Commerce, and conferred with a committee seeking new industries and institutions for that city.

He saw Longview's possibilities in a flash, and one June 10, 1935, he formally opened his school of business. It was sponsored as a new institution by the junior commercial organization. Mathis asked no concessions—only friendship and cooperation.

Although his school was a success from the start, he did not rest upon his laurels. At once he became aggressive in civic and community leadership. Within two months the Junior Chamber of Commerce elected him vice-president.

At the conclusion of his six-month term, he was elected president of the organization. Spreading responsibility and taking none of the honors for himself, he succeeded in making the chamber a strong force for community achievement.

Mathis turned his attention to numerous lines of activity. He became active in Boy Scout work, and today, although his private business makes heavy demands upon his time, he serves the Longview area Boy Scout council as activities chairman.

He is still active in the affairs of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is also a member of the Senior Chamber of Commerce, and is active on that organization's convention committee.

In his spectacular success in a wide and varied field of activity, young Mathis has not neglected his religious life and development. He is president of the Wesley Brotherhood, an organization for men of the First Methodist church of Longview. He is also a member of the board of stewards of that church, and is a past president of the Wesley Bible class for men.

During his two years in Longview he has been among the city's most active workers in the interest of charity and relief, and in helping local organizations of all kinds to raise their budgets when public subscriptions and support was necessary.

Mr. Mathis was born in Crowville, La., where he received his elementary and high school education. He completed his college training in 1923 and entered private business. His first business experience after graduation was as a stage artist. He also directed and handled business relations for several orchestras, securing the experience that enabled him later to make a signal success in the amusement field. Although today a youthful man, Mr. Mathis has had nearly 15 years of experience in the field of business education, having served in many capacities.

He went to Tyler, Tex., where he became connected with a business school. He was active in that school until 1928, when he resigned to become business manager and registrar of Draughon's Business college, Little Rock, Ark.

Other business talents came to the forefront in his life and activities in Little Rock. He became owner and manager of the Stadium corporation, and also of the Bish Mathis Distributing company, a novelty concern.

Developing still another side of his character, he became active in civic and community work. He was elected secretary of the Young Business Men's asociation of Greater Little Rock, the largest organization of its kind in the southwest.

Mathis gave up his connections in the Arkansas capital in 1933 to return to Tyler, where, in 1934, he established the Federal institute. He made an unusual record as the head of that school.

In Tyler, he continued his activities along civic and community service lines. He was elected secretary of the Tyler Junior Chamber of Commerce, and served as chairman of the committee to make arrangements for entertaining the state Jaycee convention.

The success of B. M. I. in Longview has been outstanding. Only a few months after the school was opened, the student enrollment had become so great that new and larger quarters were needed.

He foresaw the need for a large business school in Longview, because the area served was large and because the hundreds of business and industrial organizations in the Longview area need thousands of well-trained employes.

Through his constant work to make the school as modern and efficient as it was possible to do so, he was able to persuade a Longview builder to construct a new building that would give the institution adequate facilities.

The school today can accommodate more than 500 students annually. It is operating at near capacity.

The success of the school under Mathis' direction and leadership is forcefully demonstrated in the fact that every graduate is now employed, and that although the institution is turning out nearly 500 students a year, it is unable to supply one-third of the requests for trained assistants.

Mathis attributes his success in securing employment for his students to the fine cooperation he receives from business and industrial organizations in Longview and east Texas. The fact that he receives such cooperation and respect is another indication of his friendliness, and his ability as a leader.

Monday, June 7, a new B. M. I. will be formally opened in Monroe on the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building. This school will be an exact duplicate of the Longview school in furnishings and equipment. The school here will occupy most of the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building, which has been expressly arranged to fill the needs of the school.

Most of the faculty members of the new school have been brought to Monroe from the Longview school, where they have had actual teaching experience or have been trained for their positions by Mathis faculty members.

Mr. Mathis is married, has a two and one-half-year-old daughter, and owns an attractive home on Hughes street in south Longview. Mrs. Mathis is active in the operation of the business school which her husband heads. She is head of the shorthand and literary departments of the school.

Even though he will continue to reside in Longview, Mr. Mathis will spend about half of his time in Monroe. He is also bringing to this city another new business which will be in readiness for operation soon. He is the distributor in east Texas and north Louisiana for the Woodstock Typewriter company. In Longview he has one of the most complete office machine services and one of the best equipped typewriter stores to be found anywhere. He intends to open the same line of activity in Monroe and promises to make this branch as well equipped as the one in Texas.

Public Relations Director Gives Advice To Graduates

G. Pat Green, public relations director for B. M. I., Saturday delivered a special message to school graduates of 1937 in which he urged the graduates to make a careful selection of a vocation or profession, so as to avoid being an "unfortunate misfit" and spending what should be a most successful life, in mediocre obscurity.

Mr. Green is a psychologist of national reputation and has experienced many successful years as a lecturer on the chatauqua and lyceum circuits. His work during the past few years has consisted in the conducting of schools for personnel development among executives of some of the largest corporations in the country.

His message to the 1937 school graduates follows:

"Salutations and congratulations to you all; We are proud of you, not merely because of the fact your grades were sufficient to allow you to graduate, but prouder still of that spirit of cooperation, good sportsmanship and fair play you have shown through all the work days, and play days of your high school days. Again let us congratulate you for the successes of the past. But what of the future?

"Commencement does not mean that your education is complete, but it should mean you have just commenced to learn. But what to learn is your greatest problem. At this juncture allow me to suggest that we use a practical eye in looking to the future. Your selection of a profession or a vocation should be made with due regard to your personality, plus your likes and dislikes. Otherwise you may be another unfortunate misfit and spend what should have been a most successful life in obscure mediocrity. May I repeat, you should be practical in the selection of a curriculum, be sure that the subjects will qualify you to fill a definite place in the economic life of our country, and bring to you moneys for your time, based upon your ability to render a definite service.

"Education is nothing but 'human experience.' Each text you study represents thousands of years of human experience which you may make your own through mental absorption and simulation; therefore you see it is possible for you to live thousands of years in your brief, alloted time of three score and ten. Again let me remind you to be sure those absorbed and assimilated experiences have a dollar and cents value to you immediately upon making them your own.

"The first law is that of self-preservation, and this begins with self-respect; self-respect can only be maintained through self-reliance, which must be based upon self-maintenance. If you are to continue your mental development strictly from a cultural point of view, and by so doing you will work a hardship upon those relatives or friends who have so liberally given of their all—let me suggest that you save their money and your time by going to work now. Four years of time spent on the campus will naturally awaken many wants which will make it easy for you to form expensive and extravagant habits. After you have completed your four years of cultural training and find that you have not increased your earning power sufficient to maintain these habits and satisfy these awakened wants, you will become most unhappy, and because of this unhappiness you may be led to do many things unseeming of one who has attained such culture.

"My friends, may I suggest that you, who have an adaptable personality investigate the field of commerce before you definitely decide upon your university career.

"Figures show that the average earnings of those who have completed the regular liberal art course, and have spent 40 years of active life in business, have had an earning ability of some $144,000 during their lifetime. Of course you realize there is a substantial reason for this. It is estimated that there are less than 5,000 in the professions such as law, medicine, and dentistry, while in the field of business today we have over two million executives, and from the best sources of information, through which it is possible to gather data, business today needs not less than ten million more young men and women, highly trained in the science of business, to lift business to a high level of efficiency. So you can readily see that there are far more chances in business than in any other field, and, after all, success only comes to those who are sufficiently qualified to take advantage of the chances that come their way and make of them their opportunities.

"I am sure many of you, who are interested in the best training, will not be able to consider a four-year course in commerce because of lack of finances. To you may I suggest a solution for your educational problem.

"In the years past it has been my pleasure to visit the majority of the best business training institutions in this country, many of them several times, but in all of my contacts never have I investigated a school of commerce which equals the Bish Mathis institute, of Longview, Tex. Their system of instruction, the patient interest taken in the individual student, the high scholastic standards adhered to, plus the never tiring efforts of their placement department in assisting each graduate to secure employment, yet guaranteeing no jobs as a method of securing students, bespeak the character of the new Bish Mathis institute which is to be formally opened on the eighth floor of the Bernhardt building, in Monroe, on Monday.

"This individualistic school of commerce will offer to you several courses of specialized business training, which will upon the completion of any one of them give you an immediate earning ability and this can be had in one school year at a very nominal fee. I do not suggest this short course method in preference to a full four years outline of commerce—yet you will find there are several highly advantageous features found in the curriculum of Bish Mathis institute, which are not found in many of our leading universities. Therefore, may I suggest you investigate this new and uniquely different house of commerce where the management will sincerely serve you.

"Remembering the pleasant contacts made with principals and students in the territory, in which it was my pleasure to speak during the closing weeks of your school year, remembering as I do your vivacious, enthusiastic personalities, and remembering, too, the serious expressions of your appreciaiton, my hope is that I will be remembered by you as your friend."

PSYCHOLOGIST

G. Pat Green (above), psychologist of national reputation, and lecturer for many years in chatauqua and lyceum circuits, is public relations director for B. M. I.

MATHIS IS AGENT FOR WOODSTOCKS

B. M. I. Head To Handle Well Known Typewriter Model In This Area

Bish S. Mathis this week announced that he has taken the agency for distribution and service for Woodstock typewriters in the entire north Louisiana area.

He has established the new business under the firm name of Woodstock Typewriter agency, which will immediately open for business in Monroe. Mr. Mathis announced that he had acquired the Woodstock agency so he could place these fine machines in use in his business school here, the Bish Mathis institute.

Mr. Mathis also declared that he had a further end in view—to give the business, industrial and professional men of north Louisiana, a better, more modern, and improved typewriter service. He has practically completed his local organization and will soon offer one of the most complete typewriter sales and service organization to be found in this section of the country.

Convincing evidence of the supremacy of the Woodstock typewriter is seen in the fact that for the fourth consecutive year a girl using a Woodstock typewriter has won the international commercial schools typewriting speed and accuracy contest.

Miss Gioconda Zumpano, student of a Salt Lake City, Utah, business college, broke all previous records in 1936 by writing 106.7 words per minute, using a Woodstock typewriter. The only students in the entire contest who wrote more than 95 words per minute were those using Woodstock typewriters.

Further proof of their popularity is shown in the fact that of all typewriters used in the following large schools, the percentage indicated is Woodstock typewriters: New York City High school division, 70 per cent; Detroit, 50 per cent; Minneapolis, 65 per cent; Denver, 33 1-3 per cent; San Francisco, 50 per cent; Salt Lake City, 40 per cent; Los Angeles, 30 per cent; Kansas City, 95 per cent.

Mr. Mathis will also handle a complete stock of adding machines and will maintain a complete service department in connection with this business.

WOODSTOCK AGENCY DISPLAY

The office and display room of the Woodstock Typewriter agency, at Longview, is one of the most attractive typewriter offices in Texas. The stands, display tables and show cases are made of select red gum, hand-carved and finished in natural wood. Both the wall cases and the large pinnacle display tables are indirectly lighted. A similar store will be opened in Monroe in the near future by Bish S. Mathis.

Secretaries Get The Highest Pay: 'And Why Not?' Asks Dr. Gregg—

NEW YORK—Why does the secretary, the deus ex machina of the American business office, receive a higher average salary than all other classes of female office help? That this is true is indicated by a report just published by the woman's bureau of the United States department of labor as a guide to girls seeking office work.

The answer is very simple, according to Dr. John Robert Gregg, nationally known authority on business education, and founder of the system of shorthand which bears his name. "The secretary has proven that she can take it by applying herself to the study," he says. "The girl whose economic necessity compels her to work for a living will never get further than the switchboard, the office files and poorly paid routine typing if she hasn't the spunk and ambition to prepare herself for a secretarial career. If she knows her shorthand circles and curves, she will soon leave her unfortunate typist and file clerk sisters far behind."

The women's bureau survey showed that among 45,000 women employed at various office tasks in banks, advertising agencies, insurance companies, investment and mail order houses, public utilities and publishing firms, secretaries receive the highest average pay, file clerks the lowest. In all cities for every type of office work studied the average women drew $80 a month. The average for secretaries was $156 a month, as against $81 for file clerks.

The government study, the first of its kind ever made, "is a high tribute to the commercial teachers in our public schools and business colleges," declares Dr. Gregg. "Whatever criticism may be directed at present-day educational methods, it is apparent that education for business is in capable hands."

ODE TO B. M. I. TYPIST

Vainly
As a foolish child
Grasping at the moon
I sought to post.

Madly
As a headless chicken
Wrestling with death
I groped for keys.

Desperately
As a drowning man
Struggling for time
I heard the ball—

Hopefully
Yea, prayerfully!
I counted—one, three, five, seven.
Fate is cruel
Especially on Wednesday.

LITTLE JOBS ARE STILL IMPORTANT

B. M. I. Stresses Detail Work For All Students; Gives Thorough Training

Little jobs count. It is therefore important that a successful business school pay attention to detail in the proper training of students. This story illustrates the point:

Everything was at a standstill. The telephone girl was sick and no one could operate the switchboard.

Three men were ready to step into the president's shoes at a moment's notice; two were treading on the heels of the sales manager; the bookkeepers were prospective auditors; the stenographers were budding secretaries.

Everyone had equipped himself with special knowledge for the big jobs. Of 50 people none had learned the technique of a small job. And so the mighty brain power of a whole organization was substituted until a switchboard operator could be found.

This actually happened— and is happening today somewhere.

The magazine advertisements tell us of young men whose progress is blocked because they did not equip themselves with broad knowledge which is demanded in big jobs.

Here is a plea for men who are so trained in the details of ordinary business procedure that they are able to make a telephone call without assistance, who are able to write a letter on a typewriter directly if a stenographer isn't available, who can estimate a job and make out an order if a clerk is absent.

The magazines have over-emphasized the importance of young men who are able to stand up at the director's table and discuss the law of diminishing returns and the influence of turnovers on profits. We are in danger of arriving at the point where no one will sharpen his own pencil.

We need men who are familiar with the broad principles of business technique, but the fact remains that you can think and plan a business into bankruptcy if no one is willing to concern himself with details.

Progress is girded to every man's gait. Those who keep step feel the pace to be natural. Dragging by is where the strain comes in. Keeping step is keeping fit.

CHARACTER VITAL IN MAKING SUCCESS

A student of B. M. I. who has made an outstanding record since graduation wrote while a student that "character is one of the most important factors contributing to success."

"Character is the most complicated, formidable, and infinite of all world influences, as well as the most mysterious," the student wrote.

"The secret of success is not always to choose right and wrong, but to be able always to choose right from wrong. It takes good character to do the latter."

Our Hearty Congratulations To

TO STUDENTS AND FRIENDS OF B. M. I.:

Exactly two years ago B. M. I. was established in Longview. Our sole aim and highest ambition was to build a business educational institution second to none in the Southwest.

In this short space of time our ambition has been fully realized. We have established B. M. I. as an institution of the highest type. This was possible because of the splendid cooperation of our many friends, students and former students. Great assistance has also come from an exceedingly large number of business firms and individuals who have constantly employed our graduates.

Friday, February 26, the hand of fate dealt us a tremendous blow! Our entire facilities were destroyed by fire—gone, our life's ambition wiped out in this one stroke. Although our hopes were lowered, our spirit considerably dampened, and our finances drastically reduced through this loss, it was never our thought to do anything other than to give back to that territory an even greater B. M. I.

Construction was begun immediately and even the handmade equipment was replaced with many improved features. Everything was ready for us to resume regular schedule Monday, March 22—losing only three weeks.

The splendid way our students, former students, and friends cooperated will not soon be forgotten. They have helped us considerably—more than they know through their loyalty and kindness.

B. M. I. again marches on. Not only in Longview but with a new school to open here in Monroe, Louisiana, on Monday, June 7. It will occupy the major portion of the eighth floor of the Bernhardt Building. This space has been especially arranged for us and is very ideal in every way.

The school is modern throughout and the facilities are the finest to be found in any institution. You must see it to fully appreciate just how complete everything is. We invite you to be with us Monday evening at our formal opening from 7 to 10 p.m. A welcome awaits you.

PRIMOS INSTALLS AIR-CONDITIONING

New Westinghouse Unit Assures Comfort At Local Cafe During Summer Months

With the installation of the new Westinghouse air-conditioning unit, Primos' restaurant and cafeteria at the corner of North Fourth and DeSiard streets "makes its own weather" and assures comfortably cool temperatures throughout the summer for its clients.

The air-conditioning plant installed at the Primos restaurant and cafeteria is the largest unit in any Monroe restaurant and is the latest type Westinghouse hermetically sealed condensing unit equipped with an evaporative condenser. The compressor motor and head is gas cooled. The entire unit provides for a proper balance between humidity and temperatures and uses the latest principles of air-conditioning.

Clients dining at the Primos restaurant and cafeteria during the hot weather are assured the greatest comfort and escape from the excessive summer heat. Realizing the necessity of providing the most comfortable surroundings in which to serve the usual tempting and well-cooked dishes at all times at the Primos restaurant and cafeteria, Gus K. Primos, proprietor and manager, spared no expense in obtaining the latest and most efficient equipment for his air-conditioning plant. No unsightly machinery is visible in the restaurant and the ducts have been artfully disguised to resemble the ceiling material. Engineers declare that the system is the most complete Westinghouse installation including compressor, air-conditioning unit and evaporative condenser which is manufactured by that company.

The waitresses at Primos restaurant and cafeteria, every one of them pleasant and pretty, are now wearing their new summer uniforms and present a smart and pleasing appearance dressed in the wine colored material trimmed in white. The uniforms are manufactured by the Angelica Jacket company of St. Louis, Mo., and are as smart as any worn by waitresses in metropolitan centers.

The new California water jugs also add a splash of color to the tables in the main dining room and the booths at Primos'. These water jugs, each table being provided with one of different color, are pleasing to the eye and easily handled. They go well with the new condiment silver sets which were recently installed by Mr. Primos.

TESTS CAR EXHAUSTS

The United Motors exhaust tester (shown above) takes the guess out of carburetor service. Carburetors that are set too "rich" waste gasoline. The exhaust tester assures maximum efficiency by setting the carburetor so as to deliver the proper mixture of gas and air which makes for greater power and economy. This instrument is part of the equipment in the automotive department of United Electric Service, Inc., located at 306 North Third street.

INTERNATIONALS MUCH IN DEMAND

Many New Improvements Developed In 26 New Models Now On Market

A survey of truck purchases throughout the country during the past year revealed that every fourth truck purchased by a farmer is an International. This record is a practical demonstration of the excellence of the new line of International trucks which were introduced on the market at the beginning of 1937.

International Harvester company is the world's leading builder of heavy-duty trucks. The complete new line consists of 26 models in 77 wheelbases with gross vehicle weights ranging from 4,400 to 62,000 pounds. All the new trucks are streamlined and equipped like fine cars.

Many decided improvements and new features of design and construction have been incorporated in the engines of the International models. Every feature has been fully tested and proved and all contribute greatly to performance, greater power and economy.

The new Internationals provide universally standardized (S. A. E.) cab-to-rear-axle dimensions so vitally necessary to body interchangeability, and they also permit mounting of standard length bodies of stock sizes. Front axles are set back, and this, together with the relocation of rear axles and cabs, contributes greatly to improved load distribution, not only of body and payload but of gross weight as well. Thus loads on front and rear tires are more uniform, relieving the usually overloaded rear tires by transferring a greater portion of the load to the front tires.

Wheelbases, in conjunction with correct cab-to-rear-axle dimensions, are available to accommodate all lengths of bodies, with the ideal condition resulting from the use of bodies in even lengths. At the same time, bodies in odd foot lengths will permit satisfactory mounting and load distribution on either the next shorter or longer wheelbases.

The International Harvester company's office in this city is located at 720 DeSiard street, where experts will be glad to demonstrate the many decided improvements and new features of design and construction that have been incorporated in the new 1937 International truck models.

SWP PAINTS NOW MIXED WITH OZLO

New Alloying Pigment Makes Sherwin-Williams Paints World's Standard

No home is prouder than the "clothes" it wears. And no home can be as proud of any covering as it can be of colorful, durable SWP paint, America's best known and most widely used house paint.

Painted with SWP, your home can radiate color, loveliness and charm. Users of SWP paints can use these products with the knowledge that they are using the finest in paint materials.

The Sherwin-Williams company, 109 Catalpa street, known as "paint headquarters for Monroe," invites property owners in this section to consult its personnel in all matters pertaining to the painting and decorating of their homes.

A corps of chemists in the Sherwin-Williams laboratories anonunced the recent discovery of a new "alloying pigment" known as S-W Ozlo, which fortifies all SWP paints used for the exterior of houses. This new alloying pigment comes from the mines of the Sherwin-Williams company in New Mexico and is a metallic ore that combines lead and zinc in intimate chemical union.

This ore goes to the Sherwin-Williams smelter at Coffeeville, Kan., where the pigment plant is located. Into the refining ordeal of 2,000 degrees fire goes this ore—fire so intense that lead and zinc pass off as vapor—to be condensed through a half mile of great funnels, cooled and condensed into the form of snowy white pigment finer than flower, and finished as S-W Ozlo, consisting of an intimate chemical union of purest zinc oxide and purest lead sulphate. This new chemical discovery makes SWP paints the world's standard for house paints.

Ozlo keeps SWP smooth as it weathers, so smooth that you can wash it clean, year after year. Ordinary house paints cannot be washed so clean that they look newly painted SWP paints, however, can be washed and the surface made to look like new. Ozlo is only slightly affected by the sulphur gases normally present in air everywhere, and Ozlo gives SWP paint greater resistance to atmospheric discoloration which turns hand-mixed white lead paints gray.

More than 6,000 campgrounds will be ready for the season's vacation visitors to the 160 national forests, the United States forest service says.

AIR-CONDITIONING ASSURES COMFORT

Proves Its Value In Promoting Well-Being During Summer Months

Air conditioning is a modern convenience which is rapidly becoming just as much of a necessity for the modern standard of living as plumbing, refrigeration, and the telephone, according to O. M. Rucker, of the air conditioning department of Standard Office Supply company, who asserted that air conditioning is essential to health and wellbeing during the summer weather.

"It stands to reason that the distress caused by hot weather is not good for us," said Mr. Rucker. "Discomfort is nature's way of telling us that there is danger in our environment. On the contrary, the sensation of comfort is nature's approval of our environment. The comfort of air conditioning, therefore, is proof of its value.

"To regard conditioned air merely as something pleasant and agreeable is a mistake," Mr. Rucker continued. "That is putting the emphasis on the wrong place, because the most important picture of air conditioning is the protection that it affords from the strains imposed upon the vital organs of the body by high temperatures and high humidities.

"Air conditioning in the bedroom induces sound, refreshing sleep," he said. "It relaxes tired muscles and taut nerves. The living room is a refuge from the outdoor heat and noise. The conditioned dining room makes eating a pleasure and creates an appetite for nourishing foods. In the office, a better quality and larger quantity of work can be done. There is less likelihood of snap judgments and wrong decisions, for conditioned air is favorable to clear and deliberate thinking."

The benefits of air conditioning are so apparent that no home or office can be regarded as strictly modern without it, in the opinion of Mr. Rucker. He predicts that air conditioning, as its use increases, will make life longer and more worth living, supplementing the effects of medical and sanitary measures and have already added almost a decade to the average span of American life.

Mr. Rucker pointed out that the Standard Office Supply company, with its thoroughly trained staff of engineers and installation experts, are in an excellent position to offer their estimating service free of charge. Just call 519. There is no obligation.

RESTAURATEUR

Gus K. Primos, proprietor and manager of Primos' restaurant and cafeteria, located at the corner of North Fourth and DeSiard streets, recently installed the latest Westinghouse air conditioning unit on the market, which assures clients who patronize his restaurant real comfort and cool temperatures during the summer months.

The Virgin islands of the United States, formerly the Danish West Indies, were bought for $25,000,000 by the United States from Denmark in a treaty proclaimed January 25, 1917.

The first United States coin ever issued was minted in New York in 1787. It was a "Franklin penny" executed by a local coppersmith named Jarvis.

PRIMOS INSTALLS AIR-CONDITIONING

New Westinghouse Unit Assures Comfort At Local Cafe During Summer Months

With the installation of the new Westinghouse air-conditioning unit, Primos' restaurant and cafeteria at the corner of North Fourth and DeSiard streets "makes its own weather" and assures comfortably cool temperatures throughout the summer for its clients.

The air-conditioning plant installed at the Primos restaurant and cafeteria is the largest unit in any Monroe restaurant and is the latest type Westinghouse hermetically sealed condensing unit equipped with an evaporative condenser. The compressor motor and head is gas cooled. The entire unit provides for a proper balance between humidity and temperatures and uses the latest principles of air-conditioning.

Clients dining at the Primos restaurant and cafeteria during the hot weather are assured the greatest comfort and escape from the excessive summer heat. Realizing the necessity of providing the most comfortable surroundings in which to serve the usual tempting and well-cooked dishes at all times at the Primos restaurant and cafeteria, Gus K. Primos, proprietor and manager, spared no expense in obtaining the latest and most efficient equipment for his air-conditioning plant. No unsightly machinery is visible in the restaurant and the ducts have been artfully disguised to resemble the ceiling material. Engineers declare that the system is the most complete Westinghouse installation including compressor, air-conditioning unit and evaporative condenser which is manufactured by that company.

The waitresses at Primos restaurant and cafeteria, every one of them pleasant and pretty, are now wearing their new summer uniforms and present a smart and pleasing appearance dressed in the wine colored material trimmed in white. The uniforms are manufactured by the Angelica Jacket company of St. Louis, Mo., and are as smart as any worn by waitresses in metropolitan centers.

The new California water jugs also add a splash of color to the tables in the main dining room and the booths at Primos'. These water jugs, each table being provided with one of different color, are pleasing to the eye and easily handled. They go well with the new condiment silver sets which were recently installed by Mr. Primos.

Germany is the leading supplier of merchandise to Soviet Russia with exports in the lasts year valued at $61,602,000. The United States ranks second with exports valued at $41,000,000.

TESTS CAR EXHAUSTS

The United Motors exhaust tester (shown above) takes the guess out of carburetor service. Carburetors that are set too "rich" waste gasoline. The exhaust tester assures maximum efficiency by setting the carburetor so as to deliver the proper mixture of gas and air which makes for greater power and economy. This instrument is part of the equipment in the automotive department of United Electric Service, Inc., located at 306 North Third street.

INTERNATIONALS MUCH IN DEMAND

Many New Improvements Developed In 26 New Models Now On Market

A survey of truck purchases throughout the country during the past year revealed that every fourth truck purchased by a farmer is an International. This record is a practical demonstration of the excellence of the new line of International trucks which were introduced on the market at the beginning of 1937.

International Harvester company is the world's leading builder of heavy-duty trucks. The complete new line consists of 26 models in 77 wheelbases with gross vehicle weights ranging from 4,400 to 62,000 pounds. All the new trucks are streamlined and equipped like fine cars.

Many decided improvements and new features of design and construction have been incorporated in the engines of the International models. Every feature has been fully tested and proved and all contribute greatly to performance, greater power and economy.

The new Internationals provide universally standardized (S. A. E.) cab-to-rear-axle dimensions so vitally necessary to body interchangeability, and they also permit mounting of standard length bodies of stock sizes. Front axles are set back, and this, together with the relocation of rear axles and cabs, contributes greatly to improved load distribution, not only of body and payload but of gross weight as well. Thus loads on front and rear tires are more uniform, relieving the usually overloaded rear tires by transferring a greater portion of the load to the front tires.

Wheelbases, in conjunction with correct cab-to-rear-axle dimensions, are available to accommodate all lengths of bodies, with the ideal condition resulting from the use of bodies in even lengths. At the same time, bodies in odd foot lengths will permit satisfactory mounting and load distribution on either the next shorter or longer wheelbases.

The International Harvester company's office in this city is located at 720 DeSiard street, where experts will be glad to demonstrate the many decided improvements and new features of design and construction that have been incorporated in the new 1937 International truck models.

SWP PAINTS NOW MIXED WITH OZLO

New Alloying Pigment Makes Sherwin-Williams Paints World's Standard

No home is prouder than the "clothes" it wears. And no home can be as proud of any covering as it can be of colorful, durable SWP paint, America's best known and most widely used house paint.

Painted with SWP, your home can radiate color, loveliness and charm. Users of SWP paints can use these products with the knowledge that they are using the finest in paint materials.

The Sherwin-Williams company, 109 Catalpa street, known as "paint headquarters for Monroe," invites property owners in this section to consult its personnel in all matters pertaining to the painting and decorating of their homes.

A corps of chemists in the Sherwin-Williams laboratories anonunced the recent discovery of a new "alloying pigment" known as S-W Ozlo, which fortifies all SWP paints used for the exterior of houses. This new alloying pigment comes from the mines of the Sherwin-Williams company in New Mexico and is a metallic ore that combines lead and zinc in intimate chemical union.

This ore goes to the Sherwin-Williams smelter at Coffeeville, Kan., where the pigment plant is located. Into the refining ordeal of 2,000 degrees fire goes this ore—fire so intense that lead and zinc pass off as vapor—to be condensed through a half mile of great funnels, cooled and condensed into the form of snowy white pigment finer than flower, and finished as S-W Ozlo, consisting of an intimate chemical union of purest zinc oxide and purest lead sulphate. This new chemical discovery makes SWP paints the world's standard for house paints.

Ozlo keeps SWP smooth as it weathers, so smooth that you can wash it clean, year after year. Ordinary house paints cannot be washed so clean that they look newly painted. SWP paints, however, can be washed and the surface made to look like new. Ozlo is only slightly affected by the sulphur gases normally present in air everywhere, and Ozlo gives SWP paint greater resistance to atmospheric discoloration which turns hand-mixed white lead paints gray.

More than 6,000 campgrounds will be ready for the season's vacation visitors to the 160 national forests, the United States forest service says.

AIR-CONDITIONING ASSURES COMFORT

Proves Its Value In Promoting Well-Being During Summer Months

Air conditioning is a modern convenience which is rapidly becoming just as much of a necessity for the modern standard of living as plumbing, refrigeration, and the telephone, according to O. M. Rucker, of the air conditioning department of Standard Office Supply company, who asserted that air conditioning is essential to health and wellbeing during the summer weather.

"It stands to reason that the distress caused by hot weather is not good for us," said Mr. Rucker. "Discomfort is nature's way of telling us that there is danger in our environment. On the contrary, the sensation of comfort is nature's approval of our environment. The comfort of air conditioning, therefore, is proof of its value.

"To regard conditioned air merely as something pleasant and agreeable is a mistake," Mr. Rucker continued. "That is putting the emphasis on the wrong place, because the most important picture of air conditioning is the protection that it affords from the strains imposed upon the vital organs of the body by high temperatures and high humidities.

"Air condiitioning in the bedroom induces sound, refreshing sleep," he said. "It relaxes tired muscles and taut nerves. The living room is a refuge from the outdoor heat and noise. The conditioned dining room makes eating a pleasure and creates an appetite for nourishing foods. In the office, a better quality and larger quantity of work can be done. There is less likelihood of snap judgments and wrong decisions, for conditioned air is favorable to clear and deliberate thinking."

The benefits of air conditioning are so apparent that no home or office can be regarded as strictly modern without it, in the opinion of Mr. Rucker. He predicts that air conditioning, as its use increases, will make life longer and more worth living, supplementing the effects of medical and sanitary measures and have already added almost a decade to the average span of American life.

Mr. Rucker pointed out that the Standard Office Supply company, with its thoroughly trained staff of engineers and installation experts, are in an excellent position to offer their estimating service free of charge. Just call 519. There is no obligation.

DEAN'S LATEST

Mr. Ford Frick, president of the National league, will please move over and let Dizzy Dean occupy the chair that Mr. Frick has been usurping for the past couple of years. We realize, of course, that the presidency of the National league isn't the biggest job in baseball but there's a rumor going the rounds that Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis will resign within the next year or so, and the National league presidency will prepare Mr. Dean for the Judge's job.

Then, too, there's the chance that an opportunity may arise whereby Mr. Dean can engage Judge Landis in some sort of an argument and put the skids under him, just as he did to Mr. Frick. Thereby Mr. Dean will become commissioner of baseball even before Judge Landis is ready to quit.

At that, Mr. Dean already holds one victory over the alleged czar of baseball. When Mr. Dean was brought up on the carpet for running out on an engagement at Chattanooga, he got off with a measley $100 fine after spilling several fabulous stories in an effort to explain his action. Said stories were disproved by witnesses and photographs, yet Mr. Dean got off for a hundred bucks, and it later was rumored that the Cardinals paid that.

Last week's Dean-Frick affair indicated one of two things: either Dean is really bigger than the league or the National league president is the prize bungler of baseball. It is admitted that Frick should have held his conferences with Dean before he announced the suspension, instead of after making the whole mess public. But after he stuck his chin out, Frick at least should have stuck by his guns and forced a showdown. Dean might have licked him then but the National league prexy at least would have gone down fighting. As it turned out, Frick is thoroughly discredited and the door is wide open for any other player to stick his head in and defy the nominal head of the oldest major league in baseball.

Of course, Friday's conference may not have ended the matter. Steps may be taken yet to curb the voluble Mr. Dean. However, Mr. Frick can't blow hot one day and cold the next and expect to command any respect from baseball players or the public generally.

A majority of fans were with Mr. Frick in his attempt to close Dizzy's trap when he made his first move. But after taking a thorough licking at Friday's conference and doing nothing about it, the National league president lost much of the support that was his when the case was opened.

ANOTHER GOOD YEAR

Eddie McLane has completed another year at Louisiana Tech and a resume of his endeavors over at Ruston during the past 12 months shows further advancement in the campaign to give Tech a successful athletic program.

Coach McLane's teams not only have enjoyed success on the field but the improvements made in athletic facilities denote a well-planned program that includes every phase of physical education. Improvements in the Tech gymnasium alone constitute a major achievement.

Coach McLane, however, is looking to the future. The 1937 football schedule is the toughest ever attempted at the Ruston school. It is a "big league" schedule in every respect. Louisiana Tech's football team has brought the school much favorable publicity in the past but this fall's grid card will bring the Bulldogs before sports followers from the far west to the east coast. Their opponents range from North Dakota to Florida, and that's a pretty wide range.

Fortunately, Tech alumni appreciate the work McLane is doing and they have given him almost one hundred per cent cooperation since he's been at Ruston. President Richardson has been heartily in accord with the program for the betterment of Tech's physical education program and has given his wholehearted support to Coach McLane and his staff.

If the Bulldogs hurdle the barriers facing them this fall, it will require the cooperation of every group and individual connected with Louisiana Tech. It is hoped that those who have been helping McLane and his teams carry the load will redouble their efforts; and those who have not actively supported the athletic program in the past are urged to put their shoulders to the wheel and join the big push in what is expected to be Tech's most successful year.

SHORT TAKES

Despite the fact that Monroe's ball club has been losing more games than they've won, there's been more boosting than knocking at Casino park. Quite a healthy sign, if you ask us. The boys appreciate the chance to get set without unnecessary roughness, as they say in football.

The St. Louis Cardinals offer reserved seats to the fans who describe the most interesting play they see at one of the Red Birds' games. How about that riot the other day? That ought to rate a box.

Score cards at local games would help fans keep up with the players. Stimulating interest is one of the goals of local moguls, and score cards would help.

The St. Louis Browns are bragging because two minor league farm hands pitched no-hit, no-run games on successive days. Why not bring 'em into headquarters? They couldn't be any

TWO TEAMS TIED FOR BEST BALL GOLF LEADERSHIP

Armour And Thompson Come From 'Way Behind To Tie Guldahl And Snead

TOLEDO, O., June 5.—(AP)—Eighty-two birdies and five eagles trickled into the cups today as Tommy Armour, the "Silver Scot," and his long-driving Scottish partner, Jimmy Thomson, shot themselves from nowhere into a tie for the lead in the Iverness best ball match play tourney which ends Sunday.

Every hole was a birdie's nest, not one being able to baffle the 16 top-notch professionals in the battle for the $4,825 in prize money.

Perched alongside Armour and Thomson at the peak were Ralph Guldahl and "Slamming Sammy" Snead, the winter tourney sensations, who won a pair of matches today as the two Scotchmen won one and lost one.

Armour and Thomson, however, made their's the "hard" way, with the veteran former national open champion carrying the brunt of the load. After losing one down to Guldahl and Snead in the morning round, Armour and Thomson banged into the tourney leaders, Horton Smith and "Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, this afternoon.

The result was a four-up victory for Thomson and Armour, the latter kicking two eagles and two birdies into the cup, both two-under-par scores coming on chip shots from far off the green.

With two matches coming up Sunday, the scrambled standing tonight was:

Armour-Thomson, plus 5; Guldahl-Snead, plus 5, Paul Runyan-Ky Laffoon, plus 3; Smith-Cooper, plus 3; Denny Shute-Lawson Little, minus 1; Henry Picard-Johnny Revolta, minus 2; Ray Mangrum-Jimmy Hines, minus 6; and Olin Dutra-Gene Sarazen, minus 7.

Today's results, with the best ball scores on the par 71 layout, were:

Morning round: Smith-Cooper (65) defeated Picard-Revolta (68) two up; Runyan-Laffoon (68) defeated Mangrum-Hines (70) two up; Shute-Little (62) defeated Dutra-Sarazen (68) 6 up; Guldahl-Snead (66) defeated Armour-Thomson (67) one up.

Afternoon round: Armour-Thomson (65) defeated Smith-Cooper (69) four up; Mangrum-Hines (65) defeated Dutra-Sarazen (65) one up; Runyan-Laffoon (62) defeated Shute-Little (66) four up; Guldahl-Snead (66) defeated Picard-Revolta (67) one up.

Under the Iverness system of scoring a team is given a "plus" or "minus" equal to the number of holes it finishes up or down in each match, and the team with the greatest "plus" at the finish takes down the $1,000 first prize. The last-placers get $200, and those in between get larger amounts.

The standings scramble rapidly. Dutra-Sarazen, who led at the end of the first round, are now last, while Armour-Thomson, last the first day, are now tied for the top berth. Sunday's matches, expected to upset the favorites still more, are:

Morning round: Armour-Thomson vs. Mangrum-Hines; Smith-Cooper vs. Dutra-Sarazen; Runyan-Laffoon vs. Guldahl-Sneed; Picard-Revolta vs. Shute-Little.

Final round: Runyan-Laffoon vs. Smith-Cooper; Picard-Revolta vs. Mangrum-Hines; Guldahl-Sneed vs. Dutra-Sarazen; Armour-Thomson vs. Shute-Little.

MRS. MASON WINS GOLF TOURNEY AT CROSSETT

CROSSETT, Ark., June 5.—(Special)—Mrs. Lester Mason, wife of the Crossett High school football and basketball coach, was winner of the first flight in the ladies golf tournament and was awarded a silver trophy at a luncheon held at the club Friday afternoon.

Others who received prizes were: First flight—Mrs. E. K. Vanaernam, runnerup; Mrs. L. J. Arnold, consolation. Second flight—Miss Edith Lyles, winner; Mrs. John T. Erwin, runnerup; Mrs. P. G. Gates, consolation. Third flight—Mrs. J. Clyde Adams, winner; Mrs. Kenneth Chesley, runnerup; Mrs. K. A. Forrest, consolation. Fourth flight—Mrs. Charles Bennett, winner; Mrs. W. C. Norman, runnerup; Mrs. Alex Moseley, consolation.

PIRATE FIELDER 'BEANED' BUT NOT SERIOUSLY HURT

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Fred Schulte, Pittsburgh Pirates' utility outfielder, was injured by a pitched ball in today's game with the Giants, but physicians said tonight X-ray examinations showed no sign of a fracture.

One of Rookie Cliff Melton's slants hit Schulte high on the head and knocked him unconscious in the eighth inning of the game. He was carried to the clubhouse, where he regained consciousness, and afterward was taken to Polyclinic hospital.

Physicians said he probably suffered a slight concussion.

MAX WEIGHS IN ALONE FOR PHANTOM FIGHT

L. S. U. STAR TO MEET M'DADE IN MATCH FOR TITLE

Monroe Lad Gives Freddie Close Battle On First Nine; McDonald To Finals

SHREVEPORT, La., June 5.—(AP)—Fred Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, the Canadian Amateur champion, and Ross McDade, of Shreveport, will battle Sunday over thirty-six holes for the 18th annual amateur championship of the Louisiana State Golf association.

Haas, lanky, smooth-stroking golfer from L. S. U. and one of the country's leading amateur shot-makers, accounted for Defending Champion Bob Glover in the quarter-final and was never behind in the afternoon to eliminate 14-year-old Ben Downing of Monroe, finally winning at the 15th green, 4 and 3.

Downing had won his morning match from Frank Ford, Jr., 4 and 3, in a match between the tournament's two youngest contestants.

McDade, the Bossier siege gun, came from behind in the morning to win from Vance Liddell, 3 and 2, and in the semi-finals, played superb golf to turn back the bid of Bert McDowell, another L. S. U. golfer, 1 up, on the nineteenth green. McDowell won in the quarter-finals from Fred Odom, former Crescent City champion, who now resides in Shreveport.

The Broadmoor star, long a threat in local tournaments and one of the state's most capable golfers, will make his first bid in the finals for the state title, while Haas, semi-finalist in 1933 and 1934, won his first state title at the Metarie Golf club in New Orleans in 1935. Since making a name for himself in the Pelican state golf colony, the Crescent City golfer has won the Western Junior and the Canadian Amateur and two years ago was runner up in the National Intercollegiate championship.

Haas had very little trouble with Downing, winning the first two holes with pars. Downing missed a two foot putt at the third to halve the hole and Haas gained another hole with a birdie at the fourth. The fifth and sixth holes were divided in par, and the young Monroe par shooter won the seventh with a four and the ninth with a three to turn one down. Haas had a medal card of 38 to Downings' 39.

Coming in, Haas took the tenth with a par and the 12th with another par four to go three up, but he lost the short thirteenth where he was out of bounds twice and finally wound up with a five. He birdied the fourteenth and his par at the fifteenth was good for a win and the match.

The McDade-McDowell match was a thriller from the start, although McDade three putted the first green and both players three putted the third. They halved the long fourth hole in birdies where McDade was home in two and almost holed a ten footer for an "eagle." McDowell pitched up within five feet of the hole and canned it for a four. They divided the fifth hole in threes and McDade squared the match with a great four at the long, par five sixth.

After missing his drive and putting his second shot in the ditch at the seventh, McDade made a remarkable shot out of the water to within two feet of the hole and dropped the putt for a win. The Broadmoor star hooked his tee shot into another ditch bordering the eighth fairway and lost the hole to McDowell's four, but he dropped an eight-footer for a deuce at the ninth to make the turn one up.

McDade missed a three footer for another birdie at the tenth, but his four was good for a win at the eleventh hole where McDowell took three putts. The L. S. U. freshman came right back, however, at the 12th to drop an eight-footer for a three and a win, but took three putts at the 13th and lost the hole to McDade's well played par. With McDade two up, McDowell birdied the fourteenth and won the fifteenth where McDade missed his tee shot and took five.

Both players had pars at the sixteenth and they both snagged threes at the seventeenth. They reached the home tee with the match still even.

McDade's tee shot was well down the fairway, but McDowell was slightly to the right of the fairway. His second was pulled to the left of the green and he pitched one 12 feet short of the hole. McDade's second shot was 35 feet past the flag and he made a bold try, barely missing the hole. With defeat staring him in the face, McDowell rammed in his putt for a half that sent the match into extra holes.

McDowell pulled his tee shot at the extra hole into the trap guarding the left of the green and McDade was short. The L. S. U. golfer overran the hole with his second and McDade made a fine approach two feet beyond the hole. McDowell's try was short and to the right as McDade ran in his putt for a three and the match. Results of Saturday morning's matches are as follows.

Many Stellar Golfers Expected To Enter Event Here On July 31-Aug. 1

Leading golfers of Louisiana and the south are expected here next month for the first annual Twin City Amateur golf tournament to be sponsored by the McGuire Park Golf club of West Monroe, Jim McKenzie, McGuire pro, said last night after numerous invitations to take part in the meet had been sent to leading golfers of the state and to outstanding golfers of the nation.

Qualifying scores for the tournament must be posted not later than July 30, McKenzie stated, and the battles for the numerous prizes will take place July 31 and August 1.

The McGuire club will be able to present to visiting golfers one of the best layouts in the state. Pro McKenzie and his corps of assistants have been working steadily on the course, in anticipation of the approaching meet, and announce that the course is in excellent condition.

The fairways at the McGuire links are improved by an automatic water sprinkler system, the only one of its kind in the state and one of the few in the south, and visiting golfers are being promised just about the finest fairways they ever played over. The course also has its hazards, in a natural layout, to make the going tough.

Improvements have not stopped with the course alone. The club house is being enlarged to twice its size, and the remodeled club headquarters include provisions for women golfers.

CROSSETT AT BROWN

The pace-setting Crossett Millers, of the Ouachita Valley league, will come here today for a game with the Brownies of the Brown Paper mill in what promises to be one of the best Valley games for Brown park this year.

The last meeting of the Millers and the Brownies ended with the Crossett aggregation winning a 1 to 0 victory behind the three-hit pitching of "Lefty" Butler, ace Crossett hurler, who is also scheduled to go up against the Papermakers today.

Manager Herb Steed, of the locals, is counting on a Brown victory today to send the defending league champions back into the thick of the race for first half honors, and plans to send "Lefty" Counts to the mound for the Brownies. Moore will catch for Crossett, and Johns will catch for Brown.

The game is scheduled to start at 3:46 p.m.

HACK CALLED IN FROM OUTFIELD TO HALT PARADE

Kent, Richardson Routed; Twins Outhit Seaporters; Sox Play Locals Twice

By George V. Lofton

Despite the fact that they outhit the Seaporters, 15 to 8, Monroe's Twins dropped a 9-7 decision to Helena last night in the only game the two clubs were able to play here. Rain prevented Friday night's tilt.

A big second inning, in which the Seaporters scored six runs, and wildness of Monroe's first two hurlers cost the Twins the defeat. The feature of the game was the pitching of Clary Hack, who was called in from left field in the third inning after Bill Kent and Dale Richardson had failed to check the Arkansans. Hack pitched six and one-third innings and allowed but two hits.

Walter Butler, with a single, double and triple, led the Monroe batting attack, while L. B Jones, starting Helena hurler, paced the Seaporters

BARGAIN BILL TODAY

Clarksdale's Little Red Sox come to Casino park today for a double header with the Twins, the opening of a two-game series. The first game is slated to start at 2:30 o'clock.

Manager Eddie Hock said he would start Britton Horton, the Sterlington southpaw, in the first game. He was undecided last night on his second selection, but it will be Jack Van Orsdol or Bill Kent, who pitched less than two innings last night.

Clarksdale is expected to use Roy Mackey, lefthander well known here for his hurling feats with Swartz late last summer, and Don Kepler, his ace righthander.

DEAN'S LATEST

Mr. Ford Frick, president of the National league, will please move over and let Dizzy Dean occupy the chair that Mr. Frick has been usurping for the past couple of years. We realize, of course, that the presidency of the National league isn't the biggest job in baseball but there's a rumor going the rounds that Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis will resign within the next year or so, and the National league presidency will prepare Mr. Dean for the Judge's job.

Then, too, there's the chance that an opportunity may arise whereby Mr. Dean can engage Judge Landis in some sort of an argument and put the skids under him, just as he did to Mr. Frick. Thereby Mr. Dean will become commissioner of baseball even before Judge Landis is ready to quit.

At that, Mr. Dean already holds one victory over the alleged czar of baseball. When Mr. Dean was brought up on the carpet for running out on an engagement at Chattanooga, he got off with a measley $100 fine after spilling several fabulous stories in an effort to explain his action. Said stories were disproved by witnesses and photographs, yet Mr. Dean got off for a hundred bucks, and it later was rumored that the Cardinals paid that.

Last week's Dean-Frick affair indicated one of two things: either Dean is really bigger than the league or the National league president is the prize bungler of baseball. It is admitted that Frick should have held his conferences with Dean before he announced the suspension, instead of after making the whole mess public. But after he stuck his chin out, Frick at least should have stuck by his guns and forced a showdown. Dean might have licked him then but the National league prexy at least would have gone down fighting. As it turned out, Frick is thoroughly discredited and the door is wide open for any other player to stick his head in and defy the nominal head of the oldest major league in baseball.

Of course, Friday's conference may not have ended the matter. Steps may be taken yet to curb the voluble Mr. Dean. However, Mr. Frick can't blow hot one day and cold the next and expect to command any respect from baseball players or the public generally.

A majority of fans were with Mr. Frick in his attempt to close Dizzy's trap when he made his first move. But after taking a thorough licking at Friday's conference and doing nothing about it, the National league president lost much of the support that was his when the case was opened.

ANOTHER GOOD YEAR

Eddie McLane has completed another year at Louisiana Tech and a resume of his endeavors over at Ruston during the past 12 months shows further advancement in the campaign to give Tech a successful athletic program.

Coach McLane's teams not only have enjoyed success on the field but the improvements made in athletic facilities denote a well-planned program that includes every phase of physical education. Improvements in the Tech gymnasium alone constitute a major achievement.

Coach McLane, however, is looking to the future. The 1937 football schedule is the toughest ever attempted at the Ruston school. It is a "big league" schedule in every respect. Louisiana Tech's football team has brought the school much favorable publicity in the past but this fall's grid card will bring the Bulldogs before sports followers from the far west to the east coast. Their opponents range from North Dakota to Florida, and that's a pretty wide range.

Fortunately, Tech alumni appreciate the work McLane is doing and they have given him almost one hundred per cent cooperation since he's been at Ruston. President Richardson has been heartily in accord with the program for the betterment of Tech's physical education program and has given his wholehearted support to Coach McLane and his staff.

If the Bulldogs hurdle the barriers facing them this fall, it will require the cooperation of every group and individual connected with Louisiana Tech. It is hoped that those who have been helping McLane and his teams carry the load will redouble their efforts; and those who have not actively supported the athletic program in the past are urged to put their shoulders to the wheel and join the big push in what is expected to be Tech's most successful year.

SHORT TAKES

Despite the fact that Monroe's ball club has been losing more games than they've won, there's been more boosting than knocking at Casino park. Quite a healthy sign, if you ask us. The boys appreciate the chance to get set without unnecessary roughness, as they say in football.

The St. Louis Cardinals offer reserved seats to the fans who describe the most interesting play they see at one of the Red Birds' games. How about that riot the other day? That ought to rate a box.

Score cards at local games would help fans keep up with the players. Stimulating interest is one of the goals of local moguls, and score cards would help.

The St. Louis Browns are bragging because two minor league farm hands pitched no-hit, no-run games on successive days. Why not bring 'em into headquarters? They couldn't be any

TWO TEAMS TIED FOR BEST BALL GOLF LEADERSHIP

Armour And Thompson Come From 'Way Behind To Tie Guldahl And Snead

TOLEDO, O., June 5.—(AP)—Eighty-two birdies and five eagles trickled into the cups today as Tommy Armour, the "Silver Scot," and his long-driving Scottish partner, Jimmy Thomson, shot themselves from nowhere into a tie for the lead in the Iverness best ball match play tourney which ends Sunday.

Every hole was a birdie's nest, not one being able to baffle the 16 top-notch professionals in the battle for the $4,825 in prize money.

Perched alongside Armour and Thomson at the peak were Ralph Guldahl and "Slamming Sammy" Snead, the winter tourney sensations, who won a pair of matches today as the two Scotchmen won one and lost one.

Armour and Thomson, however, made their's the "hard" way, with the veteran former national open champion carrying the brunt of the load. After losing one down to Guldahl and Snead in the morning round, Armour and Thomson banged into the tourney leaders, Horton Smith and "Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, this afternoon.

The result was a four-up victory for Thomson and Armour, the latter kicking two eagles and two birdies into the cup, both two-under-par scores coming on chip shots from far off the green.

With two matches coming up Sunday, the scrambled standing tonight was:

Armour-Thomson, plus 5; Guldahl-Snead, plus 5; Paul Runyan-Ky Laffoon, plus 3; Smith-Cooper, plus 3; Denny Shute-Lawson Little, minus 1; Henry Picard-Johnny Revolta, minus 2; Ray Mangrum-Jimmy Hines, minus 6; and Olin Dutra-Gene Sarazen, minus 7.

Today's results, with the best ball scores on the par 71 layout, were:

Afternoon round: Armour-Thomson (65) defeated Smith-Cooper (69) four up; Mangrum-Hines (65) defeated Dutra-Sarazen (65) one up; Runyan-Laffoon (62) defeated Shute-Little (66) four up; Guldahl-Snead (66) defeated Picard-Revolta (67) one up.

Under the Iverness system of scoring a team is given a "plus" or "minus" equal to the number of holes it finishes up or down in each match, and the team with the greatest "plus" at the finish takes down the $1,000 first prize. The last-placers get $200, and those in between get larger amounts.

The standings scramble rapidly. Dutra-Sarazen, who led at the end of the first round, are now last, while Armour-Thomson, last the first day, are now tied for the top berth. Sunday's matches, expected to upset the favorites still more, are:

Morning round: Armour-Thomson vs. Mangrum-Hines; Smith-Cooper vs. Dutra-Sarazen; Runyan-Laffoon vs. Guldahl-Sneed; Picard-Revolta vs. Shute-Little.

MRS. MASON WINS GOLF TOURNEY AT CROSSETT

CROSSETT, Ark., June 5.—(Special)—Mrs. Lester Mason, wife of the Crossett High school football and basketball coach, was winner of the first flight in the ladies golf tournament and was awarded a silver trophy at a luncheon held at the club Friday afternoon.

Others who received prizes were: First flight—Mrs. E. K. Vanaernam, runnerup; Mrs. L. J. Arnold, consolation. Second flight—Miss Edith Lyles, winner; Mrs. John T. Erwin, runnerup; Mrs. P. G. Gates, consolation. Third flight—Mrs. J. Clyde Adams, winner; Mrs. Kenneth Chesley, runnerup; Mrs. K. A. Forrest, consolation. Fourth flight—Mrs. Charles Bennett, winner; Mrs. W. C. Norman, runnerup; Mrs. Alex Moseley, consolation.

PIRATE FIELDER 'BEANED' BUT NOT SERIOUSLY HURT

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Fred Schulte, Pittsburgh Pirates' utility outfielder, was injured by a pitched ball in today's game with the Giants, but physicians said tonight X-ray examinations showed no sign of a fracture.

One of Rookie Cliff Melton's slants hit Schulte high on the head and knocked him unconscious in the eighth inning of the game. He was carried to the clubhouse, where he regained consciousness, and afterward was taken to Polyclinic hospital.

Physicians said he probably suffered a slight concussion.

MAX WEIGHS IN ALONE FOR PHANTOM FIGHT

L. S. U. STAR TO MEET M'DADE IN MATCH FOR TITLE

SHREVEPORT, La., June 5.—(AP)—Fred Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, the Canadian Amateur champion, and Ross McDade, of Shreveport, will battle Sunday over thirty-six holes for the 18th annual amateur championship of the Louisiana State Golf association.

Haas, lanky, smooth-stroking golfer from L. S. U. and one of the country's leading amateur shot-makers, accounted for Defending Champion Bob Glover in the quarter-final and was never behind in the afternoon to eliminate 14-year-old Ben Downing of Monroe, finally winning at the 15th green, 4 and 3.

Downing had won his morning match from Frank Ford, Jr., 4 and 3, in a match between the tournament's two youngest contestants.

McDade, the Bossier siege gun, came from behind in the morning to win from Vance Liddell, 3 and 2, and in the semi-finals, played superb golf to turn back the bid of Bert McDowell, another L. S. U. golfer, 1 up, on the nineteenth green. McDowell won in the quarter-finals from Fred Odom, former Crescent City champion, who now resides in Shreveport.

The Broadmoor star, long a threat in local tournaments and one of the state's most capable golfers, will make his first bid in the finals for the state title, while Haas, semi-finalist in 1933 and 1934, won his first state title at the Metarie Golf club in New Orleans in 1935. Since making a name for himself in the Pelican state golf colony, the Crescent City golfer has won the Western Junior and the Canadian Amateur and two years ago was runner up in the National Intercollegiate championship.

Haas had very little trouble with Downing, winning the first two holes with pars. Downing missed a two foot putt at the third to halve the hole and Haas gained another hole with a birdie at the fourth. The fifth and sixth holes were divided in par, and the young Monroe par shooter won the seventh with a four and the ninth with a three to turn one down. Haas had a medal card of 38 to Downings' 39.

Coming in, Haas took the tenth with a par and the 12th with another par four to go three up, but he lost the short thirteenth where he was out of bounds twice and finally wound up with a five. He birdied the fourteenth and his par at the fifteenth was good for a win and the match.

The McDade-McDowell match was a thriller from the start, although McDade three putted the first green and both players three putted the third. They halved the long fourth hole in birdies where McDade was home in two and almost holed a ten footer for an "eagle." McDowell pitched up within five feet of the hole and canned it for a four. They divided the fifth hole in threes and McDade squared the match with a great four at the long, par five sixth.

After missing his drive and putting his second shot in the ditch at the seventh, McDade made a remarkable shot out of the water to within two feet of the hole and dropped the putt for a win. The Broadmoor star hooked his tee shot into another ditch bordering the eighth fairway and lost the hole to McDowell's four, but he dropped an eight-footer for a deuce at the ninth to make the turn one up.

McDade missed a three footer for another birdie at the tenth, but his four was good for a win at the eleventh hole where McDowell took three putts. The L. S. U. freshman came right back, however, at the 12th to drop an eight-footer for a three and a win, but took three putts at the 13th and lost the hole to McDade's well played par. With McDade two up, McDowell birdied the fourteenth and won the fifteenth where McDade missed his tee shot and took five.

Both players had pars at the sixteenth and they both snagged threes at the seventeenth. They reached the home tee with the match still even.

McDade's tee shot was well down the fairway, but McDowell was slightly to the right of the fairway. His second was pulled to the left of the green and he pitched one 12 feet short of the hole. McDade's second shot was 35 feet past the flag and he made a bold try, barely missing the hole. With defeat staring him in the face, McDowell rammed in his putt for a half that sent the match into extra holes.

McDowell pulled his tee shot at the extra hole into the trap guarding the left of the green and McDade was short. The L. S. U. golfer overran the hole with his second and McDade made a fine approach two feet beyond the hole. McDowell's try was short and to the right as McDade ran in his putt for a three and the match. Results of Saturday morning's matches are as follows:

CROSSETT AT BROWN

The pace-setting Crossett Millers, of the Ouachita Valley league, will come here today for a game with the Brownies of the Brown Paper mill in what promises to be one of the best Valley games for Brown park this year.

The last meeting of the Millers and the Brownies ended with the Crossett aggregation winning a 1 to 0 victory behind the three-hit pitching of "Lefty" Butler, ace Crossett hurler, who is also scheduled to go up against the Papermakers today.

Manager Herb Steed, of the locals, is counting on a Brown victory today to send the defending league champions back into the thick of the race for first half honors, and plans to send "Lefty" Counts to the mound for the Brownies. Moore will catch for Crossett, and Johns will catch for Brown.

The game is scheduled to start at 3:46 p.m.

Many Stellar Golfers Expected To Enter Event Here On July 31-Aug. 1

Leading golfers of Louisiana and the south are expected here next month for the first annual Twin City Amateur golf tournament to be sponsored by the McGuire Park Golf club of West Monroe, Jim McKenzie, McGuire pro, said last night after numerous invitations to take part in the meet had been sent to leading golfers of the state and to outstanding golfers of the nation.

Qualifying scores for the tournament must be posted not later than July 30, McKenzie stated, and the battles for the numerous prizes will take place July 31 and August 1.

The McGuire club will be able to present to visiting golfers one of the best layouts in the state. Pro McKenzie and his corps of assistants have been working steadily on the course, in anticipation of the approaching meet, and announce that the course is in excellent condition.

The fairways at the McGuire links are improved by an automatic water sprinkler system, the only one of its kind in the state and one of the few in the south, and visiting golfers are being promised just about the finest fairways they ever played over. The course also has its hazards, in a natural layout, to make the going tough.

Improvements have not stopped with the course alone. The club house is being enlarged to twice its size, and the remodeled club headquarters include provisions for women golfers.

HACK CALLED IN FROM OUTFIELD TO HALT PARADE

By George V. Lofton

Despite the fact that they outhit the Seaporters, 16 to 8, Monroe's Twins dropped a 9-7 decision to Helena last night in the only game the two clubs were able to play here. Rain prevented Friday night's tilt.

A big second inning, in which the Seaporters scored six runs, and wildness of Monroe's first two hurlers cost the Twins the defeat. The feature of the game was the pitching of Clary Hack, who was called in from left field in the third inning after Bill Kent and Dale Richardson had failed to check the Arkansans. Hack pitched six and one-third innings and allowed but two hits.

Walter Butler, with a single, double and triple, led the Monroe batting attack, while L. B. Jones, starting Helena hurler, paced the Seaporters

BARGAIN BILL TODAY

Clarksdale's Little Red Sox come to Casino park today for a double header with the Twins, the opening of a two-game series. The first game is slated to start at 2:30 o'clock.

Manager Eddie Hock said he would start Britton Horton, the Sterlington southpaw, in the first game. He was undecided last night on his second selection, but it will be Jack Van Orsdol or Bill Kent, who pitched less than two innings last night.

Clarksdale is expected to use Roy Mackey, lefthander well known here for his hurling feats with Swartz late last summer, and Don Kepler, his ace righthander.

YANKEES' HOME RUNS BEAT GILL AND TIGERS

DETROIT'S RALLY FALLS SHORT AND CHAMPS WIN, 6-5

New Yorkers Held To Seven Hits But Four Of Them Are Round-Trippers

DETROIT, June 5.—(AP)—The New York Yankees laid down a home run barrage today to top the Tigers 6 to 5, but they had to call on old Blub Malone with two out in the ninth inning to save the game.

The victory, with Gehrig clouting two round-trippers and Joe DiMaggio and Red Ruffing one each, maintained the Yanks' two-game American league lead over the Cleveland Indians.

All of the homers were made off young George Gill, the Detroit starting pitcher. He was relieved by Elden Auker in the eighth, Bump Hadley, Yankee starter, lasted until the seventh, when he gave way to Rookie Frank Makosky, who was belted out in the Tigers' futile ninth inning surge, although he received credit for the victory.

Gehrig's homers were his sixth and seventh of the year. He started the Yankee scoring with the first one in the fourth inning. Ruffing produced his as a pinch-hitter with a mate on base in the seventh, when the Yanks scored three times to tie the score. The other tally in the inning was the result of a walk, Tony Lazzari's single and Myril Hoag's long fly.

In the eighth the world champions wound up their scoring when DiMaggio and Gehrig hit consecutive homers, driving Gill to the showers.

INDIANS TRIM NATS

CLEVELAND, June 5.—(AP)—Willis Hudlin registered his sixth straight victory as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Washington Senators 8 to 6 in the opener of their four-game series today.

It was the Indians' third straight victory and kept them in second place, two games behind the New York Yankees.

Hudlin tired in the eighth and was relieved by Joe Heving after the Senators scored three runs. Heving allowed no hits and struck out two of the four batters to face him.

Earl Averill's fifth home run of the season led the Tribe's 12 hit attack on Carl Fischer and Joe Cascarella who relieved the former Indian southpaw in the fifth. Averill's homer was the high spot of the Indians' four run rally in the first inning.

Buddy Lewis of the Senators hit a home run off Hudlin in the first inning.

ST. LOUIS, June 5.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox scored in all except three innings to whip the hapless Browns, 14 to 4, and sink Rogers Hornsby's team deeper in the cellar.

Lefty Bob Grove, touched for 13 hits, kept the blows well scattered and only in the first and eighth innings were the Browns able to produce runs. Three St. Louis pitchers offered nothing baffling to the Red Sox Every Boston player hit safely and Grove was the only one not to score a run.

NEW YORKERS IN VIRTUAL TIE FOR LEAD IN NATIONAL

Melton Knocks Schulte Unconscious; Gus Suhr's String Ends At 822 Games

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Everything but victory happened to the Pittsburgh Pirates today as they lost a 7 to 3 decision to the Giants in the opener in their current series.

The victory boosted the Giants into a virtual tie with the Bucs for the league lead, leaving them just a slim percentage margin back of the pacesetters.

Gus Suhr, the Pirates' sturdy first-sacker, had to break his National league consecutive game playing streak after 822 straight games.

And old Pie Traynor, the Bucs manager, made his first playing appearance in two years as a pinch-runner for Schulte in the eighth.

Schulte was sent in at right field to take the place of Paul Waner, who filled in at first base for Suhr. The latter had left for San Francisco because of the sudden death of his mother.

In the eighth, Schulte, batting against rookie Cliff Melton, was hit high on the head by an accidental "beanball." He dropped unconscious to the ground and, after efforts on the spot failed to revive him, was carried to the clubhouse. Several minutes later, he regained consciousness, and officials announced they would take him to Polyclinic hospital for examination.

Schulte, 33, is a 10-year man in the majors, seeing action with the St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators, before the Pirates obtained him on waivers last year.

Traynor, who ran for him after he was injured, scored on Lloyd Waner's ground ball to short, but by that time the run didn't matter.

The Giants had clubbed Joe Bowman out with a four-run rally in the fourth and had added three more off Bill Swift in the sixth for all their scoring, to put the game on ice.

Arky Vaughan hit a homer for the Pirates in the first frame. Gus Mancuso, driving in three runs with a double and single, led the Giant attack.

CUBS SUBDUE BEES

BOSTON, June 5.—(AP)—Tex Carleton, veteran side-arm right hander, pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 6 to 3 victory today, limiting the Boston Bees to eight hits.

The Cubs came from behind to win, tieing the score in the seventh and going on a four-run rampage in the eighth to clinch the victory. They made 11 hits off Danny MacFayden and Johnny Lanning, who relieved him in the ninth.

Carleton divided batting honors with Shortstop Bill Jurges, driving out two singles which accounted for two runs. Jurges connected with a pair of doubles.

Boston had a 2 to 1 lead going into the seventh, when Gabby Hartnett singled. Then Joe Marty doubled him to third, and he scampered home on Carleton's long fly to Wally Berger to tie the game.

The Cubs found MacFayden's offerings to their liking in the eighth when Jimmy Collins opened the splurge with a single to right field. Frank Demaree sacrificed him to second and Stanley Hack walked.

Hartnett sent a bounder to MacFayden, who threw to second to start a double play, but Shortstop Warstler dropped the ball, filling the bases. Marty forced Collins for the second out, but Jurges drove a liner off Warstler's glove for a double and two runs, Hack and Hartnett, scoring.

Carleton continued the rally, singling home George Stainback, who ran for Marty after the latter pulled up lame at third.

CARDS DOWN PHILS

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean, suspended for three days for "popping off," returned to action today and pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3 to 1 victory over the Phillies. It was his seventh victory of the season against four defeats.

Dizzy complained of a sore arm before the game, but it must have been his left one, because he yielded only six hits, issued only one base on balls and struck out seven. In the sixth, when Scharein singled and Chuck Klein doubled with only one out, Dizzy complained of the heat and called time while he sat down on the pitcher's mound to cool off.

After the delay, to which Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Phils protested to no avail, Dizzy fanned Morrie Arnovich and made Dolph Camilli, whose single in the fourth had scored the Phils' lone run, fly to Pepper Martin in center.

Claude Passeau pitched a good game for the Phils, but lost when an error by Scharein in the fourth paved the way for two unearned runs. The Cards got their other run in the first when Medwick singled J. Martin home.

DODGERS RALLY TO WIN

BROOKLYN, June 5.—(AP)—The Dodgers were easy for Paul Derringer for eight innings today, but staged a four-run rally in the ninth to top the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 4, and regain sole possession of fifth place in the National league.

Opening the ninth, Heinie Manush singled, to be followed by a double by Babe Phelps and a triple by Cookie Lavagetto.

Gene Schott came in and was greeted by a single by Woody English, and after Schott was replaced by Lee Grissom, who promptly loaded the bases with two walks, Joe Stripp clouted a single for the winning run.

BUCKING UP THE BIRDS

BOB FELLER REJOINS CLEVELAND INDIANS

CLEVELAND, June 5.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians, in the midst of a hot scramble to overtake the league leading New York Yanks, welcomed home their youthful pitching star, Bob Feller, tonight, hopeful he will soon get into the line-up with his blazing fast ball.

Out of action with a sore arm all of the regular season except for six innings he played in April, Feller came home from Milwaukee after spending a week taking treatments from a bone specialist.

C. C. Slapnicka, vice president of the Cleveland club, reported Feller apparently felt good and that his highly prized pitching arm was ready for action. He is expected to don a suit and appear with the Tribe Sunday but Manager Steve O'Neill indicated he would give Feller several days to work out before deciding whether he was ready for a regular pitching assignment.

YANKEES' HOME RUNS BEAT GILL AND TIGERS

New Yorkers Held To Seven Hits But Four Of Them Are Round-Trippers

DETROIT, June 5.—(AP)—The New York Yankees laid down a home run barrage today to top the Tigers 6 to 5, but they had to call on old Blub Malone with two out in the ninth inning to save the game.

The victory, with Gehrig clouting two round-trippers and Joe DiMaggio and Red Ruffing one each, maintained the Yanks' two-game American league lead over the Cleveland Indians.

All of the homers were made off young George Gill, the Detroit starting pitcher. He was relieved by Elden Auker in the eighth, Bump Hadley, Yankee starter, lasted until the seventh, when he gave way to Rookie Frank Makosky, who was belted out in the Tigers' futile ninth inning surge, although he received credit for the victory.

Gehrig's homers were his sixth and seventh of the year. He started the Yankee scoring with the first one in the fourth inning. Ruffing produced his as a pinch-hitter with a mate on base in the seventh, when the Yanks scored three times to tie the score. The other tally in the inning was the result of a walk, Tony Lazzari's single and Myril Hoag's long fly.

In the eighth the world champions wound up their scoring when DiMaggio and Gehrig hit consecutive homers, driving Gill to the showers.

INDIANS TRIM NATS

CLEVELAND, June 5.—(AP)—Willis Hudlin registered his sixth straight victory as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Washington Senators 8 to 6 in the opener of their four-game series today.

It was the Indians' third straight victory and kept them in second place, two games behind the New York Yankees.

Hudlin tired in the eighth and was relieved by Joe Heving after the Senators scored three runs. Heving allowed no hits and struck out two of the four batters to face him.

Earl Averill's fifth home run of the season led the Tribe's 12 hit attack on Carl Fischer and Joe Cascarella who relieved the former Indian southpaw in the fifth. Averill's homer was the high spot of the Indians' four run rally in the first inning.

Buddy Lewis of the Senators hit a home run off Hudlin in the first inning.

ST. LOUIS, June 5.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox scored in all except three innings to whip the hapless Browns, 14 to 4, and sink Rogers Hornsby's team deeper in the cellar.

Lefty Bob Grove, touched for 13 hits, kept the blows well scattered and only in the first and eighth innings were the Browns able to produce runs. Three St. Louis pitchers offered nothing baffling to the Red Sox. Every Boston player hit safely and Grove was the only one not to score a run.

NEW YORKERS IN VIRTUAL TIE FOR LEAD IN NATIONAL

Melton Knocks Schulte Unconscious; Gus Suhr's String Ends At 822 Games

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Everything but victory happened to the Pittsburgh Pirates today as they lost a 7 to 5 decision to the Giants in the opener in their current series.

The victory boosted the Giants into a virtual tie with the Bucs for the league lead, leaving them just a slim percentage margin back of the pacesetters.

Gus Suhr, the Pirates' sturdy first-sacker, had to break his National league consecutive game playing streak after 822 straight games.

And old Pie Traynor, the Bucs manager, made his first playing appearance in two years as a pinch-runner for Schulte in the eighth.

Schulte was sent in at right field to take the place of Paul Waner, who filled in at first base for Suhr. The latter had left for San Francisco because of the sudden death of his mother.

In the eighth, Schulte, batting against rookie Cliff Melton, was hit high on the head by an accidental "beanball." He dropped unconscious to the ground and, after efforts on the spot failed to revive him, was carried to the clubhouse. Several minutes later, he regained consciousness, and officials announced they would take him to Polyclinic hospital for examination.

Schulte, 33, is a 10-year man in the majors, seeing action with the St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators, before the Pirates obtained him on waivers last year.

Traynor, who ran for him after he was injured, scored on Lloyd Waner's ground ball to short, but by that time the run didn't matter.

The Giants had clubbed Joe Bowman out with a four-run rally in the fourth and had added three more off Bill Swift in the sixth for all their scoring, to put the game on ice.

Arky Vaughan hit a homer for the Pirates in the first frame. Gus Mancuso, driving in three runs with a double and single, led the Giant attack.

CUBS SUBDUE BEES

BOSTON, June 5.—(AP)—Tex Carleton, veteran side-arm right hander, pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 6 to 3 victory today, limiting the Boston Bees to eight hits.

The Cubs came from behind to win, tieing the score in the seventh and going on a four-run rampage in the eighth to clinch the victory. They made 11 hits off Danny MacFayden and Johnny Lanning, who relieved him in the ninth.

Carleton divided batting honors with Shortstop Bill Jurges, driving out two singles which accounted for two runs. Jurges connected with a pair of doubles.

Boston had a 2 to 1 lead going into the seventh, when Gabby Hartnett singled. Then Joe Marty doubled him to third, and he scampered home on Carleton's long fly to Wally Berger to tie the game.

The Cubs found MacFayden's offerings to their liking in the eighth when Jimmy Collins opened the splurge with a single to right field. Frank Demaree sacrificed him to second and Stanley Hack walked.

Hartnett sent a bounder to MacFayden, who threw to second to start a double play, but Shortstop Warstler dropped the ball, filling the bases. Marty forced Collins for the second out, but Jurges drove a liner off Warstler's glove for a double and two runs, Hack and Hartnett, scoring.

Carleton continued the rally, singling home George Stainback, who ran for Marty after the latter pulled up lame at third.

CARDS DOWN PHILS

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean, suspended for three days for "popping off," returned to action today and pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3 to 1 victory over the Phillies. It was his seventh victory of the season against four defeats.

Dizzy complained of a sore arm before the game, but it must have been his left one, because he yielded only six hits, issued only one base on balls and struck out seven. In the sixth, when Scharein singled and Chuck Klein doubled with only one out, Dizzy complained of the heat and called time while he sat down on the pitcher's mound to cool off.

After the delay, to which Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Phils protested to no avail, Dizzy fanned Morrie Arnovich and made Dolph Camilli, whose single in the fourth had scored the Phils' lone run, fly to Pepper Martin in center.

Claude Passeau pitched a good game for the Phils, but lost when an error by Scharein in the fourth paved the way for two unearned runs. The Cards got their other run in the first when Medwick singled J. Martin home.

DODGERS RALLY TO WIN

BROOKLYN, June 5.—(AP)—The Dodgers were easy for Paul Derringer for eight innings today, but staged a four-run rally in the ninth to top the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 4, and regain sole possession of fifth place in the National league.

Opening the ninth, Heinie Manush singled, to be followed by a double by Babe Phelps and a triple by Cookie Lavagetto.

Gene Schott came in and was greeted by a single by Woody English, and after Schott was replaced by Lee Grissom, who promptly loaded the bases with two walks, Joe Stripp clouted a single for the winning run.

BOB FELLER REJOINS CLEVELAND INDIANS

CLEVELAND, June 5.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians, in the midst of a hot scramble to overtake the league leading New York Yanks, welcomed home their youthful pitching star, Bob Feller, tonight, hopeful he will soon get into the line-up with his blazing fast ball.

Out of action with a sore arm all of the regular season except for six innings he played in April, Feller came home from Milwaukee after spending a week taking treatments from a bone specialist.

C. C. Slapnicka, vice president of the Cleveland club, reported Feller apparently felt good and that his highly prized pitching arm was ready for action. He is expected to don a suit and appear with the Tribe Sunday but Manager Steve O'Neill indicated he would give Feller several days to work out before deciding whether he was ready for a regular pitching assignment.

'ADMIRAL' WINS AT BELMONT IN RECORD TIME

MAN O'WAR COLT COPS RICH RACE BY FOUR LENGTHS

Riddle Ace Equals American Mark For Mile And Half; Pompoon Is Sixth

By Alan Gould

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—War Admiral, the mighty little son of Man O'War, flashed a record-smashing display of speed today to capture the classic Belmont Stake with ease and become the fourth three-year-old in thoroughbred history to wear the prized "triple crown."

Despite an injury to his right forequarter at the very start, where the odds-on favorite in the seven-horse field kicked himself and nearly went down, War Admiral spurted quickly to the front, kept full command all the way, and won all by himself like a true son of a renowned superhorse.

The sensational Samuel D. Riddle colt galloped home four good lengths in front of Maxwell Howard's Sceneshifter, with the longshot Vamoose in third place ten lengths further back and the highly-rated Pompoon a badly whipped sixth. Pompoon, which had chased War Admiral home in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness this spring, never was a contender.

Although under no pressure at any stage and not even touched once by Jockey Charley Kurtzinger's whip, War Admiral equalled the American record, clipped a large chunk off the Belmont Stakes mark, and, as a climax, knocked a fifth-second off his daddy's track record by stepping the mile and a half in 2:28 3-5.

War Admiral didn't touch the world record of 2:23, credited to a British horse at Newmarket in 1929, but the colt apparently had enough in reserve to have cracked the American standard if he had been extended.

The Riddle star carried 126 pounds, eight more than Man O'War did when the superhorse set the track mark of 2:28 4-5 in 1920. The former record for the Belmont Stakes 2:29 1-5 was set by Peace Chance in 1934. The listed American record which War Admiral equalled was made by Handy Mandy, carrying only 109 pounds, at Latonia, Ky., in 1927.

A crown of 35,000, one of the greatest in Belmont history acclaimed the three-year-old king as he proved beyond the slightest question he has the stamina to combine with his amazing speed for any distance or circumstances.

War Admiral went to the post the 9 to 10 choice but won like a 1 to 10 shot. The victory added $38,020 to the colt's rapidly-mounting earnings, now totalling $144,620 for this season and $159,420 for two years of racing.

JAMESON AND BERG TO TRANS-MISSISSIPPI FINAL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 5.—(AP)—Bashful, 18-year-old Betty Jameson plowed under two Curtis Cup stars, one the defending titleholder, today and marched into the finals of the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf tournament with her 'teen age pal, Patty Berg.

Mechanically the Texas champion smothered Miss Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., champion the last two years, in a semi-final match, 5 and 3, that followed her one-up triumph over Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City veteran and four times winner of the "Trans" title.

Tomorrow the two high school seniors go the 36-hole route for the crown toppled from Miss Miley's head by the husky Texas girl.

Miss Jameson, who only six weeks ago walloped still another Curtis Cup team member, Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth, in the finals of the Texas championship, was even women's par in her parade to the finals today.

COCHRANE STARTS TRIP TO DETROIT HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Mickey Cochrane, injured manager of the Detroit Tigers, started home tonight to complete his recovery from a triple skull fracture in a Detroit hospital.

The star backstop was taken from St. Elizabeth's hospital here and placed in a special car aboard "The Detroiter."

Cochrane will be taken to the Ford hospital, near his home. His parting promise to Dr. R. E. Walsh, who recommended that he remain here five or six weeks longer, was that he would remain in bed "as long as necessary."

HACK CALLED IN

with three hits, including a triple.

The game was delayed 20 minutes because of power failure.

Butler made all the putouts in the first inning. After Siemer walked in start the inning, Weisler popped to the catcher, Harper struck hard and Ligon popped out behind the plate.

The Seaporters broke loose with six runs in the second inning, after the Twins had left two men stranded in the last of the first. Ligon, first up for Helena, struck out but Carlin and Raymond singled to left field in succession. Kent couldn't locate the plate and Manager Red Whitney walked. Then L. B. Jones, the Seaporter hurler, slapped a triple to right center and Carlin, Raymond and Whitney scored. Kent also walked Siemer. Weisler followed with a single to left and Jones scored. Harper popped to Butler but Olson hit one through Frank Phinney, new Monroe second sacker, and Siemer scored on the error. Ligon, up for the second time, doubled to left and Weisler scored. That finished Kent and Dale Richardson took the mound for the Twins and forced Carlin to pop to Phinney for the third out.

On the relay of Jones' triple, Phinney hurt his arm in making the throw and although he finished out the inning, "Red" Burrage went to second at the start of the third inning.

The Twins got two of the runs back in the last half of the second. Bates singled to right to start it. Hock hit a hot one to Carlin at first. Carlin threw to Weisler, who covered second, for a force-out but Weisler dropped the ball and all hands were safe. Butler hit a bounder off the plate and was thrown out, Jones to Carlin, but Bates and Hock advanced a base each. Richardson then hit a sizzling drive through Carlin at first and Bates and Hock scored. Borum struck out and so did Burrage, who batted for Phinney.

Richardson's wildness got him in trouble in the third and he didn't last through the inning. Eddie Hock finally called in Clary Hack, all-around handy-man of the Twins, from left field to get the Seaporters out. Richardson got two out and then lost control. Jones, the slugging pitcher, started it with a single to left. Richardson then walked Siemer and hit Weisler to fill the bases. He couldn't get 'em over for Harper and "Doodle" walked, forcing in Jones. He likewise couldn't find the plate with Olson up and the Helena outfielder walked, another run crossing the plate when Siemer was forced across. The Twins' skipper then brought Hack in to pitch and sent Richardson out to left field. Ligon skied to Rikard to end it.

The stands got their biggest kick in the first of the fourth. Carlin, first up, hit a terrific drive that Burrage caught without moving. On the next pitch, Raymond blasted one straight at Hock and the skipper took it in, and then fanned his hand. Whitney, third up, slammed a hot one at Burrage, who moved a foot to his right and snagged it for the third out.

Helena scored one run off Hack in the fifth. Jones got his third straight hit, a single to left. He went to second as Hack tagged out Siemer on a roller down the first base line and scored on Harper's double to left center.

With both pitchers bearing down, neither team scored until the last of the eighth, when the Twins pushed over another pair of tallies. After Richardson had struck out, Borum singled to right. Burrage fanned but Rikard worked Jones for a walk, his fourth pass of the game. Hack slapped a single into left field and Borum scored, Haynes followed with a double to left center to score Rikard. Bates rolled to Carlin, unassisted, for the third out.

The Twins gave the home fans a thrill in the ninth when they staged another rally but it fell short of tying the score. Hock, first up, singled to center and Butler followed with a single to the same spot, his third hit of the game. Horton went in to bat for Richardson and Manager Rod Whitney decided Jones had had enough. He jerked the starter and sent in Tubb, his ace, to quell the uprising. Horton sent a fly to deep center field and Borum struck out but Burrage singled sharply to left center and Hock scored. Rikard lifted to short to end the threat and the ball game.

MAX TO RETURN HERE FOR TITLE GO IN SEPTEMBER

Promoters Also Attempt To Line Up Braddock For Battle With German

By Eddie Brietz

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—If Joe Louis beats James J. Braddock for the world's heavyweight title in Chicago June 22, the Bomber will make his first title defense against Max Schmeling here in September.

This was decided late today when the Schmeling board of strategy accepted a challenge signed by Louis and Julian Black, one of his managers, received a few hours before Max sailed on the liner Hamburg.

Louis said that if he beats Braddock he stands ready to meet Schmeling in a 15-round battle with the title involved. The only stipulations are the bout must be held in the United States in September or this year, with Mike Jacobs as the promoter. Schmeling was given a week to reply.

Schmeling at first denied he had received the challenge, but Manager Joe Jacobs and Trainer Max Machon said he was only stalling and that he had agreed to terms with Jacobs a few hours earlier.

"It is a matter of pride with Max," said Jacobs. "He doesn't want to announce acceptance until the challenge has appeared in the papers. He wants the American people to know that Louis came to him."

Jacobs, who plans to stage the bout either in the Yankee stadium or Polo Grounds, said Max held out for and was promised 30 per cent of the net gate. Louis has agreed to work for a similar amount.

This is unusual since the champion usually insists on 42 1-2 per cent, with the challenger drawing down 12 1-2.

If Braddock retains his title in Chicago, Jacobs plans to try to pit him against Max. He looks for more trouble here since Braddock is likely to insist on his 42 1-2 per cent and Schmeling will not fight again for the challenger's end.

Instead of going straight to Germany, Schmeling will drop off the ship at Southampton and go to London for the Tommy Farr-Walter Neusel match, June 15.

If they don't let Max fight for the title in this country, he'll try to do it abroad. If these plans go through, he will be in position to almost name his own terms for future fights here, which is just what he is doing.

BRADDOCK CELEBRATES

GRAND BEACH, Mich., June 5.—(AP)—Heavyweight Champion Jim Braddock started celebrating today what he says will be the happiest birthday anniversary of his life.

The "Cinderella man of boxing," who only a few years ago was a number on the New Jersey relief rolls, will be 31 years old Monday, record books which say he will be 32 notwithstanding. Before him—on the night of June 22 at Chicago—is a million-dollar "gate" bout with Joe Louis. And next fall, take it from Jim, he'll be battling none other than Max Schmeling for another piece of real money.

The titleholder, who says quietly he is "in 100 per cent better shape now than when I beat Max Baer two years ago," was in a happy mood today when he cut loose against five sparmates, using his left almost continuaully.

After the drill Braddock weighed 197 pounds, dropping exactly four during the workout. He plans to weigh between 194 and 196 for the Louis battle and next week ease off in his training program.

GOVERNORS WITHHOLD COMMENT ON RACE BILL

AUSTIN, Tex., June 5.—(AP)—Governors of several racing states were reticent in commenting on the action of the Texas legislature in repealing certificate wagering on horse racing.

Governor Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas was quoted as saying "any sort of artificial economic stimulant such as gambling, whether it is on horse races or otherwise, is just as bad from an economic standpoint as the injection of drugs is bad for a human being." Governor Bailey said recently that if he had been governor when the Arkansas pari-mutuel bill was offered he would have vetoed it.

"I'm glad Texas did it," said State Senator J. Locke Kelly of Clearwater, Fla., "that means more tourists for Florida."

State Senator Ernest R. Graham of Miami said "I'm not surprised. If Florida racing doesn't clean house, somebody else will clean it for them."

The governors of California, Oregon, West Virginia and Washington said they had no comment.

At East Providence, R. I., the New England Southern conference, Methodist Episcopal church, at a session today, went on record approving action of Texas in repealing pari-mutuel betting and expressed the hope that all states similarly affected might do likewise.

worse than the current Brownie crop of pitchers.

Kid McCoy, the former middleweight titleholder, is the latest fistic expert to climb on the Braddock bandwagon. The Real McCoy thinks the champ will knock out Joe Louis in their Chicago engagement. Nope, the Kid doesn't specify the round.

Connie Mack finally has recognized the fair sex. Ladies were admitted free to the Philadelphia park the other day for the first time in the 36-year history of the club.

Dick Bartell, peppery New York Giants shortstop, started his 1937 home spree with one of Mel Ott's bats. Now you can't pry Mel's bludgeon from Dick's hands.

Atley Donald, the former Tech pitcher, won six straight games for Newark of the International league. Then last week he was blasted from the mound twice in succession. Luckily he wasn't charged with either loss, because his mates had piled up an early lead, which wasn't entirely absorbed before Donald was yanked out of there.

Lewis "Rabbit" Blair, the Faraday phenom, has been traded to the Newark club by Oakland. Both clubs are Yankee farms, so it was an even-up affair.

Your old friend Biff Jones has just about concluded negotiations for a Nebraska-Army series of football games.

Every time Carl Hubbell pitches, the Giants are 1 to 3 with the bookmakers.

The Yankees are still ready to bid $75,000 for Bob Feller, regardless of the condition of his arm. Frankly, we don't think Feller will pitch another full game for the Indians this year. Chalk up another blunder for the Cleveland front office. When better errors are made, the Tribe management will make 'em.

CUNNINGHAM SETS NEW RECORD IN N. Y. MEET

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Kansas Glenn Cunningham, running in the colors of the New York Curb Exchange, put a new American record for three quarters of a mile on the books today as he defeated his old rival, Gene Venzke, and his clubmate, Bill Ray, in the feature event of the New York Athletic club's spring games at Travers island.

While 5,000 track enthusiasts gathered around the natural amphitheatre at the N. Y. A. C., summer clubhouse, Cunningham covered the distance in 3:00.6, three-fifths of a second faster than the American record established by Joe Mangan, former Cornell ace, in the same event two years ago. The world record for the distance is 3:00.6, made by Jules Ladoumegue of France in 1931. Cunningham finished 10 yards ahead of Venzke and 40 in front of Ray, the only other starter. The former Kansan went to the front at the start and, except for a brief bid by Venzke shortly after the start, led all the way.

Irging Folwartshny, the blonde giant from Rhode Island State college, got off the best hammer throw of the season when he tossed the iron ball 179 feet 2 7-8 inches.

DAVIS CUP TEAM OFF FOR ENGLAND

Five Players And Captain Pate Sail For Matches With European Net Stars

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—America's five-man Davis Cup team, led by non-playing Captain Walter L. Pate, sailed for England and the second stage of its campaign to regain the historic trophy aboard the liner Columbus tonight.

The team led by Pate was composed of Don Budge, first ranking player of America, his doubles partner, Gene Mako; Bryan (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta; Frank Parker, former Milwaukee boy who now lives in New York, and Wayne Sabin, a last-minute addition to the squad. All but Grant and Parker are Californians and only the 22-year-old Budge and Grant, who is 26, are over 21 years old.

The squad is due to reach Plymouth, England, a week from today. The players will compete on the Queen's club tournament at London, beginning June 14 and in the all-England championships at Wimbledon a week later before resuming Davis Cup competition.

The inter-zone final, in which the Americans expect to face Germany, will be played July 17, 19 and 20, and the challenge round against England July 24, 26 and 27.

Although delighted with his team's feats in conquering Japan and Australia without the loss of a match, Captain Pate refused to make any optimistic predictions about the possibility of bringing back the cup, which was lost to France in 1927.

"If we don't win from Germany, we will take the first boat back," he said. "If we do win, then we'll have to play a British team that is good."

MAN O'WAR COLT COPS RICH RACE BY FOUR LENGTHS

By Alan Gould

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—War Admiral, the mighty little son of Man O'War, flashed a record-smashing display of speed today to capture the classic Belmont Stake with ease and become the fourth three-year-old in thoroughbred history to wear the prized "triple crown."

Despite an injury to his right forequarter at the very start, where the odds-on favorite in the seven-horse field kicked himself and nearly went down, War Admiral spurted quickly to the front, kept full command all the way, and won all by himself like a true son of a renowned superhorse.

The sensational Samuel D. Riddle colt galloped home four good lengths in front of Maxwell Howard's Sceneshifter, with the longshot Vamoose in third place ten lengths further back and the highly-rated Pompoon a badly whipped sixth. Pompoon, which had chased War Admiral home in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness this spring, never was a contender.

Although under no pressure at any stage and not even touched once by Jockey Charley Kurtzinger's whip, War Admiral equalled the American record, clipped a large chunk off the Belmont Stakes mark, and, as a climax, knocked a fifth-second off his daddy's track record by stepping the mile and a half in 2:28 3-5.

War Admiral didn't touch the world record of 2:23, credited to a British horse at Newmarket in 1929, but the colt apparently had enough in reserve to have cracked the American standard if he had been extended.

The Riddle star carried 126 pounds, eight more than Man O'War did when the superhorse set the track mark of 2:28 4-5 in 1920. The former record for the Belmont Stakes 2:29 1-5 was set by Peace Chance in 1934. The listed American record which War Admiral equalled was made by Handy Mandy, carrying only 109 pounds, at Latonia, Ky., in 1927.

A crown of 35,000, one of the greatest in Belmont history acclaimed the three-year-old king as he proved beyond the slightest question he has the stamina to combine with his amazing speed for any distance or circumstances.

War Admiral went to the post the 9 to 10 choice but won like a 1 to 10 shot. The victory added $38,020 to the colt's rapidly-mounting earnings, now totalling $144,620 for this season and $159,420 for two years of racing.

JAMESON AND BERG TO TRANS-MISSISSIPPI FINAL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 5.—(AP)—Bashful, 18-year-old Betty Jameson plowed under two Curtis Cup stars, one the defending titleholder, today and marched into the finals of the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf tournament with her 'teen age pal, Patty Berg.

Mechanically the Texas champion smothered Miss Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., champion the last two years, in a semi-final match, 5 and 3, that followed her one-up triumph over Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City veteran and four times winner of the "Trans" title.

Tomorrow the two high school seniors go the 36-hole route for the crown toppled from Miss Miley's head by the husky Texas girl.

Miss Jameson, who only six weeks ago walloped still another Curtis Cup team member, Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth, in the finals of the Texas championship, was even women's par in her parade to the finals today.

Cochrane will be taken to the Ford hospital, near his home. His parting promise to Dr. R. E. Walsh, who recommended that he remain here five or six weeks longer, was that he would remain in bed "as long as necessary."

with three hits, including a triple.

The game was delayed 20 minutes because of power failure.

Butler made all the putouts in the first inning. After Siemer walked in start the inning, Weisler popped to the catcher, Harper struck hard and Ligon popped out behind the plate.

The Seaporters broke loose with six runs in the second inning, after the Twins had left two men stranded in the last of the first. Ligon, first up for Helena, struck out but Carlin and Raymond singled to left field in succession. Kent couldn't locate the plate and Manager Red Whitney walked. Then L. B. Jones, the Seaporter hurler, slapped a triple to right center and Carlin, Raymond and Whitney scored. Kent also walked Siemer, Weisler followed with a single to left and Jones scored. Harper popped to Butler but Olson hit one through Frank Phinney, new Monroe second sacker, and Siemer scored on the error. Ligon, up for the second time, doubled to left and Weisler scored. That finished Kent and Dale Richardson took the mound for the Twins and forced Carlin to pop to Phinney for the third out.

On the relief of Jones' triple, Phinney hurt his arm in making the throw and although he finished out the inning, "Red" Burrage went to second at the start of the third inning.

The Twins got two of the runs back in the last half of the second. Bates singled to right to start it. Hock hit a hot one to Carlin at first. Carlin threw to Weisler, who covered second, for a force-out but Weisler dropped the ball and all hands were safe. Butler hit a bounder off the plate and was thrown out, Jones to Carlin, but Bates and Hock advanced a base each. Richardson then hit a sizzling drive through Carlin at first and Bates and Hock scored. Borum struck out and so did Burrage, who batted for Phinney.

Richardson's wildness got him in trouble in the third and he didn't last through the inning. Eddie Hock finally called in Clary Hack, all-around handy-man of the Twins, from left field to get the Seaporters out. Richardson got two out and then lost control. Jones, the slugging pitcher, started it with a single to left. Richardson then walked Siemer and hit Weisler to fill the bases. He couldn't get 'em over for Harper and "Doodle" walked, forcing in Jones. He likewise couldn't find the plate with Olson up and the Helena outfielder walked, another run crossing the plate when Siemer was forced across. The Twins' skipper then brought Hack in to pitch and sent Richardson out to left field. Ligon skied to Rikard to end it.

The stands got their biggest kick in the first of the fourth. Carlin, first up, hit a terrific drive that Burrage caught without moving. On the next pitch, Raymond blasted one straight at Hock and the skipper took it in, and then fanned his hand. Whitney, third up, slammed a hot one at Burrage, who moved a foot to his right and snagged it for the third out.

Helena scored one run off Hack in the fifth. Jones got his third straight hit, a single to left. He went to second as Hack tagged out Siemer on a roller down the first base line and scored on Harper's double to left center.

With both pitchers bearing down, neither team scored until the last of the eighth, when the Twins pushed over another pair of tallies. After Richardson had struck out, Borum singled to right. Burrage fanned but Rikard worked Jones for a walk, his fourth pass of the game. Hack slapped a single into left field and Borum scored. Haynes followed with a double to left center to score Rikard. Bates rolled to Carlin, unassisted, for the third out.

The Twins gave the home fans a thrill in the ninth when they staged another rally but it fell short of tying the score. Hock, first up, singled to center and Butler followed with a single to the same spot, his third hit of the game. Horton went in to bat for Richardson and Manager Rod Whitney decided Jones had had enough. He jerked the starter and sent in Tubb, his ace, to quell the uprising. Horton sent a fly to deep center field and Borum struck out but Burarge singled sharply to left center and Hock scored. Rikard lifted to short to end the threat and the ball game.

MAX TO RETURN HERE FOR TITLE GO IN SEPTEMBER

Promoters Also Attempt To Line Up Braddock For Battle With German

By Eddie Brietz

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—If Joe Louis beats James J. Braddock for the world's heavyweight title in Chicago June 22, the Bomber will make his first title defense against Max Schmeling here in September.

This was decided late today when the Schmeling board of strategy accepted a challenge signed by Louis and Julian Black, one of his managers, received a few hours before Max sailed on the liner Hamburg.

Louis said that if he beats Braddock he stands ready to meet Schmeling in a 15-round battle with the title involved. The only stipulations are the bout must be held in the United States in September or this year, with Mike Jacobs as the promoter. Schmeling was given a week to reply.

Schmeling at first denied he had received the challenge, but Manager Joe Jacobs and Trainer Max Machon said he was only stalling and that he had agreed to terms with Jacobs a few hours earlier.

"It is a matter of pride with Max," said Jacobs. "He doesn't want to announce acceptance until the challenge has appeared in the papers. He wants the American people to know that Louis came to him."

Jacobs, who plans to stage the bout either in the Yankee stadium or Polo Grounds, said Max held out for and was promised 30 per cent of the net gate. Louis has agreed to work for a similar amount.

This is unusual since the champion usually insists on 42 1-2 per cent, with the challenger drawing down 12 1-2.

If Braddock retains his title in Chicago, Jacobs plans to try to pit him against Max. He looks for more trouble here since Braddock is likely to insist on his 42 1-2 per cent and Schmeling will not fight again for the challenger's end.

Instead of going straight to Germany, Schmeling will drop off the ship at Southampton and go to London for the Tommy Farr-Walter Neusel match, June 15.

If they don't let Max fight for the title in this country, he'll try to do it abroad. If these plans go through, he will be in position to almost name his own terms for furture fights here, which is just what he is doing.

BRADDOCK CELEBRATES

GRAND BEACH, Mich., June 5.—(AP)—Heavyweight Champion Jim Braddock started celebrating today what he says will be the happiest birthday anniversary of his life.

The "Cinderella man of boxing," who only a few years ago was a number on the New Jersey relief rolls, will be 31 years old Monday, record books which say he will be 32 notwithstanding. Before him—on the night of June 22 at Chicago—is a million-dollar "gate" bout with Joe Louis. And next fall, take it from Jim, he'll be battling none other than Max Schmeling for another piece of real money.

The titleholder, who says quietly he is "in 100 per cent better shape now than when I beat Max Baer two years ago," was in a happy mood today when he cut loose against five sparmates, using his left almost continuaully.

After the drill Braddock weighed 197 pounds, dropping exactly four during the workout. He plans to weigh between 194 and 196 for the Louis battle and next week ease off in his training program.

GOVERNORS WITHHOLD COMMENT ON RACE BILL

AUSTIN, Tex., June 5.—(AP)—Governors of several racing states were reticent in commenting on the action of the Texas legislature in repealing certificate wagering on horse racing.

Governor Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas was quoted as saying "any sort of artificial economic stimulant such as gambling, whether it is on horse races or otherwise, is just as bad from an economic standpoint as the injection of drugs is bad for a human being." Governor Bailey said recently that if he had been governor when the Arkansas pari-mutuel bill was offered he would have vetoed it.

"I'm glad Texas did it," said State Senator J. Locke Kelly of Clearwater, Fla., "that means more tourists for Florida."

State Senator Ernest R. Graham of Miami said, "I'm not surprised. If Florida racing doesn't clean house, somebody else will clean it for them."

The governors of California, Oregon, West Virginia and Washington said they had no comment.

At East Providence, R. I., the New England Southern conference, Methodist Episcopal church, at a session today, went on record approving action of Texas in repealing pari-mutuel betting and expressed the hope that all states similarly affected might do likewise.

CUNNINGHAM SETS NEW RECORD IN N. Y. MEET

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Kansas Glenn Cunningham, running in the colors of the New York Curb Exchange, put a new American record for three quarters of a mile on the books today as he defeated his old rival, Gene Venzke, and his clubmate, Bill Ray, in the feature event of the New York Athletic club's spring games at Travers island.

While 5,000 track enthusiasts gathered around the natural amphitheatre at the N. Y. A. C., summer clubhouse, Cunningham covered the distance in 3:00.6, three-fifths of a second faster than the American record established by Joe Mangan, former Cornell ace, in the same event two years ago. The world record for the distance is 3:00.6, made by Jules Ladoumegue of France in 1931. Cunningham finished 10 yards ahead of Venzke and 40 in front of Ray, the only other starter. The former Kansan went to the front at the start and, except for a brief bid by Venzke shortly after the start, led all the way.

Irging Folwartshny, the blonde giant from Rhode Island State college, got off the best hammer throw of the season when he tossed the iron ball 179 feet 2 7-8 inches.

DAVIS CUP TEAM OFF FOR ENGLAND

Five Players And Captain Pate Sail For Matches With European Net Stars

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—America's five-man Davis Cup team, led by non-playing Captain Walter L. Pate, sailed for England and the second stage of its campaign to regain the historic trophy aboard the liner Columbus tonight.

The team led by Pate was composed of Don Budge, first ranking player of America, his doubles partner, Gene Mako; Bryan (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta; Frank Parker, former Milwaukee boy who now lives in New York, and Wayne Sabin, a last-minute addition to the squad. All but Grant and Parker are Californians and only the 22-year-old Budge and Grant, who is 26, are over 21 years old.

The squad is due to reach Plymouth, England, a week from today. The players will compete in the Queen's club tournament at London, beginning June 14 and in the all-England championships at Wimbledon a week later before resuming Davis Cup competition.

The inter-zone final, in which the Americans expect to face Germany, will be played July 17, 19 and 20, and the challenge round against England July 24, 26 and 27.

Although delighted with his team's feats in conquering Japan and Australia without the loss of a match, Captain Pate refused to make any optimistic predicitions about the possibility of bringing back the cup, which was lost to France in 1927.

"If we don't win from Germany, we will take the first boat back," he said. "If we do win, then we'll have to play a British team that is good."

AFRAID to LOVE

CHAPTER I

The annual Spring Frolic at the Green Hills inn was in progress. Every person—young or old—who was of any social value in Green Hills was at the inn, the men trim and debonair in spotless tails and tux, the women glamorous and luxurious in gleaming velvets and glittering metal cloths.

For Green Hills was one of the smartest suburbs within the metropolitan New York area, and the first spring dance at the inn was unquestionably the gala event of the season.

By eleven-thirty the party was in full sway, and the stag line, fortified by just the proper number of Scotch and sodas, was performing in splendid form. The women of Green Hills were proud of them. Perhaps a little later there would be those who might weaken—some to seek rest for weary feet in the smoking room downstairs, some to fall into the gentle unconsciousness which one too many Scotch induces. But as yet the evening was unspoiled.

Hal Stewart's orchestra, imported from a three weeks' engagement on Broadway, swung into the lively strains of "A Fine Romance." The older women took heart; they preferred these faster tunes. The quick rhythm stirred their blood; it proved that they could step around just as lively as the 18-year-old girls, despite grown children at home.

Millie Sanders, frisking by in the arms of Jerry Johnston, glanced over her shoulder at Jerry's wife, Laura.

"Who's that lovely blonde with Bob Andrews?" she asked Laura excitedly, slowing Jerry down so that she might catch the answer.

"Mr. Hendry's secretary, I'm told," Laura replied. "I've never seen her before."

"Isn't she lovely? Jerry, don't you think she's lovely? Look, that blonde girl dancing with Bob . . ."

Jerry looked. He saw a slim, golden-haired girl, and even to his unstrained masculine eye it seemed fitting that she should be dressed in rich black velvet, unadorned save for the gardenias at her shoulder. Her eyes were bright, clear blue, and the depth of their color contrasted vividly with the fairness of her skin. She looked to Jerry like a girl who had just stepped out of some rare old painting, too delicate for this mad whirl of dancing.

"She's a beauty, all right," he assured Millie enthusiastically. "And much as I hate to break your faithful old heart, Millie, I think I'll park you over here by the palms and cut in on her myself."

Millie laughed good-naturedly. "You're not the only one thinking that. Every eye on the stag line is following her, but Bob keeps out of the way. You haven't a chance, Jerry. Better be contented with me for a while."

Millie was right. Every time Bob Andrews approached the south end of the room, where the men were gathered, a dozen pair of eyes tried to catch his, a dozen hands started upward to attract his attention. But each time, he adroitly changed his course.

After his tenth failure to cut in, Jimmy MacArthur looked disgusted.

"What's the matter with Andrews tonight?" he asked Philip Hendry, standing alongside of him. "Is he afraid we'll eat her?"

Philip shrugged carelessly. "It's plain to see," he remarked, with a touch of superiority, "that he begrudges you the lady's company."

"Can't say I blame him," Jimmy admitted. "Who is she, Phil?"

"My uncle's secretary, Joan Barrett."

"Jean Barrett, eh? Does she live here in Green Hills?"

"No. In town." He smiled provokingly. "And you won't find her listed in the phone book."

Philip edged away from the group, a little amused at this excitement Miss Barrett was causing. For his own part he cared little for girls of the fragile blonde type. Give him a warm redhead any day, or a dashing black-eyed Susan like his sister Sybil. . . . Where was Sybil tonight, anyway? She'd give him the devil if he didn't put in an appearance. His eyes strayed over the other couples on the floor.

Presently he saw her coming toward him, dancing with Jim Neil. Philip smiled approvingly as he watched her. His sister, he told himself, was certainly the finest looking woman in Green Hills. Tonight, in a gorgeous gown of metal cloth which emphasized every line of her tall, slim body, she was smart, sophisticated, delicately arrogant.

For the moment she seemed unusually gay. Her white teeth, strong and brilliant against the deep carmine of her lips, flashed constantly as she chatted with her partner. Her dark eyes roved provokingly over the dancers, yet Philip noticed they carefully avoided the stag line, as if she were afraid their challenge might go unanswered.

At any other time, Sybil Hendry would have been the undisputed focus of every male eye; tonight she was feeling the new competition which her uncle's secretary was offering. She was feeling it, and despite her sparkling gayety, she was not enjoying it. For more than one reason.

Philip, quick to understand his sister's moods, saw beyond the quick flash of her smile, the cool abandon of her dancing. He saw the smoldering fire in her blue-black eyes, the tense poise of her dark head, the tiny pulse which beat spasmodically in her white throat whenever she struggled to hold her feelings in control.

He waited until Jim Neil came abreast of him again, then he stepped forward and tapped him on the shoulder. With a casual "Hello, Phil," Neil surrendered his partner. Philip guided his sister's steps out into the center of the floor without speaking. With light mockery in his tone, he sang softly the words of the orchestra's selection:

"A fine romance, with no kisses—
A fine romance, I think this is . . ."

"Keep still!" Sybil snapped, abruptly.

Her brother laughed.

"Nice of me, wasn't it, to give you a chance to be yourself?"

He whirled her past Bob Andrews and Joan Barrett, smiling graciously at Joan as he did so.

"If you have to be jealous, Syb," he murmured, "why must you look the part, for every cat in Green Hills to find it out?"

"That little upstart!" she whispered through clenched teeth. "I don't see why Bob hasn't better taste than to bring the office help out here."

"I'm afraid it goes deeper than that, Sybil," Philip said, not unkindly.

He felt her arm, resting lightly on his, go tense.

"It can't!" she said defiantly. "I won't let it!"

Philip said nothing. He felt a little sorry for Sybil. He knew, as no one else had ever guessed, how desperately and how futilely—she had loved Bob ever since that first evening, five years before, when their uncle had brought the young man home to dinner. "The best bond salesman the company ever had." Uncle John told them then; now, five years later, Bob Andrews was a junior partner, with every prospect of heading the Hendry organization eventually.

He was as striking in appearance as Sybil; he had the same dark, blue-black hair, the same straight classic features, the same flashing smile. But there the likeness ended. Where Sybil's eyes were mysteriously cold, no matter how gayly she smiled, Bob's were warm and twinkling. Where she was superficially gay and charming and calculating, with a quick smile to serve her purpose, he was naturally and sincerely friendly, with as hearty a grin for the bootblack who shined his shoes as he had for his wealthiest customer.

For five long years, Sybil had loved him. Because of his association with her uncle, they were constant companions; he was a thoughtful and attentive escort. Yet, despite every effort she had put forth to deepen their relationship, he was still as unattainable, as impersonal, as he had been on the occasion of their first meeting. He was the one thing in life which she craved above all else; his love was the only thing of which she had ever been deprived.

And now, it seemed, he was ready to throw it away on some designing, doll-faced stenographer.

CHAPTER II

The boys in the orchestra picked up their tiny megaphones and harmonized the chorus of their song. Lights, for the moment, were seductively dimmed. The wildly spirited tone of the music gradually became tender. Unconsciously, the younger dancers pressed their cheeks a little closer; the older men tightened their hold about matronly waists. Bob Andrews, skirting the edge of the floor, maneuvered his partner through an arched doorway onto a quiet side porch.

"There!" he said with satisfaction, "it's good to get out of that din . . ."

"The music is perfect, Bob," Joan corrected.

"Maybe so. But I was crazy to bring you here tonight."

His eyes worshiped the clear-cut profile of her face, the proud lift of her chin, and his heart quickened to this chance of being alone.

Joan raised her eyebrows in mild surprise. "Why?" she asked, smiling up at him. "Don't your neighbors like me?"

"Like you!" They walked over to the porch railing. Below them on the terrace, the evergreens, festooned with gay red and green and yellow lanterns, gleamed brightly, and the reflection of the lights lent a glow of colorful enchantment to the porch.

"Like you!" Bob repeated, linking her arm more tightly in his. "Every man in the place is ready to eat me alive for keeping you to myself this way."

Still looking down at her, he caught the beauty of that moment in her wide blue eyes.

"Joan, darling," he said with infinite tenderness, "do you know that you're the lovelies girl in all the world?"

"No. But I know that I'm the happiest—tonight." She smiled wistfully.

"Won't you share it, my dear?"

Joan dropped her eyes under his intense gaze.

"I could be the happiest man in the world tonight," he went on. "You could make me, Joan."

When she did look up, there were tears glistening on her eyelashes.

"Bob, my dear! It's so impossible—so utterly—"

"Impossible to love me?"

She started, and, for one brief instant, he read the answer in her eyes. Then his arms were about her, his lips seeking hers. At first she struggled against him, then slowly, in resignation to a force stronger than her will, she gave herself up to the full ecstasy of his embrace.

Inside, the music struck a livelier note; the dancing became more spirited; voices were raised in a babbling confusion. But here on the tiny porch, there were only two people in all the world; two who had just discovered the answer to the everlasting mystery of life.

After a moment, he released her. She drew back, frightened at herself, and caught her breath sharply. Her eyes, as she looked up at him, were wide and fearful.

"You do love me, Joan. Don't try to deny it."

"Oh, Bob, please listen to me. I can't love you. I mustn't. Won't you understand? I couldn't ever make you happy . . ."

He shook his head, contradicting her words. He smiled joyfully down at her.

"You have made me happy, my darling. I'm the happiest man in the world, as I told you I would be. I'm going to marry you, Joan. Do you hear me? I'm not asking you to marry me . . . I've done that too often. I'm telling you, now. I'm going to marry you."

The music stopped abruptly. For a brief second there was a breathless stillness. Then, from far above them, the clock in the steeple of the Inn struck one.

Joan slipped out of Bob's arms; she held him off at arm's length as she spoke to him.

"Bob," she said chokingly, "I'm being caught in some magic spell. I mustn't let it overcome me. I cannot marry you. No matter how we feel—"

"You mean there's someone else, Joan? Someone you've already married?"

"No. There's no one else. It's not as easy as that."

"Then what is it, my dear? Can't you tell me—so that we can work it out together?"

"I can't tell you, Bob. There's something in my life that I would rather die than have you find out, because if you did, you would hate me."

For a moment he stood there, looking into her eyes, trying to draw out their secret. Then he made his decision.

"Listen to me, Joan," he said in all seriousness. "With all my heart, I love you. Whatever the past holds, we'll forget together. Whatever the future brings, we'll fight together. But I'm going to marry you."

"Bob—"

She stopped abruptly, looking over his shoulder toward the doorway. Following her glance, he turned around. Sybil Hendry stood behind them, and her eyes were cold as Arctic ice.

"Hell, Sybil," Bob greeted cordially.

As Sybil looked at him, her lips were smiling, and she forced a bright gayety into her voice. "Am I intruding?" she asked.

She came forward, extending both hands to Bob. Her eyes were in the shadows, so that he could not read the fierce anguish hidden in their depths.

"Of course not, Sybil." Bob returned exuberantly. "And listen, you shall be the first to hear that Joan is going to marry me. Wish us luck, Sybil!"

"Marry you?" She choked over the words, and her hand flew nervously to her throat. Quickly, however, she recovered herself. "Bob!" she exclaimed, and her tone was gay to the point of hysteria. "I'm simply overwhelmed with surprise!"

She did not wish him luck, she did not look at Joan. But Joan, too frightened and confused herself at Bob's irrevocable announcement, did not notice the omission.

"I must tell your uncle, Sybil," Bob rushed on. "Know where he is?"

"No. No, I don't. Probably down at the bar . . ."

"We'll find him. Come along, Joan. I'm telling everybody before you try to back out."

Inside, the orchestra began "Auld Lang Syne," and the dancers were forming themselves into an enormous circle to sing the refrain. Merry voices called out cheery greetings to special acquaintances, and friendly hands reached out to draw elusive stragglers into the singing circle. Sybil watched Bob weave his way in and out among them, his arms held protectingly around the girl he had chosen in preference to her. She saw the glad light in his eyes as he refused to be drawn into the circle—the glad light which she had never been able to arouse.

It seemed as if all the world had suddenly stopped—as if the end of life had come as well. She was so cold that she shook like a leaf in the wind; yet in her brain a white-hot fire was raging—a fire of anger and jealousy and bitter hatred.

And through the mad flames that were her thoughts, one sentence rang out, loud and true and unforgettable:

"There's something in my life that I would rather die than have you find out, because if you did, you would hate me."

She had heard the words distinctly and unmistakably. Now they seared themselves indelibly into her brain.

Suddenly her white teeth flashed and she began to laugh, quietly at first, then so increasingly loud that those inside who heard her were a little startled.

He saw a slim, golden-haired girl. . . . She looked like a girl who had just stepped out of some rare old picture, too delicate for this mad whirl of dancing.

"Bob—" She stopped abruptly, looking over his shoulder toward the doorway. Following her glance, he turned around. Sybil Hendry stood behind them, and her eyes were cold as Arctic ice.

Final prices were steady, net unchanged to 5 points higher.

The opening was irregular in spite of fairly-favorable Liverpool cables. The good weather in the belt and continued reports of crop progress discouraged speculative sentiment.

Enough week-end covering and trade buying developed during the short session today to absorb liquidation and hold the market steady.

The statement from Washington yesterday that no change in this country's gold policy was imminent aided the better tone of the market.

The AAA said 159,228 tons were charged against the 497,340 ton quota of continental sugar cane areas in the first four months of this year. Data for May was not available.

The report showed 438,825 tons of refined sugar was charged against quotas of 658,796 tons for off-shore areas. NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Stocks got off to a good start in today's brief market session but, aside from favored specialties, most fell back under week-end profit selling.

The overnight news grist provided nothing startling marketwise and many traders, believing yesterday's late rally was largely due to the drying up of offerings following the protracted decline, decided to cash in some of their gains and wait for what may happen next week.

The gold fever appeared to have abated in the wake of the president's warning against worry over this situation. The price of the yellow metal was lifted about 1 cent an ounce in London and sizeable purchases were made for American account.

While sporadic strikes in Chrysler and General Motors plants were settled, there was no sign of a break in the steel labor deadlock and some steel issues lost advancing vigor. Farm implements achieved considerable popularity for a time, but they failed to hold at the best.

After a fairly active first hour the volume dwindled. Transfers were around 400,000 shares.

Bonds, although quiet, did rather well with a number of secondary rail loans edging forward. Commodities were uneven.

Shares on the topside as much as 2 points or so most of the time—several retreated before the finish—were J. I. Case, Deere, International Harvester, Marshall Field, Montogemry Ward, Coca-Cola, Allis Chalmers, Yellow Truck, Inland Steel, American Steel Foundries, Republic Steel, Briggs Manufacturing, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Howe Sound, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, American Smelting, Phillips Petroleum, Du Pont, General Electric, New York Central, Southern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, General American Transportaiton, Air Reduction, Loew's and Liggett & Myers "B."

Inclined to slip were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, North American, Electric Power & Light, Phelps Dodge, Seaboard Oil, Amerada, Certain-teed, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Great Northern.

Further liveliness of farm machinery stocks again reflected brightening prospects for unusually large crops this year with resultant expansion of agricultural incomes. Growing demand for equipment was said to be keeping manufacturing operations in implement lines at high levels.

AFRAID to LOVE

by MARION WHITE © 1937 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER I

The annual Spring Frolic at the Green Hills inn was in progress. Every person—young or old—who was of any social value in Green Hills was at the inn, the men trim and debonair in spotless tails and tux, the women glamorous and luxurious in gleaming velvets and glittering metal cloths.

For Green Hills was one of the smartest suburbs within the metropolitan New York area, and the first spring dance at the inn was unquestionably the gala event of the season.

By eleven-thirty the party was in full sway, and the stag line, fortified by just the proper number of Scotch and sodas, was performing in splendid form. The women of Green Hills were proud of them. Perhaps a little later there would be those who might weaken—some to seek rest for weary feet in the smoking room downstairs, some to fall into the gentle unconsciousness which one too many Scotch induces. But as yet the evening was unspoiled.

Hal Stewart's orchestra, imported from a three weeks' engagement on Broadway, swung into the lively strains of "A Fine Romance." The older women took heart; they preferred these faster tunes. The quick rhythm stirred their blood; it proved that they could step around just as lively as the 18-year-old girls, despite grown children at home.

Millie Sanders, frisking by in the arms of Jerry Johnston, glanced over her shoulder at Jerry's wife, Laura.

"Who's that lovely blonde with Bob Andrews?" she asked Laura excitedly, slowing Jerry down so that she might catch the answer.

"Mr. Hendry's secretary, I'm told," Laura replied. "I've never seen her before."

"Isn't she lovely? Jerry, don't you think she's lovely? Look, that blonde girl dancing with Bob . . ."

Jerry looked. He saw a slim, golden-haired girl, and even to his unstrained masculine eye it seemed fitting that she should be dressed in rich black velvet, unadorned save for the gardenias at her shoulder. Her eyes were bright, clear blue, and the depth of their color contrasted vividly with the fairness of her skin. She looked to Jerry like a girl who had just stepped out of some rare old painting, too delicate for this mad whirl of dancing.

"She's a beauty, all right," he assured Millie enthusiastically. "And much as I hate to break your faithful old heart, Millie, I think I'll park you over here by the palms and cut in on her myself."

Millie laughed good-naturedly. "You're not the only one thinking that. Every eye on the stag line is following her, but Bob keeps out of the way. You haven't a chance, Jerry. Better be contented with me for a while."

Millie was right. Every time Bob Andrews approached the south end of the room, where the men were gathered, a dozen pair of eyes tried to catch his, a dozen hands started upward to attract his attention. But each time, he adroitly changed his course.

After his tenth failure to cut in, Jimmy MacArthur looked disgusted.

"What's the matter with Andrews tonight?" he asked Philip Hendry, standing alongside of him. "Is he afraid we'll eat her?"

Philip shrugged carelessly. "It's plain to see," he remarked, with a touch of superiority, "that he begrudges you the lady's company."

"Can't say I blame him," Jimmy admitted. "Who is she, Phil?"

"My uncle's secretary, Joan Barrett."

"Jean Barrett, eh? Does she live here in Green Hills?"

Philip edged away from the group, a little amused at this excitement Miss Barrett was causing. For his own part he cared little for girls of the fragile blonde type. Give him a warm red-head any day, or a dashing black-eyed Susan like his sister Sybil. . . . Where was Sybil tonight, anyway? She'd give him the devil if he didn't put in an appearance. His eyes strayed over the other couples on the floor.

Presently he saw her coming toward him, dancing with Jim Neil. Philip smiled approvingly as he watched her. His sister, he told himself, was certainly the finest looking woman in Green Hills. Tonight, in a gorgeous gown of metal cloth which emphasized every line of her tall, slim body, she was smart, sophisticated, delicately arrogant.

For the moment she seemed unusually gay. Her white teeth, strong and brilliant against the deep carmine of her lips, flashed constantly as she chatted with her partner. Her dark eyes roved provokingly over the dancers, yet Philip noticed they carefully avoided the stag line, as if she were afraid their challenge might go unanswered.

At any other time, Sybil Hendry would have been the undisputed focus of every male eye; tonight she was feeling the new competition which her uncle's secretary was offering. She was feeling it, and despite her sparkling gayety, she was not enjoying it. For more than one reason.

Philip, quick to understand his sister's moods, saw beyond the quick flash of her smile, the cool abandon of her dancing. He saw the smoldering fire in her blue-black eyes, the tense poise of her dark head, the tiny pulse which beat spasmodically in her white throat whenever she struggled to hold her feelings in control.

He waited until Jim Neil came abreast of him again, then he stepped forward and tapped him on the shoulder. With a casual "Hello, Phil," Neil surrendered his partner. Philip guided his sister's steps out into the center of the floor without speaking. With light mockery in his tone, he sang softly the words of the orchestra's selection:

"A fine romance, with no kisses—
A fine romance, I think this is . . ."

"Keep still!" Sybil snapped, abruptly.

Her brother laughed.

"Nice of me, wasn't it, to give you a chance to be yourself?"

He whirled her past Bob Andrews and Joan Barrett, smiling graciously at Joan as he did so.

"If you have to be jealous, Syb," he murmured, "why must you look the part, for every cat in Green Hills to find it out?"

"That little upstart!" she whispered through clenched teeth. "I don't see why Bob hasn't better taste than to bring the office help out here."

"I'm afraid it goes deeper than that, Sybil," Philip said, not unkindly.

He felt her arm, resting lightly on his, go tense.

"It can't!" she said defiantly. "I won't let it!"

Philip said nothing. He felt a little sorry for Sybil. He knew, as no one else had ever guessed, how desperately and how futilely—she had loved Bob ever since that first evening, five years before, when their uncle had brought the young man home to dinner. "The best bond salesman the company ever had," Uncle John told them then; now, five years later, Bob Andrews was a junior partner, with every prospect of heading the Hendry organization eventually.

He saw a slim, golden-haired girl. . . . She looked like a girl who had just stepped out of some rare old picture, too delicate for this mad whirl of dancing.

He was as striking in appearance as Sybil; he had the same dark, blue-black hair, the same straight classic features, the same flashing smile. But there the likeness ended. Where Sybil's eyes were mysteriously cold, no matter how gayly she smiled, Bob's were warm and twinkling. Where she was superficially gay and charming and calculating, with a quick smile to serve her purpose, he was naturally and sincerely friendly, with as hearty a grin for the bootblack who shined his shoes as he had for his wealthiest customer.

For five long years, Sybil had loved him. Because of his association with her uncle, they were constant companions; he was a thoughtful and attentive escort. Yet, despite every effort she had put forth to deepen their relationship, he was still as unattainable, as impersonal, as he had been on the occasion of their first meeting. He was the one thing in life which she craved above all else; his love was the only thing of which she had ever been deprived.

And now, it seemed, he was ready to throw it away on some designing, doll-faced stenographer.

CHAPTER II

The boys in the orchestra picked up their tiny megaphones and harmonized the chorus of their song. Lights, for the moment, were seductively dimmed. The wildly spirited tone of the music gradually became tender. Unconsciously, the younger dancers pressed their cheeks a little closer; the older men tightened their hold about matronly waists. Bob Andrews, skirting the edge of the floor, maneuvered his partner through an arched doorway onto a quiet side porch.

"There!" he said with satisfaction, "it's good to get out of that din . . ."

"The music is perfect, Bob," Joan corrected.

"Maybe so. But I was crazy to bring you here tonight."

His eyes worshiped the clear-cut profile of her face, the proud lift of her chin, and his heart quickened to this chance of being alone.

Joan raised her eyebrows in mild surprise. "Why?" she asked, smiling up at him. "Don't your neighbors like me?"

"Like you!" They walked over to the porch railing. Below them on the terrace, the evergreens, festooned with gay red and green and yellow lanterns, gleamed brightly, and the reflection of the lights lent a glow of colorful enchantment to the porch.

"Like you!" Bob repeated, linking her arm more tightly in his. "Every man in the place is ready to eat me alive for keeping you to myself this way."

Still looking down at her, he caught the beauty of that moment in her wide blue eyes.

"Joan, darling," he said with infinite tenderness, "do you know that you're the loveliest girl in all the world?"

"No. But I know that I'm the happiest—tonight." She smiled wistfully.

"Won't you share it, my dear?"

Joan dropped her eyes under his intense gaze.

"I could be the happiest man in the world tonight," he went on. "You could make me, Joan."

When she did look up, there were tears glistening on her eyelashes.

"Bob, my dear! It's so impossible—so utterly—"

"Impossible to love me?"

She started, and, for one brief instant, he read the answer in her eyes. Then his arms were about her, his lips seeking hers. At first she struggled against him, then slowly, in resignation to a force stronger than her will, she gave herself up to the full ecstasy of his embrace.

Inside, the music struck a livelier note; the dancing became more spirited; voices were raised in a babbling confusion. But here on the tiny porch, there were only two people in all the world; two who had just discovered the answer to the everlasting mystery of life.

After a moment, he released her. She drew back, frightened at herself, and caught her breath sharply. Her eyes, as she looked up at him, were wide and fearful.

"You do love me, Joan. Don't try to deny it."

"Oh, Bob, please listen to me. I can't love you. I mustn't. Won't you understand? I couldn't ever make you happy . . ."

He shook his head, contradicting her words. He smiled joyfully down at her.

"You have made me happy, my darling. I'm the happiest man in the world, as I told you I would be. I'm going to marry you, Joan. Do you hear me? I'm not asking you to marry me . . . I've done that too often. I'm telling you, now. I'm going to marry you."

The music stopped abruptly. For a brief second there was a breathless stillness. Then, from far above them, the clock in the steeple of the Inn struck one.

Joan slipped out of Bob's arms; she held him off at arm's length as she spoke to him.

"Bob," she said chokingly, "I'm being caught in some magic spell. I mustn't let it overcome me. I cannot marry you. No matter how we feel—"

"You mean there's someone else, Joan? Someone you've already married?"

"No. There's no one else. It's not as easy as that."

"Then what is it, my dear? Can't you tell me—so that we can work it out together?"

"I can't tell you, Bob. There's something in my life that I would rather die than have you find out, because if you did, you would hate me."

For a moment he stood there, looking into her eyes, trying to draw out their secret. Then he made his decision.

"Listen to me, Joan," he said in all seriousness. "With all my heart, I love you. Whatever the past holds, we'll forget together. Whatever the future brings, we'll fight together. But I'm going to marry you."

"Bob—"

She stopped abruptly, looking over his shoulder toward the doorway. Following her glance, he turned around.

"Bob—" She stopped abruptly, looking over his shoulder toward the doorway. Sybil Hendry stood behind them, and her eyes were cold as Arctic ice.

Sybil Hendry stood behind them, and her eyes were cold as Arctic ice.

"Hell, Sybil," Bob greeted cordially.

As Sybil looked at him, her lips were smiling, and she forced a bright gayety into her voice. "Am I intruding?" she asked.

She came forward, extending both hands to Bob. Her eyes were in the shadows, so that he could not read the fierce anguish hidden in their depths.

"Of course not, Sybil," Bob returned exuberantly. "And listen, you shall be the first to hear that Joan is going to marry me. Wish us luck, Sybil!"

"Marry you?" She choked over the words, and her hand flew nervously to her throat. Quickly, however, she recovered herself. "Bob!" she exclaimed, and her tone was gay to the point of hysteria. "I'm simply overwhelmed with surprise!"

She did not wish him luck, she did not look at Joan. But Joan, too frightened and confused herself at Bob's irrevocable announcement, did not notice the omission.

"I must tell your uncle, Sybil," Bob rushed on. "Know where he is?"

"No. No, I don't. Probably down at the bar . . ."

"We'll find him. Come along, Joan. I'm telling everybody before you try to back out."

Inside, the orchestra began "Auld Lang Syne," and the dancers were forming themselves into an enormous circle to sing the refrain. Merry voices called out cheery greetings to special acquaintances, and friendly hands reached out to draw elusive stragglers into the singing circle. Sybil watched Bob weave his way in and out among them, his arms held protectingly around the girl he had chosen in preference to her. She saw the glad light in his eyes as he refused to be drawn into the circle—the glad light which she had never been able to arouse.

It seemed as if all the world had suddenly stopped—as if the end of life had come as well. She was so cold that she shook like a leaf in the wind; yet in her brain a white-hot fire was raging—a fire of anger and jealousy and bitter hatred.

And through the mad flames that were her thoughts, one sentence rang out, loud and true and unforgettable:

"There's something in my life that I would rather die than have you find out, because if you did, you would hate me."

She had heard the words distinctly and unmistakably. Now they seared themselves indelibly into her brain.

Suddenly her white teeth flashed and she began to laugh, quietly at first, then so increasingly loud that those inside who heard her were a little startled.

The World's Latest Market News

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, June 5.—(AP)—Fluctuations were extremely dull today in the cotton market and trading was limited to evening up transactions for over the week-end.

Final prices were steady, net unchanged to 5 points higher.

The opening was irregular in spite of fairly-favorable Liverpool cables. The good weather in the belt and continued reports of crop progress discouraged speculative sentiment.

Enough week-end covering and trade buying developed during the short session today to absorb liquidation and hold the market steady.

The statement from Washington yesterday that no change in this country's gold policy was imminent aided the better tone of the market.

July closed at 12.63, Oct. at 12.68, Dec. at 12.75; Jan. 12.79, March 12.83 and May 12.85.

Exports today were 2,549 bales.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Stocks got off to a good start in today's brief market session but, aside from favored specialties, most fell back under week-end profit selling.

The overnight news grist provided nothing startling marketwise and many traders, believing yesterday's late rally was largely due to the drying up of offerings following the protracted decline, decided to cash in some of their gains and wait for what may happen next week.

The gold fever appeared to have abated in the wake of the president's warning against worry over this situation. The price of the yellow metal was lifted about 1 cent an ounce in London and sizeable purchases were made for American account.

While sporadic strikes in Chrysler and General Motors plants were settled, there was no sign of a break in the steel labor deadlock and some steel issues lost advancing vigor. Farm implements achieved considerable popularity for a time, but they failed to hold at the best.

After a fairly active first hour the volume dwindled. Transfers were around 400,000 shares.

Bonds, although quiet, did rather well with a number of secondary rail loans edging forward. Commodities were uneven.

Shares on the topside as much as 2 points or so most of the time—several retreated before the finish—were J. I. Case, Deere, International Harvester, Marshall Field, Montogemry Ward, Coca-Cola, Allis Chalmers, Yellow Truck, Inland Steel, American Steel Foundries, Republic Steel, Briggs Manufacturing, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Howe Sound, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, American Smelting, Phillips Petroleum, Du Pont, General Electric, New York Central, Southern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, General American Transportaiton, Air Reduction, Loew's and Liggett & Myers "B."

Inclined to slip were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, North American, Electric Power & Light, Phelps Dodge, Seaboard Oil, Amerada, Certain-teed, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Great Northern.

Further liveliness of farm machinery stocks again reflected brightening prospects for unusually large crops this year with resultant expansion of agricultural incomes. Growing demand for equipment was said to be keeping manufacturing operations in implement lines at high levels.

PUBLIC FORUM

THE MONROE DUST BOWL

To The Editor:

Most of us are more or less familiar with conditions in what is known as the Kansas Dust Bowl where thousands of people have been forced to leave their farms, their homes and all their worldly possessions except the few things they can carry with them—seeking a place, any place to lay their heads, where they can breathe clean, fresh air and begin life over again.

If present conditions continue, we are going to have just such a Dust Bowl in the southern extremity of Monroe; not on account of dust but because of offensive, destructive chemicals which are being allowed to saturate the air and to destroy property. We, of the "Monroe Dust Bowl", have patiently breathed this very offensive air for years with the thought in mind that we could endure it so long as it is furnishing employment to several hundreds of our citizens.

Heretofore these chemicals and other refuse have been turned into the Ouachita river, and it is believed that the water of the river diluted them sufficiently that the vapors arising therefrom were not noticeably injurious to paint except in an area immediately adjacent to the government locks and dam. Some time last year, in an honest effort to prevent the killing of fish in the river, land was purchased along the west bank and a settling basin was built to take care of this refuse. Now, since the fish have been saved, large numbers of people are again gathering at the locks and enjoying the sport of fishing.

But—since this refuse has been turned into the new settling basin and the breezes come from the west and southwest, it has become necessary that we not only breathe the air but that we sit by helplessly watching the paint on our homes (ninety per cent of which are still unpaid for) turn black and later disappear. We clean and polish our watches, silverware, bath tubs, sinks and lavatories in the evening and awake to find them black and filthy in the morning. We are awakened in the night with a choking sensation—dry mouths and throats. It is natural to believe that anything in the air which will destroy paint and tarnish metals will become a serious menace to the health of those who are forced to breathe it.

These conditions cannot be patiently endured for long. Sooner or later we will be forced to seek shelter elsewhere and abandon homes because there will be no sale for them.

Some would have you believe that we are seeking to injure or remove from our vicinity a valuable industry. This is not true. If it were impossible to control these injurious chemicals, then the question would arise, "Do the benefits outweight the objections?" But this is not the case. If these chemicals can be controlled in other localities, why can they not be controlled here?

To me, it is silly to talk of moving a large industry in order to avoid the expenditure of a few thousands of dollars—to talk of moving an industry with an investment of $11,000,000 consisting principally of buildings, etc., which would have to be scrapped—an industry owning more than 38,000 acres of land in this vicinity—an industry which is thriving, making handsome profits and rapidly paying off its bonded indebtedness.

We, of the "Monroe Dust Bowl" believe in encouraging industries. We like to see them thrive and expand, but we do not think they should be allowed to destroy our property, our homes, our life's savings in order that they may save a few thousands of dollars which it would cost to build a disposal plant for their refuse.

A SOUTH SIDE RESIDENT.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE HERO WHO PLAYED BALL WITH THE ENEMY.—Leonard Keysor, then a private of the First Australian battalion fighting at the Dardanelles, in the Tepe Gaba section, received the Victoria Cross, highest British decoration for a feat bespeaking the utmost in temerity as well as in endurance.

On August 7, 1915, the Turko-German troops defending the Dardanelles attacked the British lines with hand grenades. The English were quickly disabled, but Keysor continued to hold the trench almost singlehandedly for 50 hours. During this incredible time he continued to catch in the air and throw back at the enemy their live hand grenades before they had time to explode. The time of the fuses was then cut down by the enemy, but Keysor responded by speeding up his catching and pitching system. A miscalculation of a fraction of a second would have meant instant death to the intrepid warrior, but Keysor's luck was apparently as great as his endurance.

THE E-LESS NOVEL.—A writing in which a certain letter of the alphabet is constantly omitted is called a lipogram. Ernest Vincent Wright of Los Angeles composed a lipogram of unusual proportions when he wrote a novel of 50,110 words in which the letter E, the most frequent in the English language, does not occur even once. The writing took 4 months, during which time the author immobilized completely the letter E on his typewriter. In spite of the omission of the letter E, the book has a regular plot and continuity.

PUBLIC FORUM

THE MONROE DUST BOWL

To The Editor:

Most of us are more or less familiar with conditions in what is known as the Kansas Dust Bowl where thousands of people have been forced to leave their farms, their homes and all their worldly possessions except the few things they can carry with them—seeking a place, any place to lay their heads, where they can breathe clean, fresh air and begin life over again.

If present conditions continue, we are going to have just such a Dust Bowl in the southern extremity of Monroe; not on account of dust but because of offensive, destructive chemicals which are being allowed to saturate the air and to destroy propperty. We, of the "Monroe Dust Bowl", have patiently breathed this very offensive air for years with the thought in mind that we could endure it so long as it is furnishing employment to several hundreds of our citizens.

Heretofore these chemicals and other refuse have been turned into the Ouachita river, and it is believed that the water of the river diluted them sufficiently that the vapors arising therefrom were not noticeably injurious to paint except in an area immediately adjacent to the government locks and dam. Some time last year, in an honest effort to prevent the killing of fish in the river, land was purchased along the west bank and a settling basin was built to take care of this refuse. Now, since the fish have been saved, large numbers of people are again gathering at the locks and enjoying the sport of fishing.

But—since this refuse has been turned into the new settling basin and the breezes come from the west and southwest, it has become necessary that we not only breathe the air but that we sit by helplessly watching the paint on our homes (ninety per cent of which are still unpaid for) turn black and later disappear. We clean and polish our watches, silverware, bath tubs, sinks and lavatories in the evening and awake to find them black and filthy in the morning. We are awakened in the night with a choking sensation—dry mouths and throats. It is natural to believe that anything in the air which will destroy paint and tarnish metals will become a serious menace to the health of those who are forced to breathe it.

These conditions cannot be patiently endured for long. Sooner or later we will be forced to seek shelter elsewhere and abandon homes because there will be no sale for them.

Some would have you believe that we are seeking to injure or remove from our vicinity a valuable industry. This is not true. If it were impossible to control these injurious chemicals, then the question would arise, "Do the benefits outweight the objections?" But this is not the case. If these chemicals can be controlled in other localities, why can they not be controlled here?

To me, it is silly to talk of moving a large industry in order to avoid the expenditure of a few thousands of dollars—to talk of moving an industry with an investment of $11,000,000 consisting principally of buildings, etc., which would have to be scrapped—an industry owning more than 38,000 acres of land in this vicinity—an industry which is thriving, making handsome profits and rapidly paying off its bonded indebtedness.

We, of the "Monroe Dust Bowl" believe in encouraging industries. We like to see them thrive and expand, but we do not think they should be allowed to destroy our property, our homes, our life's savings in order that they may save a few thousands of dollars which it would cost to build a disposal plant for their refuse.

A SOUTH SIDE RESIDENT.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE HERO WHO PLAYED BALL WITH THE ENEMY.—Leonard Keysor, then a private of the First Australian battalion fighting at the Dardanelles, in the Tepe Gaba section, received the Victoria Cross, highest British decoration, for a feat bespeaking the utmost in temerity as well as in endurance.

On August 7, 1915, the Turko-German troops defending the Dardanelles attacked the British lines with hand grenades. The English were quickly disabled, but Keysor continued to hold the trench almost singlehandedly for 50 hours. During this incredible time he continued to catch in the air and throw back at the enemy their live hand grenades before they had time to explode. The time of the fuses was then cut down by the enemy, but Keysor responded by speeding up his catching and pitching system. A miscalculation of a fraction of a second would have meant instant death to the intrepid warrior, but Keysor's luck was apparently as great as his endurance.

THE E-LESS NOVEL.—A writing in which a certain letter of the alphabet is constantly omitted is called a lipogram. Ernest Vincent Wright of Los Angeles composed a lipogram of unusual proportions when he wrote a novel of 50,110 words in which the letter E, the most frequent in the English language, does not occur even once. The writing took 4 months, during which time the author immobilized completely the letter E on his typewriter. In spite of the omission of the letter E, the book has a regular plot and continuity.

NEGRO TAKEN TO MOREHOUSE JAIL

Returned To Complete Burglary Sentence; Escaped Twice This Spring

Clarence Riley, alias Ralph Anderson, alias Clarence Gulley, negro escape artist who was captured last week by the sheriff's department, yesterday was returned to Morehouse parish, where he will serve out his sentence for burglary on the Morehouse parish road gang.

Sheriff Fred Carpenter and Deputy Sheriff Smith Stephenson, who came for the negro, took no chances with their prisoner. Securely handcuffed and with manacles on his legs, Riley was placed on the back seat of the automobile while Deputy Sheriff Stephenson had his pistol ready in the event the negro essayed another attempt to make a break for liberty.

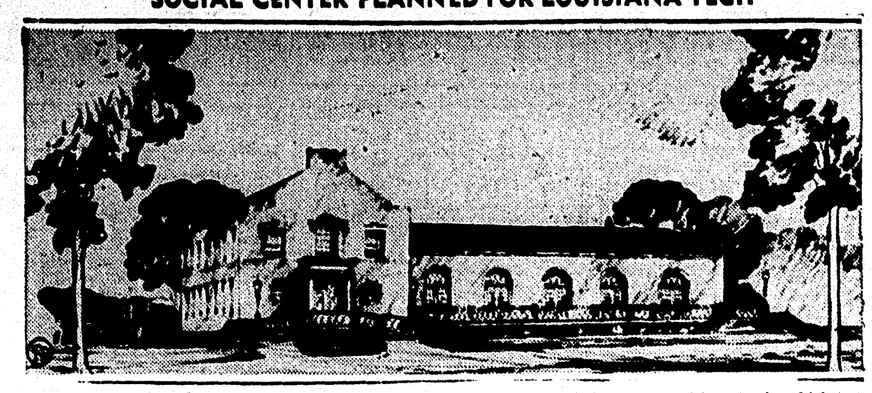

Riley made two spectacular escapes from custody. The first time he got away was last spring while working on the Morehouse parish chain gang. The negro was at liberty for several weeks before his apprehension. Following his arrest he was placed in the Ouachita parish jail for safekeeping. Last April, while being transferred from here to Morehouse parish, Riley allegedly attacked Deputy Sheriff Sam Ingram and after choking the latter into insensibility, escaped into the woods.

Peace officers of both Morehouse and Ouachita parishes combed the area and Sheriff Carpenter made up a posse which scoured the woods for several days and placed bloodhounds on the negro's trail, but the latter could not be located.

Last Saturday, acting on a tip from a Monroe resident, Sheriff Milton Coverdale and Deputies Frank Cline, Clyde Mitchell and O. J. Horn went to a farm owned by Harold Smith in the southwest part of the parish near the Caldwell parish line and surprised Riley in bed. When the negro awoke he found Sheriff Coverdale bending over him, gun in hand, and surrendered.

Riley told the officers that he was shot in the right shoulder and arm after his first escape from the chain gang early this spring and that he laid up in a cabin in the woods until the wounds healed. Shortly after his escape from Deputy Ingram, Riley went to a house and there persuaded the occupant to file off the handcuffs on his wrists. After his arrest he refused to tell the name of the man who filed off the handcuffs, although he admitted it was a white man that helped him.

SOCIAL CENTER PLANNED FOR LOUISIANA TECH

Pictured above is the architects' drawing of the proposed student social center at Louisiana Tech, which is to be erected "without cost to the state," acording to President E. S. Richardson. The building is to be financed through donations made chiefly by various campus organizations and religious groups represented at the college. The time for beginning the structure will depend upon the progress that is made in obtaining the funds. Plans call for a brick building similar in architecture to that of the Tech library. The building's lower floor, providing dining facilities, will include a kitchen, cafeteria, private dining room, check rooms and rest rooms. The second floor will consist of nine offices and meeting rooms for use by religious organizations. Plans for the building were drawn by Edward F. Neild, D. A. Somdal and Edward F. Neild, Jr., Shreveport architects.—(Tech News Bureau)

Arrival Of June Brings Much Activity For Members Of Monroe Social World

Three Brides Will Leave City Shortly

Trousseaux Attract Much Attention; Melba Gaston Back From New Orleans For Short Visit

By Eve Bradford

Knee deep in June! We have completely capitulated to summer, and life, from now on, will be just one big play land.

As the mercury rises, so do our spirits and we suddenly discover that we are as young as we feel and as old as we look. June, the month of balmy days and starry nights, is the time to look young and act young. Is there a woman with soul so dead who wouldn't like to recapture the bride's exuberance, vivacity and incomparable charm? All of which reminds us that we are losing three of our loveliest girls—Frances Stroud, who will call Mobile her future home; Suzanne Hirsch, who will soon become established in a home of her own in New Orleans; and Doris Beaman, who told her handsome fiance "whither thou goest I will go." Doris, who becomes Mrs. Luther Vaughn on June 22, is already casting wistful eyes toward the shining new apartment in Houston.

The Strouds are a red-haired family and Frances, one of the most attractive of them all, looked as fresh as a daffodil in white lace wedding gown yesterday when she walked down the aisle at the Presbyterian church. The superb calla lilies she carried in the hollow of her arm were the correct complement for one as regal looking as Frances.

Reading the interesting details of Wallis Warfield's trousseau reminded one that Suzanne Hirsch is boasting a trousseau that very few Monroe brides-to-be are fortunate enough to possess. Dresses pour le sport, pour le boudoir, pour la soiree, pour le dejeuner, to say nothing of the handsome linens, all monogrammed. And then there is silver by Gorham and Wedgwood china and colonial crystal. One day was set apart last week for friends to view this dazzling trousseau.

Doris Beaman's trousseau is also a beautiful one, but strange to say, the things she prizes mostly are the linen sheets and towels, hemmed by her cherished Grandmother Bender. The stitches, each one a labor of love, are longer than fine workmanship demands, due to failing eyesight, but Doris wouldn't exchange one piece for all the convent hemmed linen in the world. Doris is made up of sentimentality, especially where her loved ones are concerned.

We don't like to steal a march on our friends, otherwise we could tell you this morning of two important engagements soon to be announced. The fiance of one lovely young thing was in the city last week and prevailed upon her to push the wedding date up a few notches, so instead of a fall wedding it will be a mid-summer one.

Melba Gaston is home from New Orleans as brown as the proverbial berry. The winds from the gulf that blow over Lake Pontchartrain played havoc with that ivory skin of hers. However, who wouldn't sacrifice a white skin for an opportunity to sail over the bounding main with hair flying and face bared to the summer sky?

The lives of great men, Longfellow suggests, remind us of sublime potentialities and the opportunity of leaving footprints on the sands of time. Last Sunday at an early hour we were following Captain G. B. Cooley around the new Cooley sanatorium and marveling at the persistency of the man who managed to shape a dream into a living reality. There is a long, long story behind the building of this new sanatorium—the story of a man's life ambition, the disappointments, the heart aches and then victory and the end of a long, hard-fought battle. It seems that there is still one room to be furnished. It is the library—a beautiful room overlooking the sweep of glorious country with windows flung wide to the pine-scented woods. What a blessed privilege it will be for some one to step forth and take charge of the furnishings, dedicating it to some beloved they have lost. There are many methods one could employ in furnishing this room, but the noblest gesture would be for an individual to furnish it near to his own heart's desire and in memory of a dear one.

Mary O'Kelly Mitchell is a remarkable woman. Never idle, ever on the alert where civic affairs are concerned, she now blossoms forth as a writer. Just off the press is a volume of the history of the Ouachita valley, the Maison Rouge and the Bastrop Spanish land grants, written in collaboration with Robert Dabney Calhoun. It is a perfect gem in-so-far as accuracy is concerned and necessitated the writer's delving deep for the necessary information. The author's foreword gives credit to many Monroe persons who contributed toward and made possible this volume.

Vermont C. Royster Weds In Carolina

Mrs. Sallie Ruffin, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Gladys Sperry, and her granddaughter, Mrs. Walter Kellogg, attended the marriage of her grandson, Mr. Vermont C. Royster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Royster, of Raleigh, N. C., on May 29.

Friends of Mr. Royster's mother, affectionately remembered here, where she was born and reared, as Miss Olivette Broadway, will be interested in the following account of the wedding

Of widespread interest and marked beauty, the marriage of Miss Frances Bryan Claypoole, of New Bern, N. C., to Vermont C. Royster, of Raleigh and Washington, D. C., was solemnized Saturday evening at 6:30 at Christ Episcopal church, in the presence of a vast concourse of relatives and friends.

The church altar and chancel were beautifully decorated with southern smilax, potted palms and white flowers, carrying out the nuptial colors of green and white.

Prior to the ceremony, there was a program of wedding music played by Mrs. Garrason A. Farrow, church organist, including "Liebestraume," "To An Evening Star," and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice." During the ritual, she played "Traumerei."

Ushers and groomsmen entered the central aisle in couples, to the strains of the bridal chorus from Wagner's Lohengrin. These were Thomas B. Royster, of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom, and Midshipman J. S. Claypoole, Jr., of New Bern and Annapolis, brother of the bride; Donoh W. Hanks, Jr., of Raleigh and New Bern, and W. Thomas Bost, Jr., of Raleigh; Charles W. Styron, of New Bern and Duke university, and Carl Thompson, of Raleigh.

Entering alone was Miss Sara Olivette Royster, of Raleigh, sister of the bridegroom, dressed in yellow net. Then came the two bridesmaids, Miss Iris Rawls, of New Bern, and Mrs. Bowen Ross, of Raleigh, both attired in bell blue. The dame of honor, Mrs. Lawrence F. London, of Chapel Hill, was in coral pink; and the maid of honor, Miss Nell Joslin, of Raleigh, in jade green.

The dresses of the bride's attendants were made similarly, all of net, the varying colors giving rainbow hues to the wedding group at the chancel. They were fashioned along colonial designs. Each attendant wore a coronet plait on her hair, matching her gown in shade; and all carried old-fashioned nosegays, with long streamers of ribbons.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, Jesse Stanley Claypoole, by whom she was given in matrimony. She was lovely in the wedding gown of her mother, the former Miss Frances Bryan Broadfoot. The ivory satin was trimmed exquisitely in duchess and rosepoint lace. The semi-court train was of satin and lace; and the tulle veil was arranged charmingly with orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and valley lilies.

Meeting the bride and her father at the chancel were the bridegroom and his best man, Hoke Pollock, of Kinston. The Episcopal betrothal and marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles E. Williams, rector of the church.

Immediately after the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Claypoole entertained a large number of friends at a reception at their home on East Front street.

The couple then left by motor for a wedding trip to unannounced points. For traveling, the bride wore a becoming chiffon ensemble of luggage tan, with hat, slippers and purse of the same color. Upon their return, they will be at home in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Royster is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claypoole, and is a popular member of the young social set of New Bern. After graduating from New Bern High school, she finished at St. Mary's school, Raleigh, then received a degree from women's college, University of North Carolina, Greensboro. During the past year she has resided in Raleigh. Many prenuptial courtesies have been accorded her by her many friends, a number of parties honoring her both in Raleigh and New Bern.

Mr. Royster is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur H. Royster, of Raleigh, and also has numerous friends throughout the state. Following his graduation from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, with a degree of bachelor of arts, he has been working in New York and Washington. At present he is a Washington correspondent for the Wall Street Journal.

Miss Floy B. Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Clarke of Fairbanks entertained seniors and friends of the Ouachita Parish High school Monday with a swimming and moonlight picnic.

Swimming was enjoyed in the private swimming pool of the chemical plant of Fairbanks. Supper, al fresco, completed the evening's pleasure for Misses Elizabeth Dougal, Eva Dale Coon, Lelia Dean Frazier, Florence Goza, Nellie Ruth Brooks, Jimmie Pardue, Kathleen Rolleigh, Floy B. Clarke, Marguerite Barwick, Mack Fay Hammons, Mary Louise Fudickar, Helen Benton, Dolores Grant, Dorothy Grayson, June Moffett, Mrs. Fred Fudickar and Mrs. George Clarke. Messrs. Phillip J. Embanato, A. B. Myatt, Jr., Richard Eason, Merida Johnson, Louis Pecastaing, W. B. Stewart, Duane Warrington, Howard Williams, Murrell Jones, Luther Jones, Joe Ben Jones, Albert Thomas, Jack Hackley, Earl Mulhern and H. M. Primm.

Mrs. J. R. White has returned from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. E. O. Hinton of Beaumont, Tex.

Miss Wall Marries Arch Turner, Jr.

A marriage announcement that came as a complete surprise to their friends was that of Miss Evelyn Wall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wall of West Monroe, and Mr. Arch Turner, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Turner, Sr., of Ferriday. The ceremony uniting these two pioneer families was performed in Arcadia, on January 15.

Mrs. Turner attended Louisiana Tech in Ruston, where she was a popular member of the student body and claimed the distinction of being chosen one of the most beautiful coeds by Governor Leche.

Mr. Turner was graduated from L. P. I. this past year. He was an outstanding figure in football circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner will reside at their plantation home on the Mississippi river near Ferriday.

So They Got Married...

They came in the other day, a nice young couple, a little shy and slightly embarrassed. They wanted to have a home of their own but they were afraid they couldn't afford it.

Probably the best thing to do, they thought, was to get a small furnished apartment and not try to buy just yet. She wanted a house and her own furniture, but still . . .

Anyway they came in and talked to our Credit Manager about it. He had quite a chat with them. They found they could buy four complete room groups at a surprisingly small amount, and that they could easily afford the low down payment. The monthly payments just about made up the difference between an unfurnished place and a furnished one.

They were pretty happy about it. At least she was . . . and he was happy because she was pleased.

Helping young folks to get started out has been a privilege and a pleasure of our firm for a long time. In our forty years of service in Monroe we have often outfitted the second and even the third generation of the same family.

Arrival Of June Brings Much Activity For Members Of Monroe Social World

Three Brides Will Leave City Shortly

Trousseaux Attract Much Attention; Melba Gaston Back From New Orleans For Short Visit

By Eve Bradford

Knee deep in June! We have completely capitulated to summer, and life, from now on, will be just one big play land.

As the mercury rises, so do our spirits and we suddenly discover that we are as young as we feel and as old as we look. June, the month of balmy days and starry nights, is the time to look young and act young. Is there a woman with soul so dead who wouldn't like to recapture the bride's exuberance, vivacity and incomparable charm? All of which reminds us that we are losing three of our loveliest girls—Frances Stroud, who will call Mobile her future home; Suzanne Hirsch, who will soon become established in a home of her own in New Orleans; and Doris Beaman, who told her handsome fiance "whither thou goest I will go." Doris, who becomes Mrs. Luther Vaughn on June 22, is already casting wistful eyes toward the shining new apartment in Houston.

The Strouds are a red-haired family and Frances, one of the most attractive of them all, looked as fresh as a daffodil in white lace wedding gown yesterday when she walked down the aisle at the Presbyterian church. The superb calla lilies she carried in the hollow of her arm were the correct complement for one as regal looking as Frances.

Impressive Ceremony Marks Marriage Of Frances Stroud And Lewis Dunlap

Wedding Conducted At Presbyterian Church

Reception Held At Stroud Home After Nuptials; Couple Leave On Honeymoon Trip

One of the high social moments of the week was the marriage of Miss Frances Eugenia Stroud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark William Stroud, of this city, and Mr. Lewis Scranton Dunlap, son of Mrs. Grace H. Dunlap and the late L. S. Dunlap, of Mobile, Ala., at the First Presbyterian church Saturday, June 5, at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The church, cool and shadowy and fragrant with the perfume of many flowers, banked in artistic profusion against organ loft, chancel and altar, was dimly lighted with cathedral tapers gleaming in the background.

While the fashionable guests were being seated by the ushers, Messrs. James Gavin of New Orleans, John Cann, C. E. Thompson and Alston Prophit, a pre-nuptial concert was rendered by Mr. Leon Hammond, organist. Mr. Hammond also accompanied the vocalist, Mrs. Eva Stroud Whitfield, sister of the bride, who sang in splendid voice, "O Promise Me" and "Because." She wore a white lace model with wide-brimmed white hat.

The bride's attendants, Miss Billie Stroud and Miss Virginia Dunlap, of Mobile, wore diaphanous gowns of white marquisettes, long and full, with short puffed sleeves. Beguiling fly-away hats of white maline were worn and they both carried sheaves of Shasta daisies tied with lengths of white satin ribbon and white illusion.

The bride's niece and nephew, Lynn and Jerry Curran, of Mobile, acted as flower girl and ring bearer. Lynn wore a frosted white organza colonial frock and carried a round bouquet of white blossoms. Jerry wore white linens, in keeping with the white theme sustained in every detail of the wedding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful white suede lace model, fashioned along princess lines especially becoming to one of her type. The skirt was long and full with a high neckline, and with a Marie Antoinette collar framing the face. A short veil of bridal illusion, worn over the face, was caught to the hair with a chaplet of valley lilies. A cluster of superb Calla lilies was carried in the hollow of her arm.

Mr. Dunlap was attended by Mr. Joseph Allen, of Mobile, as best man, and Mr. Richard Murray as groomsman. Mr. Dunlap and his attendants wore white linens with boutonnieres of valley lilies.

A reception was held at the Stroud home immediately following the ceremony, with the bride and bridegroom standing with their attendants to receive the guests in the reception suite, banked with white Shasta daisies and white roses.

Mrs. Stroud, assisting in the courtesies, wore a pastel blue lace model with corsage of sweetheart roses and pink sweet peas. Mrs. Dunlap, the bridegroom's mother, who was introduced at this time, wore a flowered chiffon model with corsage of Columbia roses. Mrs. Edward J. Curran of Mobile, sister of the bride, wore a coronation blue mousseline frock with a wide-brimmed, dusty pink felt hat.

The bride's table in the dining room was developed in white with the wedding cake, a luscious confection embossed in valley lilies and bride's roses, forming the central decor. White tapers in handsome silver candelabra burned at the four corners. Mints embossed in valley lilies and petit fours of white embossing were served with individual ices.

Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. Elliott Thompson, Miss Virginia Dunlap, Mrs. Morton Braswell, Mrs. Prentice Clark, Miss Irene Stroud and Miss Patty Sharp.

The bride changed her wedding raiment for a smart tailleur of navy blue with all accessories of blue. Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap left on their wedding trip, destination unknown to friends, and will later be at home in Mobile, where Mr. Dunlap is associated with the Waterman Steamship company.

Announcement of Mrs. Dunlap's engagement was the signal for many beautiful pre-nuptial compliments planned by friends in her honor.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Curran and two children, Mrs. Grace Dunlap, Mr. Joseph Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Murray and Miss Virginia Dunlap of Mobile, Ala., Mr. James Gavin of New Orleans, Miss Patty Virginia Sharp of Shreveport.

Mrs. Newhall's Pupils Give Annual Recital

June, the month of roses and brides, is also the month of music, with young piano students giving exhibitions of their skill in annual recitals.

One of the most ambitious programs of the month was presented Saturday night by Mrs. Harry Newhall's pupils at the Georgia Tucker school auditorium.

The heaviness of the world was quite forgotten by the appreciative audience listening to the poignantly sweet music of Brahms, Beethoven, Mozart and Liszt and Nevin.

Tonal effects, rhythm and a calm assurance that comes only with association with the classics, characterized the rendition of each number. The youthful musicians are deserving of considerable praise for their noteworthy performance.

The program follows:

Little Old Lady (vocal) ..... Adams
Camille Hancock
Lullaby ..... Brahms
Mary Pharr Lathram, Pat Snelling
For Mother Dear ..... Willy
Betty Hale
Dolly Sleeps ..... Robert Nolan Kerr

Dolly Darling ..... Spaulding
Mary Pharr Lathram
Hunting Song ..... Gurlitt

Buddy Poppy Sale Success

The recent sale of Buddy Poppies conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary netted a nice sum for the V. F. W. national home at Eaton Rapids, Mich. The home is maintained exclusively by the organization and it is with this "child village" in mind that auxiliary members were so zealous in their efforts to make the sale a success.

The plan of individual houses, in which are housed a "family" of seven or eight children under the care of a "house mother" who, in several cases, is the actual mother of one or more of her charges, has worked out satisfactorily. The membership of the V. F. W. has been determined that any appearance or atmosphere of an "institution" should be missing from the national home. Individuality is stressed. There are no uniforms, no "regimentation." All the loving care lavished on a small son or daughter—a special diet for this one—music lessons for that one—likewise is the portion of the children at the home. Winners of the two first prizes were Mrs. Christine Brown and Mrs. Gladys Scharf. One offered by Mr. Sam Rubin for the individual selling the most Buddy Poppies was won by Mrs. Brown. First prize offered by the post for auxiliary member who turned in the most cash went to Mrs. Scharf. Mrs. Martha W. Logan was the winner of a box of candy. Prizes will be awarded at the meeting of auxiliary Thursday night, June 10.

Flat Statement About Beauty

By Alice Hart
(NEA Service Staff Writer)

The perfect figure is sleek and trim and graceful—not boyishly flat and angular or fat and lumpy in spots. Smart women know that one should pay as much attention to proportions as to weight and that supple muscles and firm flesh make for figure beauty.

Regardless of what you weigh or how tall you are, your stomach should be flat. Once you have corrected your posture, half of this battle is won.

Stand before a full length mirror and look at your body from all angles. Is there an exaggerated hollow in the center of your back? If so, the chances are ten to one that your stomach protrudes and that your hips look larger than they actually are.

Now walk over to a wall and, standing about eight inches away from it, place the center of your back firmly against the flat surface. Never mind about shoulders. Concentrate on that hollow for a few minutes.

As you press your spine backward, thereby flattening it, pull stomach up and in and elevate chest. Now, very gradually, of course, flatten all of your backbone against the wall, raise arms above head and make shoulders touch the wall, too. Lower arms, keeping shoulders and spinal column flat and straight. Notice that your hips tilt forward now. Hold the position a few seconds. Relax and repeat. As soon as you get used to this new-to-you correct posture, you will be able to maintain it when walking or just standing.

Go back to the mirror, get your body in the position it was in while you were against the wall, then look at yourself again. Notice how flat your stomach appears now, that your backbone is almost straight, how much more attractive shoulders, neck and head are.

There's nothing flat about Joan Roger's youthful beauty except at the vital places where curves are unsightly, the stomach. Exercises help her to keep it that way.

Impressive Ceremony Marks Marriage Of Frances Stroud And Lewis Dunlap

Wedding Conducted At Presbyterian Church

Reception Held At Stroud Home After Nuptials; Couple Leave On Honeymoon Trip

One of the high social moments of the week was the marriage of Miss Frances Eugenia Stroud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark William Stroud, of this city ,and Mr. Lewis Scranton Dunlap, son of Mrs. Grace H. Dunlap and the late L. S. Dunlap, of Mobile, Ala., at the First Presbyterian church Saturday, June 5, at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The church, cool and shadowy and fragrant with the perfume of many flowers, banked in artistic profusion against organ loft, chancel and altar, was dimly lighted with cathedral tapers gleaming in the background.

While the fashionable guests were being seated by the ushers, Messrs. James Gavin of New Orleans, John Cann, C. E. Thompson and Alston Prophit, a pre-nuptial concert was rendered by Mr. Leon Hammond, organist. Mr. Hammond also accompanied the vocalist, Mrs. Eva Stroud Whitfield, sister of the bride, who sang in splendid voice, "O Promise Me" and "Because." She wore a white lace model with wide-brimmed white hat.

The bride's attendants, Miss Billie Stroud and Miss Virginia Dunlap, of Mobile, wore diaphanous gowns of white marquisettes, long and full, with short puffed sleeves. Beguiling fly-away hats of white maline were worn and they both carried sheaves of Shasta daisies tied with lengths of white satin ribbon and white illusion.

The bride's niece and nephew, Lynn and Jerry Curran, of Mobile, acted as flower girl and ring bearer. Lynn wore a frosted white organza colonial frock and carried a round bouquet of white blossoms. Jerry wore white linens, in keeping with the white theme sustained in every detail of the wedding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful white suede lace model, fashioned along princess lines especially becoming to one of her type. The skirt was long and full with a high neckline, and with a Marie Antoinette collar framing the face. A short veil of bridal illusion, worn over the face, was caught to the hair with a chaplet of valley lilies. A cluster of superb Calla lilies was carried in the hollow of her arm.

Mr. Dunlap was attended by Mr. Joseph Allen, of Mobile, as best man, and Mr. Richard Murray as groomsman. Mr. Dunlap and his attendants wore white linens with boutonnieres of valley lilies.

Rev. Ernest Holloway performed the impressive marriage service.

A reception was held at the Stroud home immediately following the ceremony, with the bride and bridegroom standing with their attendants to receive the guests in the reception suite, banked with white Shasta daisies and white roses.

Mrs. Stroud, assisting in the courtesies, wore a pastel blue lace model with corsage of sweetheart roses and pink sweet peas. Mrs. Dunlap, the bridegroom's mother, who was introduced at this time, wore a flowered chiffon model with corsage of Columbia roses. Mrs. Edward J Curran of Mobile, sister of the bride, wore a coronation blue mousseline frock with a wide-brimmed, dusty pink felt hat.

The bride's table in the dining room was developed in white with the wedding cake, a luscious confection embossed in valley lilies and bride's roses, forming the central decor. White tapers in handsome silver candelabra burned at the four corners. Mints embossed in valley lilies and petit fours of white embossing were served with individual ices.

Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. Elliott Thompson, Miss Virginia Dunlap, Mrs. Morton Braswell, Mrs. Prentice Clark, Miss Irene Stroud and Miss Patty Sharp.

The bride changed her wedding raiment for a smart tailleur of navy blue with all accessories of blue. Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap left on their wedding trip, destination unknown to friends, and will later be at home in Mobile, where Mr. Dunlap is associated with the Waterman Steamship company.

The bride, one of the most popular members of the younger set, is a young woman of great charm. She attended the Louisiana State Normal and is a member of Phi Kappa Sigma.

Announcement of Mrs. Dunlap's engagement was the signal for many beautiful pre-nuptial compliments planned by friends in her honor.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Curran and two children, Mrs. Grace Dunlap, Mr. Joseph Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Murray and Miss Virginia Dunlap of Mobile, Ala. Mr. James Gavin of New Orleans, Miss Patty Virginia Sharp of Shreveport.

Mrs. Newhall's Pupils Give Annual Recital

June, the month of roses and brides, is also the month of music, with young piano students giving exhibitions of their skill in annual recitals.

One of the most ambitious programs of the month was presented Saturday night by Mrs. Harry Newhall's pupils at the Georgia Tucker school auditorium.

The heaviness of the world was quite forgotten by the appreciative audience listening to the poignantly sweet music of Brahms, Beethoven, Mozart and Liszt and Nevin.

Tonal effects, rhythm and a calm assurance that comes only with association with the classics, characterized the rendition of each number. The youthful musicians are deserving of considerable praise for their noteworthy performance.

Flat Statement About Beauty

By Alice Hart
(NEA Service Staff Writer)

The perfect figure is sleek and trim and graceful—not boyishly flat and angular or fat and lumpy in spots. Smart women know that one should pay as much attention to proportions as to weight and that supple muscles and firm flesh make for figure beauty.

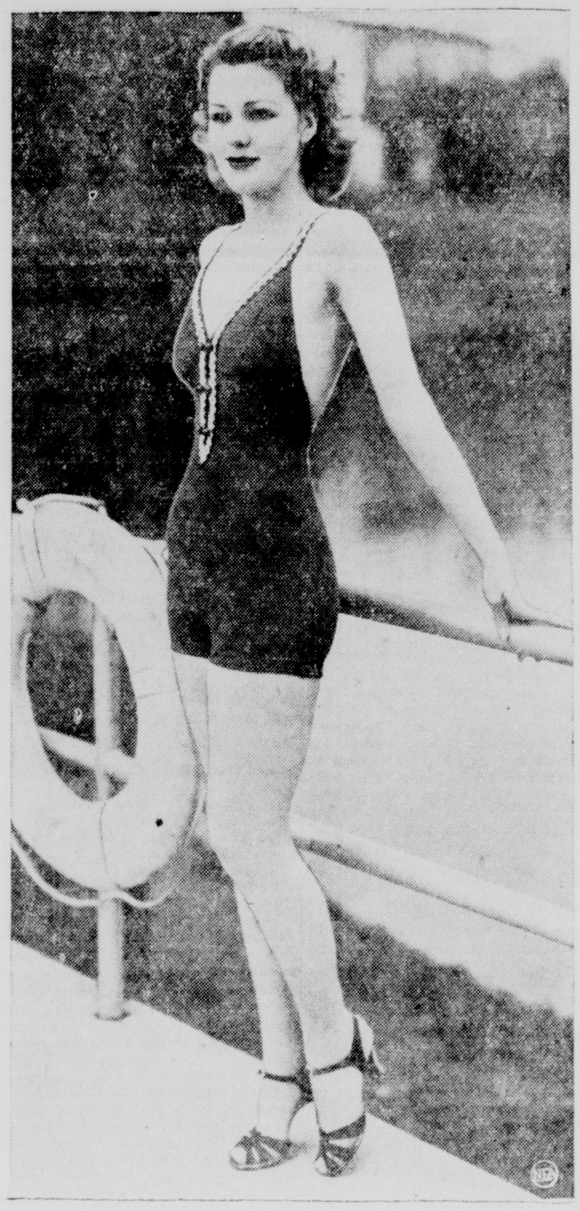

Regardless of what you weigh or how tall you are, your stomach should be flat. Once you have corrected your posture, half of this battle is won.

Stand before a full length mirror and look at your body from all angles. Is there an exaggerated hollow in the center of your back? If so, the chances are ten to one that your stomach protrudes and that your hips look larger than they actually are.

Now walk over to a wall and, standing about eight inches away from it, place the center of your back firmly against the flat surface. Never mind about shoulders. Concentrate on that hollow for a few minutes.

As you press your spine backward, thereby flattening it, pull stomach up and in and elevate chest. Now, very gradually, of course, flatten all of your backbone against the wall, raise arms above head and make shoulders touch the wall, too. Lower arms, keeping shoulders and spinal column flat and straight. Notice that your hips tilt forward now. Hold the position a few seconds. Relax and repeat. As soon as you get used to this new-to-you correct posture, you will be able to maintain it when walking or just standing.

Go back to the mirror, get your body in the position it was in while you were against the wall, then look at yourself again. Notice how flat your stomach appears now, that your backbone is almost straight, how much more attractive shoulders, neck and head are.

Buddy Poppy Sale Success

The recent sale of Buddy Poppies conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary netted a nice sum for the V. F. W. national home at Eaton Rapids, Mich. The home is maintained exclusively by the organization and it is with this "child village" in mind that auxiliary members were so zealous in their efforts to make the sale a success.

The plan of individual houses, in which are housed a "family" of seven or eight children under the care of a "house mother" who, in several cases, is the actual mother of one or more of her charges, has worked out satisfactorily. The membership of the V. F. W. has been determined that any appearance or atmosphere of an "institution" should be missing from the national home. Individuality is stressed. There are no uniforms, no "regimentation." All the loving care lavished on a small son or daughter—a special diet for this one—music lessons for that one—likewise is the portion of the children at the home. Their individual talents and tastes are fostered so that each may grow into a self-supporting, self-respecting, capable man or woman—the finest type of American citizen.

The table and hearth are centers of family life in these cottages just as they are in homes whose fathers remain in the family circle. That is the one particular in which the V. F. W. national home is lacking. There is no "daddy" to come in the door at evening to be met by the welcoming shouts of little children. And it is because of war that the children at the home have no fathers. Their fathers died either during or since the war, as a result of injuries or ailments resulting from their war service. But approximately a quarter of a million overseas veterans in the V. F. W. are the next best thing. They are the foster fathers of the children at the home and no real father was ever more concerned for the welfare and happiness of his own children than the V. F. W. members are for the children of their war-time buddies.

Winners of the two first prizes were Mrs. Christine Brown and Mrs. Gladys Scharf. One offered by Mr. Sam Rubin for the individual selling the most Buddy Poppies was won by Mrs. Brown. First prize offered by the post for auxiliary member who turned in the most cash went to Mrs. Scharf. Mrs. Martha W. Logan was the winner of a box of candy. Prizes will be awarded at the meeting of auxiliary Thursday night, June 10.

B. And P. W. Club Head Sails For Convention

Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, sailed Tuesday on the Pilsudski, of the Polish line, to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the federation in Stockholm June 15 to 18. Miss Marjory Lacey-Baker, of this city, and Miss Helen Havener, international publicity chairman, accompanied her.

Miss Phillips expects the Stockholm board meeting to be the most significant in the history of the international federation.

"We shall set up a three-year objective that aims at the destruction of the fallacies regarding business and professional women which have so greatly tended to handicap their progress," she said. "We shall ask our member countries to concentrate during the coming year upon proving to the public that allegations that women are impermanent in business; that they work for pin money and not from necessity; that their usefulness is impaired after forty-five or fifty; that their health is less vigorous than that of men, and that they are not as well qualified as men for executive positions, are completely fallacious. Ample scientific data exists upon which we may base our contentions, and innumerable careers of transcendent brilliance can be cited to show that business and professional women have more than held their own where the opportunity has been granted to them.

"We shall not rest with merely proving our case, however. Taking advantage of the favorable public attitude toward business and professional women, which we hope will result, we shall begin a vigorous drive to place more women in executive positions and to secure the election and appointment of a larger number of qualified women to public office."

Discussing details of the Stockholm program Miss Phillips revealed that she herself will present the three-year objective; that all the members of the board of directors will be invited to participate in a symposium on "Exposing Fallacies"; that Dr. Signe Svensson, only woman invited to stand for a third term in the Norwegian parliament, and Mme. Anna Paradowska-Szelagowska, first woman delegate from Poland to the League of Nations, will speak on "Putting More Women in Public Office," and Miss Caroline Haslett, of Great Britain, electrical engineer and vice-president of the International Federation, and Mme. Anni Voipio, Finnish journalist, on "More Women in Executive Positions."

Other women featured on the convention program are Mme. Antonietta Paoli Pogliani, Italian sculptor; Senator F. F. Plaminkova, many times member of the Czechoslovakian parliament; Miss Gordon Holmes, British investment expert; Mrs. Helena Normanton, Britain's first woman barrister; Froken Nanna With, Norwegian author and feminist, and Dr. Maria Castellani, head of the statistical bureau of Italy's State Insurance association, and others equally distinguished.

A highlight of the convention will be a mass meeting to discuss "The Business Woman—Her Public Profile," in which speakers from designated arts or professions will present the business and professional woman as she appears in the novel, the press, the radio and the films. Miss Phillips will speak on "The Business Woman as She Sees Herself."

Neville School Play Much Enjoyed

One of the most enjoyable amateur attractions ever presented by any group in Monroe was the play "Penrod," adapted from Booth Tarkington's story of the same name, and given by the senior class of 1937 of Neville High school at the auditorium on June 2, under the able direction of Mrs. Minnie Ruffin assisted by Miss Beryl Madison.

The selection of "Penrod" was a happy choice, particularly suited to young people, and the manner in which the entire cast interpreted their roles would have done credit to a far more experienced group.

The character of perhaps the best-loved boy in American fiction was played to perfection by Bobby O'Donnell. Bobby Oliver, as Sam Williams, Penrod's best friend and assistant, offered a clever bit of acting. Herman and Verman, Penrod's little colored friends, who aided in the successful operation of his detective agency, were excellently portrayed by Ruffin Tidwell and Bob Underwood. These four typical Americans were responsible for the gales of laughter.

Noel Learned, as Robert Williams, Sam's brother, who yearned to marry Margaret Schofield, and an experienced lover of 19 years of age whom "suffering had made a man," did an outstanding piece of work, as did Harry Fernandez as the sorely tried Mr. Schofield, who reached a fine frenzy in attempting to extract the truth from Penrod and Sam's detective agency.

Georgianna Williams, as Margaret Schofield, was particularly good in the scene where she was reduced to tears at the discovery of the perfidy of the city slicker, Mr. Dade, (Albert Buckley) who had won her heart with his fine phrases so convincingly uttered.

Jimmie Cudd, as Jarge, the house man, who had his finger in every pie concerning the happenings of the village, gave a remarkable performance. He was a perfect foil for Della, the fiery housemaid, excellently portrayed by Josephine McCook. Stanley Mintz, as Goergie Bassett, the "good" little boy who enjoyed pageants, and Josephine Conger, as Marjorie Jones, the little girl who delighted in irritating Penrod whom she really loved, filled their roles to perfection.

The other characters with smaller parts, but equally important to the success of the production as a whole, were well played by Benton Holt, as Tim, the crook; James Digby, as Mr. Jones, a business man; Evelyn Baur, as Mrs. Bassett; George Patterson, as Reverend Kinosling; Emily McGee, as Mrs. Rewbush, teacher, and P. A. Poag, as Mr. Coombes, the chief of police.

Most enjoyable was the clever skit featuring Hettie Nettles, Katherine Jones, Mary Guy, Roberta Stewart, Beverly Folmer and Patsy Dryburgh, dressed in charming little school girl gingham frocks. Other members of the skit were: Dick Pritchard, Billy Bendel, Bryon Grigsby, Bob Gangstad, George Sager, Ray Petty, Thomas Holden and J. H. McClendon, in ridiculous costumes, who convulsed the audience with their clever antics. A tap dance featured Martha Hopson and Aline Sager and the "high school mixed quartet," was rendered by Mary Haywood, Estelle Thames, Bernice Bernstein, Jane Landry, Cecil Blanchard, Billy Smith, Parker McGhee and S. C. Wimbish.

The story of this delightful evening would not be complete without mentioning the unusually charming setting designed by Mrs. Ruffin and executed by Albert Newburn, Mr. Pettit and Mr. Reagan. The sound and lightning effects were planned and handled by James Digby, Mr. Spight and Hassal Kahn.

Orchestral selections, rendered between the acts and before the rise of the curtain, added considerably to the success of this year's class play.

John Henry Vaughan, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Vaughan, has arrived home from Southwestern Louisiana institute at Lafayette, accompanied by his aunt, Mrs. R. E. Chaplin, who will divide her time for a few weeks between her mother, Mrs. A. T. Breard, and Mrs. L. D. Vaughan.

Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Calvert have returned from Baton Rouge, where they were present at the graduation of their son and daughter, John Calvert and Miss Calvert, returned to tre city with their parents. They were also accompanied home by Mrs. Calvert's daughter, Miss Laura Grace Kendall, who will spend the summer here.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Vinyard and children have moved to Pine Bluff, Ark., where they will make their home in the future. Mr. Vinyard was transferred by the Louisiana Light and Power company where he has been employed for the past nine years, to the Arkansas Light and Power company.

Thomas Sullivan has arrived home from the University of Texas where he completed his course in engineering. He will leave later in the month for Los Angeles to visit his sister, Mrs. Jack Hancock, and Mr. Hancock.

Mrs. C. A. Braun, accompanied by her granddaughter, Miss Alice Lucille Blake of Sedalia, Mo., is enjoying a visit in the home of her son, Mr. C. B. Braun and Mrs. Braun.

Billy Knapp, student at Texas Tech, Lubbock, Tex., and Miss Faith Knapp, student at Whitworth college, Mississippi, are spending a few days in Monroe with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Knapp, before leaving for Lubbock, accompanied by their mother and sister, Carol. They will take a special course of study at Texas Tech during the summer.

Friends of Mr. Will D. King will regret to learn that it was necessary for him to undergo an emergency appendectomy Thursday evening at St. Francis sanitarium. The condition of Mr. King is reported satisfactory and he will be able to return to his home the latter part of the week.

Monroe Women Talk At Bastrop

Two interesting Monroe women, Mrs. George Wesley Smith and Mrs. H. M. James, prominent in art, cultural and club circles, were guest artists of the Pot Pourri club of Bastrop last week.

Valuable contributions were made by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. James toward the afternoon's program.

Mrs. Smith delivered the same talk she recently gave at Northeast Center. Upon being invited to make a talk during one of their art exhibits, Mrs. Smith discussed a then little known artist, Mary Belle DeVargie of Natchitoches, La. This was a most illuminating and interesting talk about an amazing person, who though born without arms and hands, through indomitable will, courage and perseverance overcame what one would consider an unsurmountable physical handicap to achieve independence, success and fame. In lieu of hands she uses her toes to perform various tasks. Besides being an artist she is a "business woman, having a gift shop, does work in oil, water colors, crafts of all kinds in clay, glass, metal and wood and has a ready sale for her work. She also runs a flower shop, plays the piano, is a public speaker an actress and authoress." So astounding is this remarkable person that her case was brought to the attention of Mr. Ripley, who a short while ago printed in his columns the facts and a sketch of Mare Belle DeVargis of Natchitoches, La.

Much to the delight of everyone, Mrs. Smith also read an original poem, "The Sketch Club," dedicated "To My Artist Friend."

Mrs. James, as winner of a first prize in the "Southern States Art League," brought a message of "The Cultural Influence of Art in the Home." She stressed the fact that art plays an important part in our daily life—just like literature and music. All manufacturers keep an army of artists busy designing household furnishings, wall paper, clothes, etc. Art alone seems to endure, for, as Mrs. James said, "All that remains of ancient civilization is preserved in their art." Mrs. James suggested, as clubwomen, the members of Pot Pourri should endeavor to make the public more art conscious by holding an exhibit occasionally. She exhibited several paintings, among them was one of her own which won first prize in the Southern States Art league.

Miss Ziegler Marries William E. Regenold

Prominent Lake Providence And Tallulah Families United By Brilliant Ceremony

A wedding which claimed the affectionate interest of a wide circle of friends throughout Madison and East Carroll parishes and Vicksburg was that of Miss Georgette Ziegler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ziegler, of Tallulah, and Mr. William Edwin Regenold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Regenold, of Lake Providence. The ceremony was performed at the Tallulah Methodist church by Rev. C. Karlos Smith, pastor.

Luxuriant ferns formed the background for the floral decorations within the chancel. Clusters of white lilies and fern banked the altar, above which was suspended silver wedding bells tied with lengths of bridal tulle. Baskets overflowing with lilies, white gladioli and fever few were grouped in the background.

A program of pre-nuptial music was rendered by Miss Louise Thompson, pianist. Mrs. Edward Yerger sang "All For You" and "I Love You Truly." Mr. William Harvey rendered two violin selections, "Spring Song" and "Traumerei."

The ushers, wearing white linens, were Mr. Fred Regenold of Lake Providence, brother of the bridegroom; Mr. Cliff Adams, Mr. William Ziegler, brother of the bride, Mr. Ward Edwards of Vicksburg, Mr. Barry Mitchell of Lake Providence, and Mr. Edward Yerger.

The bridesmaids, Miss Mercedes Hester, Miss Alma Maxwell, Miss Elizabeth Holt, Miss Dorothy Supple, of White Castle, Miss Pat Pugh of Independence, and Miss Rhoda Bess Reddy of Baton Rouge, wore pastel shaded marquisette models and carried arm bouquets of pink and purple sweet peas. They wore picturesque leghorn hats trimmed in the pastel colors.

The matron of honor, Mrs. William Boult of Vicksburg, wore yellow marquisette and carried lavender sweet peas.

The flower girls, Flora Montgomery and Sara Ann Schneider of Lake Providence, wore ruffled marquisette frocks and carried baskets of rose leaves.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a white satin model with high neck line and close-fitting collar and long sleeves. The bodice was gathered at the neck and high waist line and the skirt fashioned on princess lines with tiny buttons extending the entire length of the back fell in a long graceful train. Her veil hung from a band of orange blossoms which circled her head. Her flowers were orchids and lilies of the valley. She was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. Mandeville Kell, also attired in white linen.

Immediately following the impressive ring ceremony and recessional, a reception was held at the home of the bride for members of the wedding party, relatives and intimate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Regenold left later for a brief honeymoon trip, and on their return will be established in their new home.

The bride, one of Tallulah's most charming and popular girls, is a graduate of the Tallulah High school and attended Southern Methodist university and Louisiana State university. She is a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority. Mr. Regenold is a graduate of the Lake Providence High school and is employed by the Tallulah Production Credit association.

B. And P. W. Club Head Sails For Convention

Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, sailed Tuesday on the Pilsudski, of the Polish line, to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the federation in Stockholm June 15 to 18. Miss Marjory Lacey-Baker, of this city, and Miss Helen Havener, international publicity chairman, accompanied her.

Miss Phillips expects the Stockholm board meeting to be the most significant in the history of the international federation.

"We shall set up a three-year objective that aims at the destruction of the fallacies regarding business and professional women which have so greatly tended to handicap their progress," she said. "We shall ask our member countries to concentrate during the coming year upon proving to the public that allegations that women are impermanent in business; that they work for pin money and not from necessity; that their usefulness is impaired after forty-five or fifty; that their health is less vigorous than that of men, and that they are not as well qualified as men for executive positions, are completely fallacious. Ample scientific data exists upon which we may base our contentions, and innumerable careers of transcendent brilliance can be cited to show that business and professional women have more than held their own where the opportunity has been granted to them.

"We shall not rest with merely proving our case, however. Taking advantage of the favorable public attitude toward business and professional women, which we hope will result, we shall begin a vigorous drive to place more women in executive positions and to secure the election and appointment of a larger number of qualified women to public office."

Discussing details of the Stockholm program Miss Phillips revealed that she herself will present the three-year objective; that all the members of the board of directors will be invited to participate in a symposium on "Exposing Fallacies"; that Dr. Signe Svensson, only woman invited to stand for a third term in the Norwegian parliament, and Mme. Anna Paradowska-Szelagowska, first woman delegate from Poland to the League of Nations, will speak on "Putting More Women in Public Office," and Miss Caroline Haslett, of Great Britain, electrical engineer and vice-president of the International Federation, and Mme. Anni Voipio, Finnish journalist, on "More Women in Executive Positions."

Other women featured on the convention program are Mme. Antonietta Paoli Pogliani, Italian sculptor; Senator F. F. Plaminkova, many times member of the Czechoslovakian parliament; Miss Gordon Holmes, British investment expert; Mrs. Helena Normanton, Britain's first woman barrister; Froken Nanna With, Norwegian author and feminist, and Dr. Maria Castellani, head of the statistical bureau of Italy's State Insurance association, and others equally distinguished.

A highlight of the convention will be a mass meeting to discuss "The Business Woman—Her Public Profile," in which speakers from designated arts or professions will present the business and professional woman as she appears in the novel, the press, the radio and the films. Miss Phillips will speak on "The Business Woman as She Sees Herself."

Neville School Play Much Enjoyed

One of the most enjoyable amateur attractions ever presented by any group in Monroe was the play "Penrod," adapted from Booth Tarkington's story of the same name, and given by the senior class of 1937 of Neville High school at the auditorium on June 2, under the able direction of Mrs. Minnie Ruffin assisted by Miss Beryl Madison.

The selection of "Penrod" was a happy choice, particularly suited to young people, and the manner in which the entire cast interpreted their roles would have done credit to a far more experienced group.

The character of perhaps the best-loved boy in American fiction was played to perfection by Bobby O'Donnell. Bobby Oliver, as Sam Williams, Penrod's best friend and assistant, offered a clever bit of acting. Herman and Verman, Penrod's little colored friends, who aided in the successful operation of his detective agency, were excellently portrayed by Ruffin Tidwell and Bob Underwood. These four typical Americans were responsible for the gales of laughter.

Noel Learned, as Robert Williams, Sam's brother, who yearned to marry Margaret Schofield, and an experienced lover of 19 years of age whom "suffering had made a man," did an outstanding piece of work, as did Harry Fernandez as the sorely tried Mr. Schofield, who reached a fine frenzy in attempting to extract the truth from Penrod and Sam's detective agency.

Georgianna Williams, as Margaret Schofield, was particularly good in the scene where she was reduced to tears at the discovery of the perfidy of the city slicker, Mr. Dade, (Albert Buckley) who had won her heart with his fine phrases so convincingly uttered.

Jimmie Cudd, as Jarge, the house man, who had his finger in every pie concerning the happenings of the village, gave a remarkable performance. He was a perfect foil for Della, the fiery housemaid, excellently portrayed by Josephine McCook. Stanley Mintz, as Goergie Bassett, the "good" little boy who enjoyed pageants, and Josephine Conger, as Marjorie Jones, the little girl who delighted in irritating Penrod whom she really loved, filled their roles to perfection.

The other characters with smaller parts, but equally important to the success of the production as a whole, were well played by Benton Holt, as Tim, the crook; James Digby, as Mr. Jones, a business man; Evelyn Baur, as Mrs. Bassett; George Patterson, as Reverend Kinosling; Emily McGee, as Mrs. Rewbush, teacher, and P. A. Poag, as Mr. Coombes, the chief of police.

Most enjoyable was the clever skit featuring Hettie Nettles, Katherine Jones, Mary Guy, Roberta Stewart, Beverly Folmer and Patsy Dryburgh, dressed in charming little school girl gingham frocks. Other members of the skit were: Dick Pritthard, Billy Bendel, Bryon Grigsby, Bob Gangstad, George Sager, Ray Petty, Thomas Holden and J. H. McClendon, in ridiculous costumes, who convulsed the audience with their clever antics. A tap dance featured Martha Hopson and Aline Sager and the "high school mixed quartet," was rendered by Mary Haywood, Estelle Thames, Bernice Bernstein, Jane Landry, Cecil Blanchard, Billy Smith, Parker McGhee and S. C. Wimbish.

The story of this delightful evening would not be complete without mentioning the unusually charming setting designed by Mrs. Ruffin and executed by Albert Newburn, Mr. Pettit and Mr. Reagan. The sound and lightning effects were planned and handled by James Digby, Mr. Spight and Hassal Kahn.

Three Popular Brides-To-Be Much Feted By Local Society

Miss Horuff, Miss Steele, Mrs. Abramson, Miss Henninger, Mrs. Strauss Entertain

It is being proved conclusively that "love makes the world go round." Romance is now playing an important part not only in the lives of the brides-to-be but all their friends who are joining with them in the hectic rush from one beautiful pre-nuptial affair to another.

The marriage yesterday of Miss Frances Stroud climaxed the social affairs in her honor, but the merry whirl continues with the marriage of Miss Suzanne Hirsch and Miss Doris Beaman still in the offing.

Last week's activities were unusually charming with hostesses exerting every effort to make each affair more gracious than the one before.

Magnolias, the most beautiful flower in the lap of June, were selected by Miss Marie Dell Horuff for the floral theme when she entertained during the coffee hour on Thursday for Miss Hirsch and Miss Beaman.

The spacious lower floor of the Horuff home, fragrant with the perfume of magnolias, roses and gardenias, was thronging with beautifully gowned guests who paid their respects to the hostess, her charming mother, Mrs. Albert Horuff, the two guests of honor and their mothers, Mrs. D. I. Hirsch and Mrs. R. R. Beaman.

Miss Hirsch wore on this occasion a blue linen ensemble with smart short coat of flowered linen. Miss Beaman wore a crisp white embroidered swiss model with accessories of white. Miss Horuff was assisted in the courtesies by Miss Pargie Hudson, Mrs. George Thorgeson, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Mrs. James Trousdale, Mrs. Travis Oliver, Jr., Mrs. Amos Smelser, Mrs. Foster Wallace, Miss Leigh Russell and Miss Louise Gray.

Magnolias were banked in extravagant manner in the dining room, where Mrs. J. J. Potts and Mrs. Edward Apperson presided over the handsome silver coffee urns gracing either end of the beautifully appointed refreshment table.

The table, developed in white and green, had for central floral motif a mound of waxen magnolias in pyramid formation outlined with glistening green leaves. Luscious confections were passed among the guests on silver platters.

One hundred and fifty guests called between the hours of 10 and 12.

Miss Joy Steele's luncheon in the main dining room of the Frances hotel at 1 o'clock on Friday brought together a coterie of congenials complimentary to Miss Hirsch. Charming informality prevailed with Miss Steele, home from the University of Alabama, where she was a member of this year's senior class, proving a most gracious hostess.

A delectable array of aperitifs and hors d'oeuvres were enjoyed before the serving of the delicious four-course luncheon.

Present in addition to the hostess and Miss Hirsch were Miss Louise Gray, Miss Pargie Hudson, Miss Betty Meyer, Miss Alyce Florsheim, Miss Fannie Dennery, Miss Harriett Hirsch, Mrs. George Thorgeson and Mrs. James C. Steele.

Bridge was enjoyed in the reception suite, banked profusely with garden flowers. Mrs. Abramson's gift to Miss Hirsch was a piece of Wedgwood colonial china.

The luncheon, served at linen covered silver appointed tables, featured several "specialties of the house" for which the hostess and her mother, Mrs. I. Heinberg, have long been famed. Suggestive of the approaching nuptial event, were the ices molded in the form of bride's slippers.

Mrs. Abramson's guests in addition to Miss Hirsch, were Miss Alyce Florsheim, Miss Betty Meyer, Miss Fannie Dennery, Miss Joy Steele, Miss Edwyna Joseph, Miss Pargie Hudson, Miss Katheryne White, Mrs. George Thorgeson and Mrs. D. I. Hirsch.

Miss Hirsch and Mrs. Leon Titche, a bride of recent date, shared the spotlight with Miss Roslyn Weil of St. Charles, Mo., when Miss Polly Henninger and Mrs. Clifford Strauss entertained at luncheon in the Camco room of the Virginia hotel last week.

Cocktails and canapes were enjoyed during the conversational hour before luncheon was served.

Flowers, considered a prerequisite for the success of luncheons, played an important part in the color theme on this occasion. Fragrant flowers in all the rainbow shades were selected by the hostesses for the floral plaque centering the beautifully appointed table.

Four delicious courses were served with demi tasse accompanying the ice course.

IF YOU love lovely things . . . take yourself and $5.95 to the Ruth Shops. Why? Ah . . . you should know the surprise in store for you. Ruth Shops have a beautiful shipment of lovely Pan-American prints . . . made of that soft angel-like material that is neither cotton or silk but a mixture of both—designed and manufactured for hot weather. Here is something else new . . . at Ruth Shops—To emphasize the natural beauty of your legs, I found some hose that do the trick—Vanette Crepe Hose at only 79c a pair. Soft mists of three and four-thread chiffon, they cling smoothly to the contour of your legs, glamorizing their outline and creating an illusion of slenderness, even where it doesn't exist. Thin, medium or fat legs find them a perfect fit for they come in three lengths. And they're reinforced in all the easily worn spots. In all the new shades, Red Earth, Cubitan, Carib, Glamer, Plaza Beige.

BEAUTY is only skin deep . . . so it's deep into the skin that Dorothy Gray Cream gets . . . A consultant of nearly a half century of experience, she has the ins and outs of "a better skin" down pat. Cures acne and other blemishes, working with her own creams. Banishes wrinkles, too! The new muscle exercise facial that Dorothy Gray teaches for wrinkles really does the work. Because loose and flabby skin, sagging skin and double chins are the result of weak muscles, lack of skin elasticity and dryness . . . It hits right at the source! Her special creams are used to correct the particular fault. Dorothy Gray Cosmetics are a wonderful insurance, for the skin . . . not only to eradicate but to guard against those first signs of "age." At Walgreen's Drug, of course.

IT CAME from Sherwin-Williams—and I saw it in a bedroom . . . truly the most beautiful wallpaper I have ever seen, but it would also be charming in a powder room or dressing room for it's a "ladies' paper." A spaced pattern of IMPERIAL WASHABLE WALLPAPER . . . a delicate peach floral design on a silver tone background, dull grey leaves and dainty green sprigs . . . absolutely stunning! Also I visited Sherwin-Williams this week and found the very clever decorating ideas in certain paper suggested with certain drapes, etc. See it in the window.

Three Popular Brides-To-Be Much Feted By Local Society

Miss Horuff, Miss Steele, Mrs. Abramson, Miss Henninger, Mrs. Strauss Entertain

It is being proved conclusively that "love makes the world go round." Romance is now playing an important part not only in the lives of the brides-to-be but all their friends who are joining with them in the hectic rush from one beautiful pre-nuptial affair to another.

The marriage yesterday of Miss Frances Stroud climaxed the social affairs in her honor, but the merry whirl continues with the marriage of Miss Suzanne Hirsch and Miss Doris Beaman still in the offing.

Last week's activities were unusually charming with hostesses exerting every effort to make each affair more gracious than the one before.

Magnolias, the most beautiful flower in the lap of June, were selected by Miss Marie Dell Horuff for the floral theme when she entertained during the coffee hour on Thursday for Miss Hirsch and Miss Beaman.

The spacious lower floor of the Horuff home, fragrant with the perfume of magnolias, roses and gardenias, was thronging with beautifully gowned guests who paid their respects to the hostess, her charming mother, Mrs. Albert Horuff, the two guests of honor and their mothers, Mrs. D. I. Hirsch and Mrs. R. R. Beaman.

Miss Hirsch wore on this occasion a blue linen ensemble with smart short coat of flowered linen. Miss Beaman wore a crisp white embroidered swiss model with accessories of white. Miss Horuff was assisted in the courtesies by Miss Pargie Hudson, Mrs. George Thorgeson, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Mrs. James Trousdale, Mrs. Travis Oliver, Jr., Mrs. Amos Smelser, Mrs. Foster Wallace, Miss Leigh Russell and Miss Louise Gray.

Magnolias were banked in extravagant manner in the dining room, where Mrs. J. J. Potts and Mrs. Edward Apperson presided over the handsome silver coffee urns gracing either end of the beautifully appointed refreshment table.

The table, developed in white and green, had for central floral motif a mound of waxen magnolias in pyramid formation outlined with glistening green leaves. Luscious confections were passed among the guests on silver platters.

One hundred and fifty guests called between the hours of 10 and 12.

Miss Joy Steele's luncheon in the main dining room of the Frances hotel at 1 o'clock on Friday brought together a coterie of congenials complimentary to Miss Hirsch. Charming informality prevailed with Miss Steele, home from the University of Alabama, where she was a member of this year's senior class, proving a most gracious hostess.

A delectable array of aperitifs and hors d'oeuvres were enjoyed before the serving of the delicious four-course luncheon.

Present in addition to the hostess and Miss Hirsch were Miss Louise Gray, Miss Pargie Hudson, Miss Betty Meyer, Miss Alyce Florsheim, Miss Fannie Dennery, Miss Harriett Hirsch, Mrs. George Thorgeson and Mrs. James C. Steele.

Mrs. William Abramson's bridge-luncheon complimentary to Miss Suzanne Hirsch was one of the most gracious pre-nuptial affairs honoring this much feted bride-to-be.

Bridge was enjoyed in the reception suite, banked profusely with garden flowers. Mrs. Abramson's gift to Miss Hirsch was a piece of Wedgwood colonial china.

The luncheon, served at linen covered silver appointed tables, featured several "specialties of the house" for which the hostess and her mother, Mrs. I. Heinberg, have long been famed. Suggestive of the approaching nuptial event, were the ices molded in the form of bride's slippers.

Mrs. Abramson's guests in addition to Miss Hirsch, were Miss Alyce Florsheim, Miss Betty Meyer, Miss Fannie Dennery, Miss Joy Steele, Miss Edwyna Joseph, Miss Pargie Hudson, Miss Katheryne White, Mrs. George Thorgeson and Mrs. D. I. Hirsch.

Miss Hirsch and Mrs. Leon Titche, a bride of recent date, shared the spotlight with Miss Roslyn Weil of St. Charles, Mo., when Miss Polly Heninger and Mrs. Clifford Strauss entertained at luncheon in the Cameo room of the Virginia hotel last week.

Cocktails and canapes were enjoyed during the conversational hour before luncheon was served.

Flowers, considered a prerequisite for the success of luncheons, played an important part in the color theme on this occasion. Fragrant flowers in all the rainbow shades were selected by the hostesses for the floral plaque centering the beautifully appointed table.

Four delicious courses were served with demi tasse accompanying the ice course.

IF YOU love lovely things . . . take yourself and $5.95 to the Ruth Shops. Why? Ah . . . you should know the surprise in store for you. Ruth Shops have a beautiful shipment of lovely Pan-American prints . . . made of that soft angel-like material that is neither cotton or silk but a mixture of both—designed and manufactured for hot weather. Here is something else new . . . at Ruth Shops—To emphasize the natural beauty of your legs, I found some hose that do the trick—Vanette Crepe Hose at only 79c a pair. Soft mists of three and four-thread chiffon, they cling smoothly to the contour of your legs, glamorizing their outline and creating an illusion of slenderness, even where it doesn't exist. Thin, medium or fat legs find them a perfect fit for they come in three lengths. And they're reinforced in all the easily worn spots. In all the new shades, Red Earth, Cubitan, Carib, Glamer, Plaza Beige.

BEAUTY is only skin deep . . . so it's deep into the skin that Dorothy Gray Cream gets . . . A consultant of nearly a half century of experience, she has the ins and outs of "a better skin" down pat. Cures acne and other blemishes, working with her own creams. Banishes wrinkles, too! The new muscle exercise facial that Dorothy Gray teaches for wrinkles really does the work. Because loose and flabby skin, sagging skin and double chins are the result of weak muscles, lack of skin elasticity and dryness . . . It hits right at the source! Her special creams are used to correct the particular fault. Dorothy Gray Cosmetics are a wonderful insurance, for the skin . . . not only to eradicate but to guard against those first signs of "age." At Walgreen's Drug, of course.

IT CAME from Sherwin-Williams—and I saw it in a bedroom . . . truly the most beautiful wallpaper I have ever seen; but it would also be charming in a powder room or dressing room for it's a "ladies' paper." A spaced pattern of IMPERIAL WASHABLE WALLPAPER . . . a delicate peach floral design on a silver tone background, dull grey leaves and dainty green sprigs . . . absolutely stunning! Also I visited Sherwin-Williams this week and found the very clever decorating ideas in certain paper suggested with certain drapes, etc. See it in the window.

EVERY BRIDE receives bridge sets, bath towels, electrical appliances and numerous other gifts in duplication. Now, something like the new hooked rugs that Durrett Hardware and Furniture Co. just unpacked would be highly appreciated. The individual scatter rugs are only $3.95 up! To make one . . . the materials would cost much more than that but of course Durrett's buy in such huge quantities! Hurry down while the selection is complete and their Anniversary Sale is still in progress.

IF YOU are still "knee deep" in spring cleaning, this summer rug news will be like "manna from heaven." It will be welcome in homes where the cleaning is over, too, especially if the rugs from other summers look the worse for wear. Fiber rugs in gay colors—linoleum and velvet, wool and chenille with matching scatter rugs—are gracing the rug department of Dixie Bedding and Furniture Co. right now. They come in plaids, floral designs, geometric and moderne patterns. Some are reversible. Dixie saves you 35% on all your purchases.

ARE YOU among those who are scheduled to do a lot of entertaining for the girls in your "set" that are about to be married? . . . Of course you must keep up your dainty fresh appearance throughout the entire party regardless of the details that come under your own capable supervision. . . . So I have here a most helpful hint as to the refreshment hour. The Jitney Jungle Bakery on North Fourth street makes a specialty of preparing those dainty cakes, breads and pies that no guest will guess that they are not "home made" because they actually are! . . . Also this Grocery Store has on hand the most unusual treats for party refreshments that you will find in Monroe. Ask about it when you make your purchases tomorrow morning . . . You know, even though you are not entertaining just yet . . . it is good to know just what you can get when you need it.

NOTHING but a cataclysm—a flood or a cyclone—should keep you from Wolff's . . . Where they unpacked the newest item on the market that women will fairly rave over, "Breezy Nighties" . . . It's a smart little trick that will fit little women as well as the more stocky ones. The Breezy Nighty is a new style pajama, short and full cut, sleeveless and backless . . . "sorter" resembles the kiddies' rompers, only a bit more brief. Any way they are made of soft thin dimity and batiste with dainty flowers, some with figured designs, all sizes and priced only at 97c. No need to worry about hot nights . . . when you sleep in "Breezy Nighties" . . . they're really air-conditioned and sold exclusively at Wolff's.

'Wake Up And Live' Late Hit

Alice Faye And Stellar Supporting Cast Featured In Sprightly Film

TODAY'S flash from the motion-picture front is a good-news flash for "Wake Up and Live," the film-musical featuring Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie and Alice Faye which plays today at the Paramount theater, is by all odds the sweetest, hottest, most glamorous and galorious musical ever made by Twentieth Century-Fox, the studio which also tu ned out "On the Avenue," "One in a Million" and "Sing Baby Sing."

A sweethot of a show, as Mrs. Winchell's boy Walter might put it, "Wake Up and Live" carries the famed Winchell-Bernie feud to new heights of merriment, with your new correspondent and the Old Maestro engaged in a furious vendetta in the midst of one of the most eye-filling musicals of the year.

In addition to the spectacle of Winchell and Bernie feuding face-to-face, "Wake Up and Live" offers Alice Faye, singing, dancing and acting her way to new laurels; Patsy Kelly, Ned Sparks and Jack Haley piling up the laughs; and nine swingeant new song hits by Gordon and Revel, the tops in Hollywood tunesmiths.

Against the hilarious background of l'affaire Winchell-Bernie, "Wake Up and Live" tells the story of a timid vaudeville performer, Jack Haley, who muffs his big radio opportunity when, at an audition, he gets "mike fright" and faints. His partner, Grace Bradley, thereupon deserts him for Walter Catlett, an agent, who books her into a night club.

Through the influence of his sister, Patsy Kelly, who is Winchell's "Girl Friday," Haley gets a job as a uniformed guide at Radio Center. There he follows the artists around, sells an occasional "plug" to Ben Bernie, and meets Alice Faye, the "Wake Up and Live Girl" of radio, who tries to help him overcome his mike fright.

Listening to Bernie's program one night, Haley is inspired by the music, steps to a microphone in a deserted control room, and sings. Unknown to him, the song is broadcast, and a flood of fan mail deluges the station.

No one, however, knows the "Phantom Troubadour," and Haley even joins in the search himself. Bernie attempts to pass off the sensation as something of his own, and tries to put over a voice imp'esander as the Phantom on his next broadcast, but Winchell and Bernie becomes even hotter as each strives to capture the Phantom for his own program.

Alice Faye discovers by accident that Haley is the Phantom, but he is abducted by Catlett and Grace Bradley, who have guessed his identity. A whirlwind chase ensues, winding up in Bernie's night club, where Winchell, in a tumultuous press broadcast, announces the hectic moments of the finale over the air as they occur.

A tuneful picture, "Wake Up and Live" is given melodic impetus by Gordon and Revel, who turned out nine smash song hits for the film. "Never in a Million Years," "It's Sweet of You," "I'm Bubbling Over," "There's a Lull in My Life," "Wake Up and Live," "Oh, But I'm Happy," "I Love You Pea Meets Manhattan," "Red Seal Melody" and "Between Love Songs."

Lo-la Ray, Joan Davis, Douglas Fowley and Miles Mander are also featured in this hotcha-topsa musical, for which Darryl F. Zanuck, vice president in charge of production at Twentieth Century-Fox, chose Sidney Lanfield to direct, with Kenneth Macgowan as associate producer. Curtis Kenyon wrote the original story, based upon Dorothea Brandes book, and Harry Tugend and Jack Yellen (of "Love Is News" fame) did the screen play.

'Nobody's Baby' Now At Capitol

Patsy Kelly Heads Outstanding Cast In New Film Of Comedy Situations

HAL ROACH introduces a new and decided stellar comedy team, Patsy Kelly and Lyda Roberti, in their initial Ha Roach-M-G-M full length feature comedy, "Nobody's Baby", showing at the Captiol theater today.

The picture is described as a laugh-fest from the time Kitty Reilly (Pasty Kelly) and Lena Marchetti (Lyda Roberti) meet, applying for an amateur radio show audition, until the smash finale.

Kitty and Lena, as student nurses, comically clumsy in learning the technique of their trade, make some hilarious faux pas and have a series of hysterically funny adventures. Receiving an invitation from their friends Detective Lieutenant Emery Littleworth (Lynee Overman) and reporter "Scoops" Hanford (Robert Armstrong), the girls obtain permission to take the evening off.

The foursome proceed to the Club Tropicano, the gayest spot in town, where they watch the sensational dance team of Yvonne and Cortez (Rosina Lawrence and Don Alvarado).

Months later Kitty and Lena unexpectedly encounter Yvonne in the hospital as a maternity patient. She confides to them that she is secretly married to Tony Cortez but has broken with the adulation afflicted dancer without telling him of the blessed event.

The girls agree to help her. They hide the baby in their room while Yvonne goes to the night club to see Cortez. This situation rapidly develops into a rollicking farce when Emery and Scoops, visiting the hospital, become convinced that the baby belongs to each other's girl. "Nobody's Baby" becomes everybody's baby with the gordian knot being cleverly cut at the Club Tropicano.

An ideal atmosphere has been created for this production. The many costly sets are pretentiously staged with fabrics blended into designs of ultra modern conception.

Excellent support has been afforded the leading players by Jimmy Grier's orchestra, their Rhythm Rascals and the Avalon boys and a large company of nurses, doctors and night club habitues.

Gus Meins, former famed cartoonist and now a noted director, handled the megaphone. The picture is based on an original story by Harold Law, Hal Yates and Pat C. Flick.

OUR POSTOFFICE SERVICE

(From an address given before the convention of the Louisiana Branch National League of Postmasters, held in Monroe last week.)

By HARRISON PARKMAN
of the United States Postoffice Department, Washington

The alertness and sense of responsibility of postmasters and all other workers in the postal service are very important factors in the prompt and efficient service which the Postoffice Department is supplying to the American people every minute of the day and night.

Time has certainly worked a change in the postal service. When I was a postmaster, twenty years ago, "the Postoffice Department" was a vague, separate part of our service, located in the nation's capital, which controlled our activities but had little actual connection with us. Shortly after James A. Farley became Postmaster General he told us, at a meeting of the administrative officials, that he wanted the department and the field force brought together, that we were really all one body that must be closely coordinated. We have been working to that end and I am sure that, for the first time in our history, this is very true. It makes for greater efficiency and mutual understanding.

Too often the outstanding public service of the thousands of postal workers throughout the nation goes unnoticed, because of the matter of fact manner in which the people avail themselves of our service. I am now alluding to the two huge jobs accomplished by the Postal Service within the past year—the immensity of which very few have any conception. The handling of the Veterans Adjusted Service Bonds and the registration of workers under the Social Security Act. I am safe in saying that no group of government workers was ever called upon to perform two such gigantic tasks within seven months. And, to the eternal glory of our service, we took it in our stride and didn't miss a step. All the bragging we could do about those two jobs would not be even a small part of the true story.

During the present administration all of our mail transportation services have been surveyed and, to a large extent, reorganized. Included in these transportation services are railway mail, ocean mail, domestic air mail, foreign air mail, rural mail and star routes.

The domestic air mail has been entirely reconstructed and is the most efficient air mail service in the world. More miles are flown daily on regular schedules and more cities are served than at any time since the domestic air mail service was established. The schedules are faster, the equipment the latest and best and the cost for this vastly improved service is several million dollars less than the cost during the previous administration.

OUR POSTOFFICE SERVICE

By HARRISON PARKMAN
of the United States Postoffice Department, Washington

The alertness and sense of responsibility of postmasters and all other workers in the postal service are very important factors in the prompt and efficient service which the Postoffice Department is supplying to the American people every minute of the day and night.

Time has certainly worked a change in the postal service. When I was a postmaster, twenty years ago, "the Postoffice Department" was a vague, separate part of our service, located in the nation's capital, which controlled our activities but had little actual connection with us. Shortly after James A. Farley became Postmaster General he told us, at a meeting of the administrative officials, that he wanted the department and the field force brought together, that we were really all one body that must be closely coordinated. We have been working to that end and I am sure that, for the first time in our history, this is very true. It makes for greater efficiency and mutual understanding.

Too often the outstanding public service of the thousands of postal workers throughout the nation goes unnoticed, because of the matter of fact manner in which the people avail themselves of our service. I am now alluding to the two huge jobs accomplished by the Postal Service within the past year—the immensity of which very few have any conception. The handling of the Veterans Adjusted Service Bonds and the registration of workers under the Social Security Act. I am safe in saying that no group of government workers was ever called upon to perform two such gigantic tasks within seven months. And, to the eternal glory of our service, we took it in our stride and didn't miss a step. All the bragging we could do about those two jobs would not be even a small part of the true story.

During the present administration all of our mail transportation services have been surveyed and, to a large extent, reorganized. Included in these transportation services are railway mail, ocean mail, domestic air mail, foreign air mail, rural mail and star routes.

The domestic air mail has been entirely reconstructed and is the most efficient air mail service in the world. More miles are flown daily on regular schedules and more cities are served than at any time since the domestic air mail service was established. The schedules are faster, the equipment the latest and best and the cost for this vastly improved service is several million dollars less than the cost during the previous administration.

BREAKFAST ROOM, KITCHEN ALLIED

Convenient Relationship Of Both Offered In Federal Housing Plan

The busy round of modern life has developed a new demand in the average small home for convenient relationship between the kitchen and its adjoining breakfast room. In small families a majority of the meals are consumed in either the kitchen or the breakfast room, thus minimizing the morning and evening efforts of the young housewife. An outmoded arrangement may be transformed at a minimum cost to further increase the beauty as well as the efficiency of the kitchen and breakfast room combination. A graceful arch is sometimes cut in a side wall and an efficient kitchen unit installed therein. Built-in cabinets, drain-board, sink, and food-preparation shelves also add to the convenience of food preparation. New floor covering may be installed to further minimize the labors of the housewife. Windows over the sink may be widened to provide additional light and ventilation. Numerous floor coverings, wall materials, tile, and composition board are on the market and adapt themselves entirely to such conversions. Such projects readily fall within the limits of the Federal Housing administration's modernization credit plan. Under terms of this plan, the property owner may repay such loans obtained from private monthly payments. For full particulars consult any federal housing administration insuring office or the Federal Housing administration, Washington, D. C.

MIRRORS MUST BE SAVED FROM DAMP

Mirrors, besides being necessary, have great decorative value in a home. Streaks or discolorations appearing on their surfaces quickly destroy their artistic and utilitarian worth. These disfigurements are caused by the seeping of moisure through the coating on the back. Paint, shellac, and silvering are not entirely impervious to moisture, while copper backing remains unspoiled by steam or dampness.

Refinishing of mirrors is expensive, and before their installation in the new home assurance of their perfect condition is advisable.

PROVIDE WORKERS WITH GOOD HOMES

Labor Helps Many On Down Payment Under FHA Building Program

FERGUS FALLS, Minn.—Many workmen here are providing the 20 per cent down payment required on a home purchased under the Federal Housing Administration's single mortgage system through their own labor.

A number of carpenters and similar workmen here either are out of work or working part time on WPA projects. The owner of a number of lots here in the city has made an agreement with a local lumber company whereby many of these carpenters and workmen are being provided with homes.

Under the plan the lumber company becomes the mortgagor and will obtain Federal Housing Administration insured loans on these projects from private financial institutions. The workmen will donate their labor, which will amount to around 20 per cent of the value of the completed structure, and then will buy the houses from the lumber company. Under this plan, many people who are now living in unsuitable quarters will be provided with adequate housing.

SCIENCE ends DANGER of hot homes!

New discovery reduces temperature up to 15° on hottest days

FROM the Johns-Manville laboratories has come an amazing new insulation, a light, fluffy wool-like substance that is actually blown from rock. It looks like cotton, but is a pure mineral, with all the characteristics of its stony origin—clean, fireproof, vermin-proof, permanent, odorless.

When installed in your attic floor or ceiling, it forms a heat-proof barrier more than 3 inches thick. Results are astounding. Hot homes become delightfully cool, and you can depend on savings up to 30% on your fuel bills in winter. Experts agree that only full wall thickness rock wool will protect homes against heat and cold in a truly scientific way.

Phone us today, and let us tell you how little it will cost to make your home really livable every day in the year. There is no obligation.

Profit-Making Modernization

The two photographs shown here illustrate how an outmoded Danville, Ill., store was converted into a smart, sales-stimulating establishment. The project, located at 51 North Vermilion Street in Danville, was carried out by J. G. Leichtman under the provisions of the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan. Mr. Leichtman obtained a ten-year lease on the establishment and modernized it on a very low rental basis. He states that since completing the remodeling of the store his business in this location has increased 70 per cent. Mr. Leichtman also has opened up another store in a different location which he modernized under the terms of the Modernization Credit Plan for $1,500.

MODERNIZATION PAYS STORE MAN

Illinois Business Proprietor Realizes Advantage Of New Aids Under FHA

DANVILLE, Ill.—A progressive retail merchant of this city has become the tenant in an ultra-modern store with a remarkably low rental and has already realized an approximate increase of 70 per cent in his business following an extensive modernization project.

J. G. Leichtman became interested in the benefits which might be developed out of utilization of the National Housing act. He leased an old property at 51 North Vermilion street in this city, on a ten-year basis, in the belief that a sizeable expenditure in bringing the store property up to a highly modernized state would pay dividends. He then took his financing problem to the First National Bank of Danville.

As a result, the bank made Mr. Leichtman a five-year loan amounting to $8,000, with which he completely transformed the appearance of the formerly outmoded establishment. He is now the proprietor of an exceptionally modern store which over a period of ten years represents an extremely low rental scale in comparison with the price he would have had to pay had the owner of the building conducted the modernization project himself. Mr. Leichtman also has stated that since the opening of his new store a few months ago his business has increased approximately 70 per cent. So impressed was he with the excellent results, Mr. Leichtman decided that the city of Danville would support another small store of a similar character in a different location. To carry out this project, he obtained a $1,500 insured modernization loan from the First National bank. This property has also more than justified the expenditure.

CONFIDENCE VITAL TO GOOD MARKET

Nothing is more important in a well-ordered market than the confidence of the public in the product which it buys. This is one of the foremost factors in volume building and one which the Federal Housing administration stimulates in its insurance of mortgages.

Confidence cannot be produced through investment in dwellings which rapidly deteriorate and which are otherwise lacking in qualities which make an investment one of permanent satisfaction. A passing boom may be based upon exploitation, but a steady market can result only from sound value.

The London Midland and Scotish railway will operate a new fast service between Glasgow and London, each way daily, making the journey of 401 miles in 6 1-2 hours, an average of 61.8 miles per hour.

Individuality Of Setting Adds To Looks Of Home, Neighborhood

The location of a house on the lot is often blindly determined by a building line which has been established either by restriction or custom. Where such a line is established by regulation, the house cannot, of course, project in front of it, but there is no reason why it must toe the line.

Many of our suburbs, particularly the developments that have been laid out and built by one organization, carry out this regimentation of houses so that the streets present the appearance of a company of soldiers with slightly different uniforms. How much better it would be to break up these serried ranks and give each house its individuality of setting that will place it on the right spot on its lot, regardless of whether or not its front line is a few feet in front of or behind its neighbors! Not only would this be better for each house from a lot-use angle but by staggering the houses the light and ventilation of all would be improved.

In the days of the front porch, when the street sides of our houses were dressed up like show windows for the benefit of the passerby, this lining up of fronts perhaps had some merit, but this excuse has vanished now that the public definitely prefers privacy and has moved the porch from the front to the back in order to take advantage of the backyard as a living area.

Houses built with a view to obtaining federal housing administration insured mortgages should be carefully placed on the lot so as to make the most of the space available in order to receive a high rating.

COLOR SCHEME MUST BE CHOSEN CAREFULLY

Properly chosen color can make a room seem larger or smaller, can aid in illumination, and have a decided psychological effect upon everyone living in the house. It is advisable to check on the effect of colors before decorating a room.

A ceiling which is darker than the walls will cause the roof to have a top-heavy effect. Dark floors make the room seem larger and form a satisfactory background for rugs and furniture.

Well-planned homes may be financed under the terms of the Federal Housing administration program.

Questions And Answers

Q. Some years ago I purchased a low piece of land and have allowed dumping of metallic junk and clean fill. I now want to build a home. Can I build on top of this fill?

A. It is advisable to build upon solid earth, hence you should have your cellar dug and extend your foundation well down to solid bearing. If a cellar is not contemplated, it is possible to level the fill and pour a reinforced concrete mat properly designed and construct the house upon this mat. To consult a competent architect or engineer on such a particular problem is advisable.

Q. My home is only 15 years old, and it has been necessary for me to replace some of my mechanical equipment. Is this reasonable?

A. It must be remembered, in regard to such equipment, that the first cost is rarely, if ever, the last cost—a thing which is particularly true of equipment which contains moving parts. Consequently, when choosing equipment, the items of repair, operating cost and the probable length of service before replacement must be considered.

Q. The air from the vent pipe of my gas heater blows the flame out whenever there is a north or east wind. What can I do to stop this?

A. You will most likely find that the vent pipe above the roof is too short. It should extend two feet above the highest point of your roof.

Q. I have a one-and-a-half-story house. Without going to the expense of insulating, how can I make the second-floor space more cool in the summer?

A. Provide large louvers in each gable end of the roof to circulate the air in the space between the ceiling and the roof. On hip roofs provide louver dormers. The louvers should be built as high as possible.

Q. We want to do over our bathroom. The walls are made of boards running up and down, and we want to have tile. We are having all new fixtures put in, so we want it all modern. Is it practical to put in tile?

A. Yes. The wood paneling can be taken down, wire lath put up, and tile erected on it without any difficulty. If you want a tile floor it will be necessary to lay a concrete base first. This means that the joists under the floor will have to be beveled and cut down somewhat and a form built between the joists to hold the concrete. If any pipes occur in this area they should be covered with a piece of expanded metal lath or tin formed into a semi-circle so that they are not embedded in the concrete. Linoleum or some form of composition tile could be laid directly over the present wood floor, if you desire.

Q. What kind of fence would be best to put around my garden

A. It depends upon the purpose of the fence. If it is to be a real screen, a wattle fence would probably be the or picket or even a rail fence may be used. If you can wait for it to grow, a hedge of some evergreen like arborviate makes a lovely "fence."

Q. What size should a one-car garage be?

A. A garage 9 feet by 18 feet will accommodate almost any car. The doors should be at least 7 feet 6 inches wide and 8 feet high. If possible add a few feet to either the width or depth for work space.

"Gly-Cas Does All It Claims To Do"

Says Mr. Joseph Aycock; Now Feels He Is Well Again; Now Eats Good Without Distress, Headaches Gone, All Pain Had Left Him, Gained Twenty Pounds.

"I would recommend Gly-Cas to anyone for it is the first medicine I have ever found that could be depended upon," said Mr. Joseph E. Aycock, Buckeye, La. (near Alexandria). "I had suffered for years with gall bladder trouble and my entire system was filled with poisons. I endured severe headaches, backaches and a severe pain through my shoulders. I could not eat anything it seemed for the minute I would put anything in my stomach it would bloat terribly until the pain and suffering was more than I could endure. I lost considerable weight and was simply not able to do my work. I tried medicine after medicine with no results and as I continually heard so much praise for this new Gly-Cas I was persuaded to give it a REAL TEST in my own case and found it wonderful."

"It is almost unbelievable—but true—that within my first month after taking Gly-Cas I felt I was entirely well," he continued. "I no longer have a single pain, eat and enjoy the foods I want, headaches have gone, have gained twenty pounds and feel so much better there is no comparison with my former health. I have caused many of my friends to try Gly-Cas too and they all report the same good results—it is a medicine with outstanding merit with the ability to reach even the most stubborn cases."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns. (Adv.)

HOME ADDITIONS NOW PRACTICABLE

FHA Plan Aid To Needed Improvements In Houses Throughout Nation

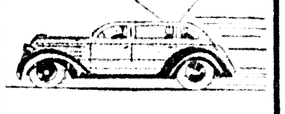

During the past two decades thousands of homes have been constructed throughout the country with the idea in mind at the time of building to allow for future additions when the family pocketbook was in proper condition.

As a result there are hundreds of homes in as many cities and towns that include unfinished attic space that can be readily transformed into comfortable living quarters or finished for recreation or study rooms.

There are additional thousands of homes which were built in such a manner that additional bedrooms or other space might be added at some future date. Such homes also originally planned allowed for possible added room space.

With the Federal Housing Administration's modernization credit insurance plan now available to the general public, such improvements are now made possible on a long-term small monthly repayment basis.

BREAKFAST ROOM, KITCHEN ALLIED

Convenient Relationship Of Both Offered In Federal Housing Plan

The busy round of modern life has developed a new demand in the average small home for convenient relationship between the kitchen and its adjoining breakfast room. In small families a majority of the meals are consumed in either the kitchen or the breakfast room, thus minimizing the morning and evening efforts of the young housewife. An outmoded arrangement may be transformed at a minimum cost to further increase the beauty as well as the efficiency of the kitchen and breakfast room combination. SOLID ROCK BECOMES WOOL
From solid rock Johns-Manville makes an insulation that at last makes homes really livable. Limestone is actually blown into a light fluffy wool, and felted into bats that have all the appearance of cotton batting.

FROM the Johns-Manville laboratories has come an amazing new insulation, a light, fluffy wool-like substance that is actually blown from rock. It looks like cotton, but is a pure mineral, with all the characteristics of its stony origin—clean, fireproof, vermin-proof, permanent, odorless.

When installed in your attic floor or ceiling, it forms a heat-proof barrier more than 3 inches thick. Results are astounding. Hot homes become delightfully cool, and you can depend on savings up to 30% on your fuel bills in winter. Experts agree that only full wall thickness rock wool will protect homes against heat and cold in a truly scientific way.

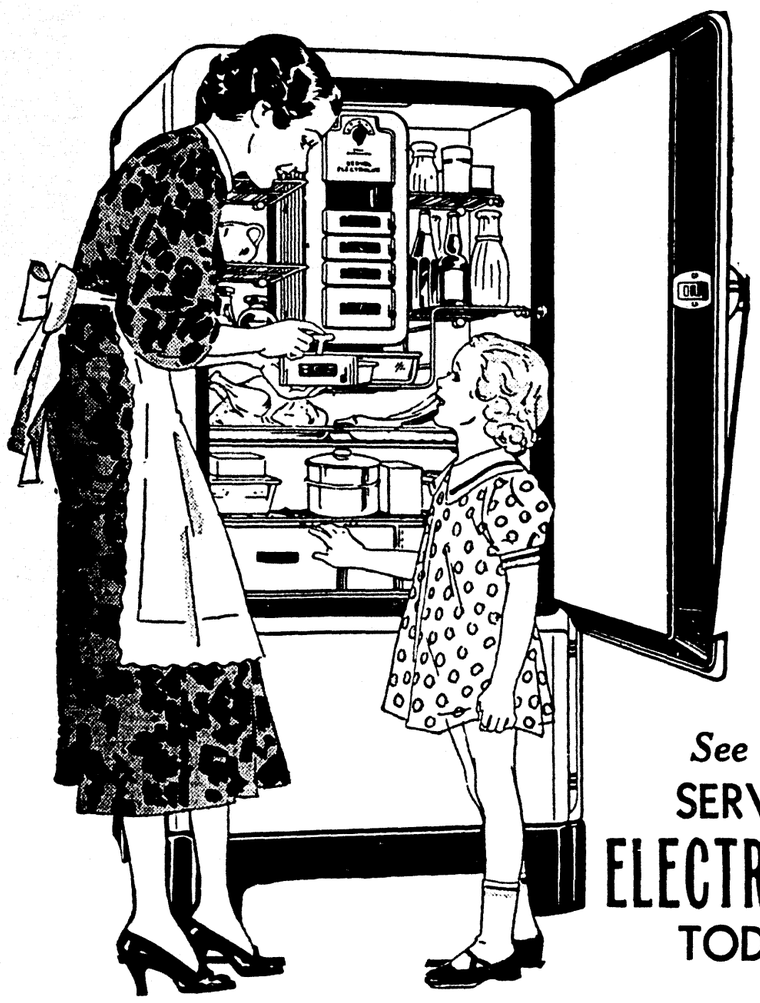

Phone us today, and let us tell you how little it will cost to make your home really livable every day in the year. There is no obligation.

TARZAN BALKED

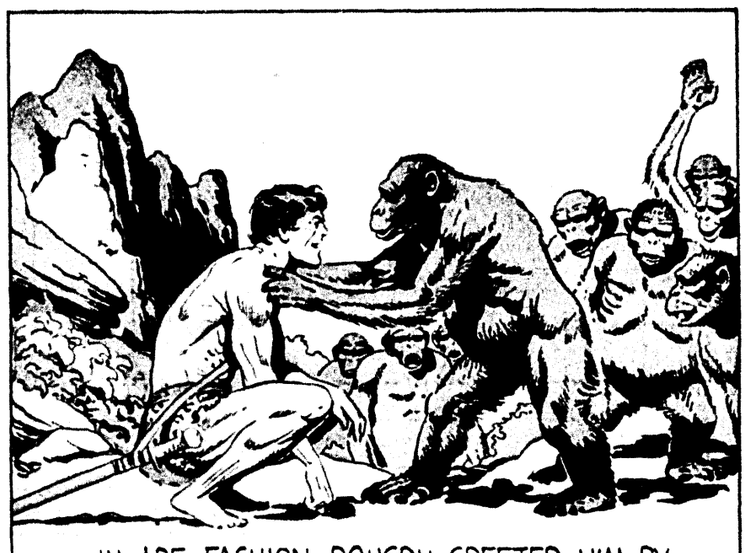

AS THE APE LUNGED, TARZAN DODGED, THEN LEAPED AND LOCKED AN ARM AROUND THAT HAIRY NECK.

"KAGODA!" THE BEAST GASPED, BUT HIS SURRENDER LEFT TARZAN STILL TO FACE THE ON-RUSHING TRIBE.

SUDDENLY FROM THE RACING HORDE BURST A HOARSE CRY: "MAN-THING IS TARZAN. DO NOT HARM HIM!"

TARZAN RECOGNIZED THE VOICE OF BOHGDU, HIS APE FRIEND WHO HAD SHARED WITH HIM SO MANY PERILOUS ADVENTURES.

IN APE FASHION, BOHGDU GREETED HIM BY EXAMINING HIS SKIN, THUS TO JUDGE HIS HEALTH.

THEN TARZAN ASKED: "WHO IS KING AMONG YOU?" BOHGDU BEAT HIS CHEST PROUDLY.

BUT TARZAN SAW THAT THE BULLS RESENTED THE ALIEN MONARCH WHO RULED BY RIGHT OF CONQUEST.

THE JUNGLE LORD SAID: "MEN WITH THUNDER-STICKS INVADE OUR FOREST. TARZAN NEEDS AID."

THE BULLS GROWLED. "LET TARZAN FIGHT OWN BATTLES. WE NOT FIGHT, WE NOT DIE FOR HIM!"

THE APE-MAN TURNED AWAY. HE HAD FAILED IN HIS FIRST ATTEMPT TO RECRUIT A JUNGLE ARMY AGAINST HIS FOES!

SAVED FROM A FORCED WEDLOCK

HIGH on a cliff overlooking the Rhine above Bingen, the mighty castle Rheinstein recalls the days of a romance that makes one of the most fascinating love legends of Germany. In the middle ages Lord Diethelm, cruel robber baron, held the castle and kept his lovely daughter Gerda from the eyes of many young knights who sought her heart.

But Helmbrecht, son of the Lord of Sterrenberg, succeeded in gaining her love, when he distinguished himself in a tournament over which she presided. Unable to meet her, Helmbrecht sent love notes to her by his uncle, Gunzelin of Reichenstein. But Gunzelin himself wooed Gerda and, being rich, won Lord Diethelm's consent to marry her.

On the wedding day, the unhappy Gerda rode to church on a snow-white palfrey, when a swarm of gadflies buzzed around the horse's head. The horse shied and broke away from the procession. The bridegroom, Gunzelin, raced after the fleeing horse and bride, and fell over a cliff. Suddenly, out of a thicket a young man jumped at the frightened animal, and stopped him. Into his arms fell Gerda. The rescuer was Helmbrecht.

Soon came another wedding, and this time unhindered, Gerda and Helmbrecht were married. A German stamp, issued in 1924, illustrates Rheinstein Castle, scene of this legend. The castle is mentioned in history as early as 1279, and is believed to be much older.
